NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR JULY, 1936.

General.—July preserved the character of the preceding portion of this year for a prevalence of fine and mild weather interspersed with phenomena of record-breaking intensity. Though temperatures were below normal and hard frosts were numerous, especially in the North Island, stock and vegetation do not appear to have suffered to any extent. Stock, indeed, are almost everywhere reported to be in good condition, and ample feed is available. Vegetation seems to be further advanced than usual, there being signs of growth, particularly in the leaf-buds of trees. Spring flowers, also, are commencing to bloom. Grass has not grown much, but retains satisfactory condition. Farm work is well in hand, principally owing to earlier fine weather. In heavy soils, however, the ground is waterlogged and cultivation at a standstill. The cold spell which was setting in at the end of the month may prove to be the cause of some damage. Fogs were unusually prevalent.

Rainfall.—In the North Island, though the rainfall was in general above average, there were numerous exceptions. Thus, the Auckland Province, from Russell southward to Tauranga, received less than the normal amount. So, also, did parts of Taranaki and Hawke's Bay. In the South Island Nelson and the West Coast had somewhat less than normal, but elsewhere the month was a very wet one. Numbers of places in Otago had double the average fall. Wet days were more numerous than usual, the only spell of settled weather occurring in the third week.

Temperatures.—Temperatures were everywhere below the normal for July. In western districts from Taranaki southwards the departures were generally only slight, but in most of the rest of the country they were somewhat over a degree. The South Island experienced frosts in approximately the average number and intensity. In the North Island, however, from one end to the other they were unusually numerous and sharp. At this time of year and in the fine and relatively windless weather in which they occurred, they were responsible for little damage. There is a considerable amount of snow on the mountains.

Sunshine.—In general, the amount of sunshine did not differ greatly from the average, and there was no marked general trend in the departures. Of two places rather near each other, one would have rather more and one rather less than normal. Tauranga had 177.4 hours, Nelson 164.9, and Napier 158.8 hours.

Pressure Systems.—The weather of the first week was very unsettled with general rain on most days. Violent storms passed on the 3rd and on the morning of the 6th. On the 3rd there were westerly gales over the North Island and south-westerlies in the South. Snow fell to low levels on the ranges, and there were numerous hailstorms. A few severe thunderstorms, also, were recorded. On the 4th a cyclone, which had been causing bad weather in south-eastern Australia, was advancing across the Tasman Sea. On the 5th it suddenly deepened and advanced rapidly on to the South Island. Several secondary depressions followed it, causing the pressure to fall still further. Early on the morning of the 6th barometers at the Bluff and in the vicinity reached the record low level for New Zealand of 28.33 in. Though not so low elsewhere, the readings in many places transgressed all previous records. From the 5th to the 6th severe westerly gales were experienced in most parts of the country. The rain was heavy, and in a few places moderate flooding occurred. Numerous hail and sleet showers were again reported, with snow down to low levels on the hills.

After strong southerly winds on the 7th, which in places reached gale force, fine weather ruled in most places until the 16th. Pressure over the Dominion was generally high.

Another rather severe storm approached from the Tasman Sea on the 16th, and by the time the disturbance had finally passed on the 21st heavy rains had fallen everywhere. A certain amount of flooding occurred at Whakatane, and in Taranaki, Marlborough, and Otago. Northerly gales blew on the 18th and 19th about and north of Cook Strait. Otherwise, from the 19th till the end of the month, there was a strong prevalence of southerly winds.

On the 27th a cyclone approached from the west, and in the following days, as it passed, caused heavy and general rains. On the 30th southerly gales set in and continued till the 1st August. On the 31st snow was falling in eastern districts of the South Island, with hail and sleet in many other parts.

Notice to Mariners No. 39 of 1936.

Marine Department,
Wellington, N.Z., 25th August, 1936.

WEATHER REPORTS.

ALL vessels within range of the New Zealand W/T stations, and not more than 1,000 miles from the coast, are requested to furnish daily weather reports to the New Zealand Meteorological Service. The messages should be addressed to "Weather Wellington" through the normal commercial channels and despatched as soon as possible after the making of the observations. The International Ships' Wireless Weather Telegraphy Code, Copenhagen, 1929, as modified at Warsaw in 1935, should be used. The coded message consists of six or seven groups of five figures, and may be given in one of the three following forms, the first four groups being common to all. They are as follows:—

- (i) YQLLL 111GG DDFww PPVTT 3CLCMCHN
t₄KdWN_h d₅fabb
(ii) YQLLL 111GG DDFww PPVTT 6KdCN t₄d₅AWCH
(iii) YQLLL 111GG DDFww PPVTT 9SKdW CNNhAtd

The letters have the significance of those adopted with the Copenhagen Code except that (a) Y replaces P for the figure representing the day of the week, (b) PP are used instead of BB for pressure, (c) N_h replaces N_L and (d) there are slight alterations in the codes for ww and W. These changes are to be introduced officially as from 1st January, 1937.

Of the three forms of the code, that preferred is the third one in which the supplementary groups begin with the figure 9. For reporting to the New Zealand Meteorological Service it is requested observations be made at 2100 G.M.T. Reports of 0300 G.M.T. observations would also be appreciated. Those vessels which find observations at these times impossible, but which make them at the universal times, should report both the 1800 and 0000 G.M.T. observations.
