Wellington, 15th March, 1895.

TRANSLATION of the following Ordinance and regulations with regard to commercial dealings and intercourse within the Protectorate of the German New Guinea Company is here-with published for general information.

His German Majesty's Consul-General.

TRANSLATION.

Ordinance for the Protectorate of the German New Guinea Company, regulating the commercial dealings and intercourse of shipmasters not resident in the said Protectorate. The following rules are made under the authority of His Excellency the Chancellor of the Empire:—

Art. 1.—Shipmasters not resident but intending to trade within the Protectorate of the German New Guinea Company, either on their own behalf or in the employ of firms not resident within the said Protectorate, have, before starting their commercial operations, to enter one of the ports opened for foreign shipping (Articles 3 and 4 of the Customs Act of 30th June, 1888)* and to apply for a trading license within the said Protectorate. Commercial operations are not to be commenced before the said license has been granted. The dispositions of this Ordinance extend also to any other person on board any ship, not being the master of the same, intending to trade as heretofore explained.

Art. 2.—The said license is issued by the officer in charge at the port of entry only for a limited district, and for a limited period, and generally for six months. The Captain-General of the Protectorate defines for the time being the districts to be opened for foreign trade (Art. 1).

Art. 3.—The fee payable for such license is charged according to the tonnage of the vessel, viz.: For vessels of 50 tons register or under, a fee of 150 marks; for vessels of more than 50 tons, for every additional 25 tons or part thereof, an additional fee of 50 marks, but not exceeding 1,000 marks for any vessel. Licenses may be issued for a longer term than six months, but not exceeding one year. In such cases the fees are increased in proportion. The dispositions of the Ordinance of 13th January, 1887, permitting the pursuit of certain trades only after obtaining the consent of the Captain-General, and under observation of the restrictions imposed by him, are to remain in force. However, the Captain-General may in future authorise other officers to grant such licenses in his place.

Art. 4.—During the term of the license—1. Shipmasters may receive permission to export dutiable goods, especially copra purchased from the natives, without being obliged to comply with the formalities imposed by Article 11 of the Customs Ordinance for the Protectorate of the German New Guinea Company of 30th June, 1888, after paying a lump sum of money in place of the export duty: this payment to be additional to the license-fee (Art. 3). 2. In the event of repeated visits to the said Protectorate shipmasters may be exempted from entering each time one of the ports of entry, provided that they do not import dutiable or prohibited goods. The granting of this favour may be made dependent upon the observation of certain conditions, especially upon the entering into certain engagements or into a bond assuring the observation of existing Customs regulations. The directions given by the officer in charge at the port of entry in connection with the foregoing dispositions have to be inserted in the license.

Art. 5.—Shipmasters applying for such license have, at the request of the officer in charge at the port of entry, to allow the perusal of their ship's papers in so far as the perusal of the said papers might be required with regard to the issuing of the license. If members of the crew or any other person on board a vessel should have any disputes in their dealings with the natives the shipmaster has to present to the officer in charge who granted his license, as soon as possible, a detailed report exposing all the circumstances of the case, including a statement of the cause, the facts, and the result of the dispute, and describing with great exactness the locality where it took place. Shipmasters entering the port of residence of the said officer, or meeting him in some other place, have in such cases to lay their log-book before him.

Art. 6.—Shipmasters intending to trade with the natives are only allowed to carry on board such arms and ammunition as by directions of the officer in charge at the port of entry are required for the protection of the vessel and the ship's boats in case of expeditions. Any surplus of arms or ammunition has to be deposited with the said officer in charge until the vessel leaves the said Protectorate. Similar dispositions have to be observed with regard to dynamite, detonators, &c., whereof only such provisions may be carried on board as required for obtaining the supply of fish for the crew.

Art. 7.—Offences against the dispositions of this Ordinance are punishable either by imprisonment for any term not exceeding three months, or by confinement, or by fine not exceeding 3,000 marks, with or without imprisonment. The vessel, including its cargo, is liable for the payment of the fine and the costs of the proceedings, regardless of the ownership.

Art. 8.—Such license may be forfeited by order of the issuing officer in charge, if there were to appear sufficient proof for suspecting that the master or the crew, or any other person on board the ship have (1) either illegally injured or otherwise illused any native, (2) or supplied any native with arms, ammunition, explosives, spirits, or opium contrary to existing regulations. Besides, in the event of such acts being qualified as crimes or misdemeanours, judicial proceedings are to be instituted. Such license may also be forfeited if the shipmaster does not comply with the regulations of Article 5, alinea 2. The fees paid or deposited are not to be refunded, neither totally nor partially, after forfeiting the license. Appeals with regard to forfeited licenses have to be addressed to the Captain-General; however, further proceedings are not interrupted pending the result of such appeal.

Art. 9.—This Ordinance shall come into force on the 1st day of December, 1894.

The directors of the New Guinea Company.

BEEF BARRELS (PIÈGE) ROCKS, FRENCH PASS.

Marine Department,
Wellington, N.Z., 20th March, 1895.

DURING the recent survey of the Beef Barrels Reef (Piège) Current Basin, French Pass, by Mr. Perham, C.E., foul ground has been discovered in a S.W. by S. direction and in a S.E. by E. direction from the western rock of the Beef Barrels above water. These two patches of foul ground extend from the said rock three cables' length, in the shape of two arms, in the direction above stated. The depth of water on the foul ground is from 1 to 5 fathoms, from the rock towards the mainland. A buoy, painted red, has been placed a quarter mile S. by W. a quarter W. of the western Beef Barrel, and this buoy is moored midway between the two patches of foul ground, which are five cables apart, and is one cable's length south of a line running E. by N. and W. by S., connecting the extreme patches of foul ground. To avoid these dangers, vessels are recommended not to pass anything to the northward of midway between the Beef Barrels and the mainland.
