Dealing with the four metropolitan areas only, it is found that the inclusion of the suburban portions lowers the death-rate in each case.

	Death-rate per 1,000 of Population.
Auckland City	1.26
Auckland Metropolitan Area		1.07
Wellington City	1.12
Wellington Metropolitan Area		1.05
Christchurch City	1.31
Christchurch Metropolitan Area		1.17
Dunedin City	1.38
Dunedin Metropolitan Area		1.28

Including the suburban portions, Dunedin is the highest and Wellington the lowest.

Compared with September, 1917, 1918, and 1919, the results are—

	1917.	1918.	1919.	1920.
Auckland Metropolitan Area	0.76	1.26	1.08	1.07
Wellington Metropolitan Area	0.84	0.94	0.70	1.05
Christchurch Metropolitan Area	0.90	1.07	1.05	1.17
Dunedin Metropolitan Area	1.08	1.35	1.15	1.28

The total births registered for the four metropolitan areas amounted to 813, as against 797 in August—an increase of 16. The deaths in September were 472—a decrease of 50 as compared with the previous month. Of the total deaths males contributed 249, females 223. One hundred and two of the deaths were of children under five years of age, being 21.61 per cent. of the whole number. Sixty-one of these were under one year of age.

SUMMARY FOR THE MONTH OF AUGUST, 1920.

August was generally cold and unsettled, being more wintry in character than the two previous months. The most severe storm was the result of an intense westerly low-pressure area, the trough of which passed on the 26th, the barometer reading on that date at the Bluff being as low as 28.54 inches. West to south-west gales were experienced about this time, and very heavy seas occurred on the West Coast of the South Island. Minor disturbances of both antarctic and tropical origin were frequent during the month. Rainfall, in consequence, was above the average over most of the South Island and in all but the middle districts of the North.

D. C. BATES, Director.
