NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR FEBRUARY, 1945

General.—February was a dull unsettled month. The general westerly wind movement was weak, a condition favouring the development of depressions. Rain was exceptionally heavy in the South Island. Falls commencing in the south-west about the 16th and continuing on the east coast to the 21st produced flooding in streams and serious rises in all the rivers. Surface flooding occurred in many areas, but the most extensive was in South Canterbury, where the inundations were the worst for many decades. Growth everywhere has been exceptional, and for the North Island conditions on the whole have been favourable to farming interests. High humidities, however, have encouraged various blights. The poor sunshine of this summer has had a bad effect on many South Island crops and pastures.

Rainfall.—The only places with less than average rainfall were parts of the Auckland Peninsula, the Bay of Plenty - East Cape area, most of the Manawatu, and near Invercargill. Excesses in the North Island were mostly moderate, but Wellington City and most of the South Island, with the exception of Southland, had at least double the average rain. Throughout Canterbury and northern Otago most totals exceeded three times the average and were over six times the average near Orari, where 11.84 inches fell on the 20th and 21st.

Mean Temperatures.—Temperatures were relatively uniform throughout the month, and mean values did not depart very much from normal. In the west and south of the South Island, however, several places were 1° or 2° F. above normal.

Sunshine.—Sunshine totals were above average in Hawke's Bay and Auckland Provinces and considerably so in North Auckland. Elsewhere sunshine was deficient. For most of Wellington Province and the South Island values were at least an hour a day below average, and for parts of Canterbury the daily deficiency was over two hours.

Weather Sequence.—Freshening north-westerlies ahead of a trough gave rain in and west of the high country of the South Island late on the 1st. A temporary improvement followed, but with a depression crossing south-eastward over the South Island and the trough moving eastward across the North Island on the 3rd.

Most districts had some rain, heaviest in the west. During the 4th conditions improved from the south and west and an anticyclone was over New Zealand on the 5th. A frontal zone reached Southland late on the 6th and moved off Auckland by the 9th. It brought heavy rain to Westland and moderate amounts to other districts and was followed by a southerly change. During the 8th an anticyclone extended on to the South Island, where conditions improved. As a result of a small depression forming over Taranaki late on the 8th a shallow low-pressure area remained over the North Island until the 12th, with scattered but occasionally heavy rains. A small low from the north caused heavy rain in the Gisborne region on the 10th and this rain band shifted gradually, finally affecting South Canterbury on the 12th.

Scattered but decreasing rains were occurring in many districts, but on the 14th the low-pressure area was filling up east of the South Island, while an anticyclone to the north was intensifying. The 15th was a fine day generally. Following the north-eastward shift of the anticyclone cloud increased in the south, and south Westland had heavy rain on the 16th. Thereafter occasional rains occurred in Westland, Otago, and Southland.

On the 19th a cold front was advancing slowly over Otago, with an anticyclone located to the south-west. A depression which was north-west of Westland moved south-eastward past Banks Peninsula during the 21st. Until then very heavy falls occurred in and west of the Alps, and the strong south-easterly change as it progressed very slowly from east Otago to mid-Canterbury had a band of steady rain, the resulting falls being exceptionally heavy in South Canterbury. The cold front was accelerating after passing Canterbury, and thereafter the period of heavy rain was much less protracted. By the 23rd the anticyclone covered all the South Island, where it had become fine and, as the anticyclone moved slowly north-eastward, conditions were settled generally. During the 27th a deterioration commenced, there being a deep depression off south-western New Zealand, towards which another low was advancing from the north. Strong northerlies brought considerable rain to western districts, south Westland having very heavy falls once again, and flooding occurred in the Takaka region.

M. A. F. BARNETT, Director.

Firstly, to amend The Christ's College (Canterbury) Act, 1910, by the addition of a new section to empower the said Christ's College (Canterbury) (hereinafter called "the College") to amalgamate in one fund for investment purposes all the funds, securities, and lands which now are or may at any time hereafter be vested in the College in trust for or for the benefit of the College and whether held for the general purposes of the College or for the foundation or maintenance of any scholarships, professorships, exhibitions, bursaries, or prizes, or otherwise for the benefit of or in connection with the College (but without otherwise in any way modifying or altering the trusts upon which the said funds, investments, and lands are held), and prescribing the terms and conditions upon and subject to which such funds, investments, and lands may be amalgamated. The Bill excludes from the proposed amalgamation:—

(a) The lands used for the purpose of the College and any lands which may hereafter be acquired for the same purposes:

- (b) Any funds, investments, or lands hereafter given, devised, or bequeathed by any donor or testator upon terms which forbid inclusion in such amalgamated fund :
- (c) Any funds, investments, or lands which may hereafter be given, devised, or bequeathed to the College which the governing body of the College do not wish to include in the amalgamated fund :
- (d) Income accrued and uncollected at date of amalgamation, i.e., 31st day of January, 1945.

Secondly, to provide for payment of the costs and expenses of promotion of the Bill.

Printed copies of the Bill will be deposited in the Private Bill Office in Wellington not earlier than thirty days before and not later than fourteen days after the commencement of the next ensuing session of Parliament.
