Springing from the inner frame over the spiral decoration and outer frame is a vertical column filled in with lace-work rounded at the top. Running round the column from the outside frame is a border of spiral decorations. At the two top corners of the border are scroll decorations. On either side of the column on the pyramid is a triangle enclosing a smaller triangle filled in with lace-work, the space between the inner and outer triangles being filled in with spiral decorations. On the border of the column next the triangle, on the right of the column, is a vertical tablet bearing the words "Stephens, London;" and on the frame of the column next the triangle, on the left of the column, is a blank tablet; between the tablets and on the column are two concentric circles with open centre, the space between the first and second circles being occupied by the words and cypher "Chemist and Inventor."
