

THE
NEW ZEALAND GAZETTE
 EXTRAORDINARY.

Published by Authority.

WELLINGTON, THURSDAY, AUGUST 30, 1923.

Proroguing the General Assembly.

[L.S.]

JELlicoe, Governor-General.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the Parliament holden in the fifteenth and sixteenth years of the reign of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, intituled "An Act to grant a Representative Constitution to the Colony of New Zealand," it is, among other things, enacted that the Governor may, at his pleasure, prorogue the General Assembly of New Zealand :

And whereas by an Order in Council of the ninth day of September, one thousand nine hundred and seven, His Majesty was pleased to approve the draft of a Proclamation substituting the title of the Dominion of New Zealand for that of the Colony of New Zealand as the designation of the said Colony :

Now, therefore, I, John Rushworth, Viscount Jellicoe, Governor-General of the Dominion of New Zealand, in pursuance and exercise of the hereinbefore-recited power and authority, and of every other power and authority in this behalf enabling me, do hereby proclaim and declare that I do this day prorogue the General Assembly of New Zealand until Thursday, the twenty-ninth day of November, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, and the said General Assembly is hereby prorogued accordingly.

Given under the hand of His Excellency the Governor-General of the Dominion of New Zealand, and issued under the Seal of that Dominion, this 30th day of August, 1923.

RICHD. F. BOLLARD,
 Minister of Internal Affairs.

GOD SAVE THE KING !

The first part of the document discusses the general principles of the proposed system. It outlines the objectives and the scope of the project, which is aimed at improving the efficiency of the administrative process. The document is divided into several sections, each dealing with a specific aspect of the system.

The second part of the document provides a detailed description of the system's components. It includes a list of the various elements that make up the system, along with a brief explanation of their functions. This section is intended to provide a clear understanding of the system's structure and how it is organized.

The third part of the document describes the implementation process. It outlines the steps that need to be taken to put the system into operation, from the initial planning stage to the final evaluation. This section is crucial for ensuring that the system is implemented smoothly and effectively.

The fourth part of the document discusses the expected benefits of the system. It highlights the various advantages that the system offers, such as increased efficiency, reduced costs, and improved communication. This section is intended to convince the decision-makers that the system is a worthwhile investment.

The fifth part of the document provides a summary of the key points discussed in the document. It reiterates the main objectives and the benefits of the system, and concludes with a strong recommendation for the implementation of the system.

The sixth part of the document contains a list of references and a bibliography. This section provides a list of the sources used in the document, allowing the reader to verify the information and explore the topic further.

The seventh part of the document is a conclusion. It summarizes the main findings of the study and provides a final recommendation. The conclusion is based on the evidence presented in the document and is intended to provide a clear and concise answer to the research question.

The eighth part of the document is an appendix. It contains additional information that is not included in the main body of the document, such as tables, figures, and charts. This section is intended to provide a more detailed look at the data and to support the conclusions drawn in the document.

The ninth part of the document is a list of figures and tables. This section provides a list of the visual elements included in the document, along with a brief description of each. This section is intended to help the reader locate the information they need and to provide a clear overview of the visual content.