on east end of the north mole. The light will be about 14 feet above high-water mark, visible all round, and, at above date, distant from the green light on the breakwater 800 feet, the lights bearing from each other W.S.W. and E.N.E., between which lights is the entrance to the harbour.

Vessels entering should give the breakwater end a berth of at least 30 fathoms, keeping the two red buoys that are to the north and north-west of the breakwater, end on the starboard side 10 to 20 fathoms off.

The mole is being daily extended towards the breakwater, and the mole light will gradually tend more southerly from the breakwater light till the mole is completed, the lights then bearing from each other about S.W. $\frac{1}{4}$ W. and N.E. $\frac{1}{4}$ E.
