The following remarks apply only to the four principal boroughs:—

The births in May were 291 against 255 in April, an increase of 36. The deaths in May were 106 against 110 in April, a decrease of 4.

There were 7 deaths of persons of 65 years and upwards. Two males of 75 and 69, and a female of 77, died at Auckland; 2 males of 67, and 1 female of 70, at Wellington; and 1 male of 80 at Dunedin.

Specific Febrile or Zymotic Diseases.—The mortality from these diseases was the same as in the previous month of April. Typhoid fever was more fatal in May, the deaths having numbered 6 against 4 in the previous month, but there was, in accordance with expectation, a large decrease in deaths from diarrhoeal diseases, the number having fallen from 15 in April to 7 in May.

Constitutional Diseases.—There was a decrease in the mortality from these diseases on that of April, owing to the much smaller number of deaths from phthisis, which only amounted to 4 in May against 13 in April. Cancer, however, caused the comparatively large number of 7 deaths for the month against 3 in April.

Local Diseases.—These diseases caused slightly more deaths in May than in April. Of these, although the numbers of deaths from diseases of the nervous and circulatory systems were nearly the same in the two months, there was in May a marked increase in the deaths from diseases of the respiratory system, these having amounted to 14 in May against 9 in April.

Violent Deaths.—The deaths attributed to accident or violence numbered 7, of which 3 were from drowning, and 1 was suicidal. The deaths in this class numbered 4 in April.

The subjoined table shows the mortality for the last two months at each of these four boroughs from six principal specific febrile or zymotic diseases, and also the deaths from certain inflammatory diseases of the lungs. These causes of death have been distinguished from the others of the classes to which they belong, as being the most important special diseases which give rise to sudden increases in the death-rates of towns, and the prevalence of which is closely connected with sanitary condition and climatic influence of the season on health.
