The deaths of persons not residents of the boroughs, occurring at hospitals, have been excluded in all cases. The total births in the above boroughs amounted to 462, against 403 in December, an increase of 59. The deaths in January were 163, an increase of 11 on the number in December. Of the total deaths, males contributed 99; females, 64. Fifty-nine of the deaths were of children under 5 years of age, being 36-20 per cent. of the whole number; 47 of these were under 1 year of age.

* Population on the 1st January, 1899. Information necessary for calculating the population on the 1st January, 1890, has not yet been obtained from the Town Clerk. + It must be understood that the numbers of the population above given refer only to those within the several borough boundaries. To estimate the relative importance of the principal boroughs as centres of population it is necessary in each case to take into con-sideration the number of the population in the adjacent boroughs, some of which are included in the above table, and other districts which are practically suburbs of the central borough. This can only be done with any degree of accuracy for census years. The populations of the four principal boroughs and their suburbs in 1886 were as follows:---Aveled Borough Borough Borough (15,265)

The following remarks apply only to the four principal boroughs :— The births in January were 232, against 224 in December, an increase of 8. The deaths amounted to 96, against 84 in December. There were 12 deaths of persons of 65 years and upwards: 4 males of 81, 76 (2), and 74, and a female of 73, died at teckland; 3 males of 75, 73, and 66, and 2 females of 82 and 77, at Wellington; 1 male of 72 at Christchurch; and 1 male Auckland; 3 males of 75, 73, and 66, and 2 females of 82 and 77, at Wellington; 1 male of 72 at Christchurch; and 1 male of 67 at Dunedin. Specific Febrile or Zymotic Diseases.—The deaths in this class increased in number from 13 in December last to 17 in January. The increase is due to the greater mortality from diarrheed diseases, which caused 12 deaths in January, against 5 in the previous month. 7 of these deaths occurred at Auckland, all of children. Deaths from miasmatic diseases occurred only in Wellington in each month; but against 4 deaths from scarlet fever and scarlatina, and 1 from diphtheria in December, there were 2 deaths from scarlet fever in January. Diphtheria does not appear as a cause of death in the last month, but in each month there was I death from typhoid fever. Constitutional Diseases.—The mortality from these diseases was much greater in January than in December. Of these, cancer caused 7 deaths, against 5 in the earlier month. Phthisis gave an increase of 1—from 5 to 6; and the deaths from tuberculosis were more numerous by 2. The total increase in the number of deaths in the class was 7. Local Diseases.—These diseases caused 39 deaths, against 42 in December. Diseases of the nervous system were slightly less fatal; but there was an increase in the mortality from diseases of the circulatory system (heart disease, &c.) from 3 to 10 deaths. On the other hand, diseases of the respiratory system caused only 3 deaths, against 12 in the previous month, and there was a decrease of 7 in the number of deaths from diseases of the digestive system. Violent Deaths.—There were 7 deaths in this class, an increase of 2 on the number in the previous month. Of these deaths, 2 were caused by drowning (1 at Auckland and 1 at Wellington), and 1 was of a person at Dunedin run over by a tram-car.

deaths, 2 were caused by drowning (a with example a method and a model of the second of these four boroughs from six principal tram-car. The subjoined table shows the mortality for the last two months at each of these four boroughs from six principal specific febrile or zymotic diseases, and also the deaths from certain inflammatory diseases of the lungs. These causes of death have been distinguished from the others of the classes to which they belong as being the most important special diseases which give rise to sudden increases in the death-rates of towns, and the prevalence of which is closely connected with sanitary condition and climatic influence of the season on health.
