HIS Excellency the Governor directs the publication of the following Despatch, with its enclosures, from Lieut.-General Cameron, C.B.

THOMAS RUSSELL.

Head Quarters,
Te Rore, 30th Jan., 1864.

SIR,—I have the honor to forward, for your Excellency's information, copy of a report from Colonel Warre, C.B., commanding at New Plymouth, giving an account of a skirmish which took place between the Taranaki Volunteers and the Rebel Natives near Bell Block, on the 19th instant.

I have expressed to Colonel Warre my satisfaction at the conduct of the troops engaged, and especially with the promptitude shown by Captain Atkinson and the men under his command in availing himself of the opportunity of inflicting loss on the enemy.

I have, &c.,
D. A. CAMERON,
Lieut.-General.

His Excellency
Sir George Grey, K.C.B., &c.

New Plymouth,
20th January, 1864.

SIR,—I have the honor to report, for the information of the Lieut.-General Commanding, that early yesterday morning Mr. Parris informed me that an attack had been made the previous evening on the block-house at Mahoetahi by the Mataitawa natives, one of whom had been wounded, and that the rebels threatened to return in the morning and burn the block-house. Shortly afterwards a telegraphic message from Bell Block reported that the rebels appeared in force at Sentry Hill, about one mile and a half inland of Mahoetahi, and they seemed to be moving forward as if to attack the block-house.

An escort of the 57th Regt. being ready to proceed to Poutoko, I completed it to 100 rank and file, with 10 of the Royal Artillery and one howitzer, under Captain Russell, 57th Regt., and directed him to proceed with Captain Atkinson's and Captain Webster's companies (50 rank and file each) of Volunteer Rifles, who were assembled for the purpose of cutting thistles near Omata, to Bell Block, where I joined this force with 15 of the Mounted Corps, under Captain Mace, Taranaki Militia.

As the rebels had scattered through the fern land, I directed the Volunteers, assisted by the mounted men, to ascertain their strength, it being reported that the rebels had been joined by 200 of the Ngatiruanuis from the south. Sending the mounted men across the Mangoraka River at the lower ford by Mahoetahi, the Volunteers advanced across the open fern land, in two divisions, half extended and half in support, driving the rebels back to their position at Sentry Hill (a very commanding knoll between the two rivers) which being threatened on three sides, the rebels abandoned. This knoll was quickly occupied by the mounted men and Volunteers, who, under a desultory and quite ineffectual fire, which they hardly returned, rapidly advanced across the Mangoraka River, through thick scrub and fern, towards the upper ford of the Waiongana River, driving the rebels back upon Manutahi (an entrenched position at the head of a long clearing, flanked by bush on either side). Not having force enough to attack this position, I thought it better not even to enter the clearing, so I directed Captain Atkinson to fall back slowly and steadily on the detachment 57th Regt., while I proceeded to Mahoetahi to communicate with the friendly Chief Mahatu.

Captain Atkinson re-crossed the Mangoraka, but his rear-guard had scarcely reached the river, when it was fired upon by some of the rebels, who must have concealed themselves in an adjoining bush on our advance. With the greatest promptness Captain Atkinson placed his rear-guard in ambush, and continued his march with the remainder of his men; the rebels fell into the ambuscade, the men of which fired rather hastily; one native was killed and two or three others wounded. The body of the native killed was brought in, but, although the whole of the Volunteers joined in the search, they could not succeed in finding the wounded men, who concealed themselves in the scrub and fern; but the Volunteers brought away three double-barrelled guns, and some pouches with ammunition, &c.

In conclusion, I must beg to bring to the Lieutenant-General's notice the admirable manner in which the Volunteer Rifles, under Capt. Atkinson and Webster, and the mounted men under Capt. Mace, Taranaki Militia, skirmished through the thick scrub and fern.

It was to Captain Atkinson's promptness in taking advantage of the nature of the country, that I must attribute the successful result of the day's skirmish, and the infliction of punishment upon rebel natives who, during the last fortnight, have been constantly endeavouring to waylay and murder settlers, and have killed many of the cattle pasturing upon Bell Block. Mr. Parris, Assistant Native Secretary, and Capt. Stapp, Adjutant of the Taranaki Militia, volunteered their services and assisted the officers of my staff, Lieut. C. M. Clarke, Deputy Assistant Qmstr.-Genl., and Lieut. Brutton, Garrison Adjutant, who performed their services with great zeal and activity. Nothing could exceed the cheerfulness with which the detachment Royal Artillery and 57th Regt. under Captain Russell, who were not actively engaged, bore the fatigues of a long march, being absent from their quarters ten or eleven hours under a burning sun.

Staff Assistant Surgeon Tomlinson accompanied the Regular troops and Dr. Spence and Mr. Webber were with the Volunteers, but their services happily were not required.

I have, &c.,

H. J. WARRE,
Colonel Commanding Troops Taranaki.
The Deputy Quartermaster-General,
Head Quarters, Auckland.

P.S.—Mr. Parris has just informed me that nine (9) natives were wounded on Tuesday last, in addition to Hone te Horo killed. One of the wounded is William King's son "Eruera Kingi;" and another, by name "Arama," had just arrived from Waikato, where he was present and wounded at the attack on the natives made by Captain Jackson's Volunteers.

Two of the above, badly wounded, have been sent to Urenui, a few miles to the north of Waitara, to be out of the way while they recover from their wounds.

The natives state that the Volunteers when looking for them passed close to the wounded men, who were concealed in the fern.

H. J. WARRE,
Colonel.
