Section 6 of the Act is as follows:—

"(c) Passes or has passed an examination or examinations approved by the Board, and who satisfies the Board that he has had not less than three years' practical experience in engineering.

Precipitation at Karori Reservoir, near Kelburn, was 40 per cent. below the mean of previous years. Light hail fell on the 12th and lightning was seen on the 23rd. SUMMARY FOR THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY, 1931.

General.—The principal characteristics of the weather in February were low temperatures and an unusual amount of wind. There were several periods of strong northerly winds, which were followed by spells of southerlies. The latter, though not so severe, were unusually persistent for this time of year. Nevertheless, a number of beautifully fine days were experienced, and in some respects the month was more summerlike than its predecessors. Rainfall was generally below normal in the North Island and Nelson, and above it over the remainder of the South Island. The cold weather and some very dry spells at critical periods have had an adverse effect on wheat crops and the growth of vegetation, generally, has been retarded. Except in the Hawke's Bay and Gisborne districts, however, pastures are in fair condition and stock are doing well.

Rainfall.—The total falls were much below average in the northern and eastern parts of the North Island. In Taranaki the deficits were less marked, and a few places had more than the normal. In the South Island the Nelson Province generally had less than the average, but heavy rains on the 22nd considerably relieved the situation. Hokitika and parts of North Canterbury also had rather less than the average. Elsewhere there was an excess, and the southern half of the South Island experienced a very wet month.

Temperatures.—As already stated, the month was unusually cool. Temperatures were much below normal in all parts of the Dominion. In some places it was the coldest February on record. Numbers of places experienced one or more frosts.

Pressure Systems.—From the 1st to the 3rd a series of westerly depressions passed. Northerly gales blew in places on the 2nd. In Cook Strait some high velocities were reached. Heavy rain fell on the West Coast of the South Island, Harihari experiencing a very heavy flood.

A southerly spell followed, and an anticyclone moved slowly across the Dominion. From the 6th to the 10th the weather was mostly fine, though still rather cool.

Another westerly depression passed rapidly during the night of the 11th, and was followed by strong southerlies and very cold and showery weather. Heavy rain fell in eastern districts of the South Island on the 12th, and the ranges received a fall of snow. On the 13th there were widespread thunder and hail storms, which were particularly severe in the southern half of the Auckland Province.

On the 15th a dying cyclone crossed the Auckland Peninsula, causing thunderstorms and heavy rain, though southern districts were unaffected. Otherwise anticyclonic conditions and fair weather were the rule until the 19th. Thereafter a further series of westerly depressions was responsible for a period of very stormy weather. On the 22nd northerly gales were widespread and heavy rain was almost general. A cyclonic centre developed west of Greymouth, and exceptionally heavy rain occurred as it moved eastward; 12.50 in. fell at Greymouth in about twelve hours, constituting the heaviest fall ever recorded there. Arthur's Pass had 11.32 in. During the 23rd and 24th the winds backed again to cold, strong southerlies. Hail and thunderstorms were reported from many places on the 23rd, and on the 24th there was a heavy snowfall on the ranges of the South Island.

From the 25th onward the weather improved under the influence of another intense anticyclone.
