1. (1) This Order may be cited as the Minimum Weekly Wage (Essential Undertakings) Order 1945.

(2) The Minimum Weekly Wage (Essential Undertakings) Order 1942 (No. 2)† is hereby revoked.

2. This Order shall apply with respect to every undertaking that is for the time being an essential undertaking within the meaning of Part III of the Industrial Man-power Emergency Regulations 1944: Provided, however, that nothing contained herein shall apply to any worker in respect to his employment pursuant to the Essential Building Works Labour Legislation Modification Order 1943‡.

3. (1) In its application to any undertaking that was an essential undertaking on the 1st day of May, 1945, this Order shall be deemed to have come into force on the 1st day of May, 1945.

(2) In its application to any other undertaking, this Order shall come into force on the date on which the undertaking was or is declared to be an essential undertaking.

4. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Order, every worker who is employed in an undertaking to which this Order applies shall, in respect of every week during the period of his or her employment, be entitled to a minimum weekly payment of an amount equivalent to his or her ordinary weekly wage: Provided that—

(a) Where the ordinary weekly wage of an adult male worker exceeds £6, the minimum weekly payment to which he is entitled under this Order shall be £6:

(b) Where the ordinary weekly wage of an adult female worker, other than one to whom paragraph (d) hereof applies, exceeds £3 2s. 6d., the minimum weekly payment to which she is entitled under this Order shall be £3 2s. 6d.:

(d) Where any award, agreement, order, or regulation requires that a junior worker or an adult female worker shall be paid wages at the rate prescribed for an adult male worker and the ordinary weekly wage for such worker exceeds £6, the minimum weekly payment to which he or she is entitled under this Order shall be £6.

(2) The foregoing proviso of this clause shall not apply to any worker in respect of any week if he or she is entitled otherwise than under this Order to receive a higher minimum weekly payment that week.

5. For the purposes of this Order—

(a) "Ordinary weekly wage" means the wage that would be payable to the worker at ordinary time rates for working during the week the hours prescribed as ordinary working-hours under the relevant award or industrial agreement, or where the employment is not subject to any award or industrial agreement the hours prescribed as ordinary working-hours by the worker's contract of service:

(b) Where no ordinary time rate is fixed under the terms of the worker's employment, the ordinary time rate of the worker shall be deemed to be the ordinary time rate for the same class of work fixed by the award or agreement in force in the district nearest to the locality where the worker is employed or, where there is no such award or agreement in force in New Zealand, such ordinary time rate as may be determined in any case by the Minister of Labour:

(c) "Overtime, bonus, or other special payment" means any amount actually earned by any worker in respect of any day in excess of the appropriate daily proportion:

(d) "Appropriate daily proportion" means, in respect of each day, the amount that would be payable to the worker if he were paid at ordinary time rates for the number of hours actually worked by him in that day up to the number prescribed as the maximum to be worked in that day without payment of overtime.

In computing the minimum weekly payment no account shall be taken of any overtime, bonus, or other special payment, and the worker shall be entitled to receive in addition to the minimum weekly payment any overtime, bonus, or other special payment earned by him: Provided that where payment is made for a day allowed as a holiday the worker shall be deemed to have actually worked on that day the number of hours for which payment is made on account of that holiday, and such number of hours shall for the purposes of paragraph (d) of clause 5 be deemed to be the number prescribed as the maximum to be worked in that day without payment of overtime.

7. (1) The right of any worker to receive in respect of any week the minimum weekly payment hereinbefore fixed shall, in addition to the conditions prescribed by Regulation 13 of the Industrial Man-power Emergency Regulations 1944, be subject to the following further conditions:—

(a) That the worker on each working-day in that week reported for work at his or her usual place of employment, or at such other place as the employer may have directed, at the time at which the worker usually reported for work, or took such other steps to ascertain whether his or her services were required on that day as may have been agreed to by the employer; and

(b) That the worker during that week performed his or her work with due diligence and with proper skill and care, and complied with all the terms and conditions of his or her employment, whether prescribed by an award or agreement, or otherwise; and

(ii) Leave of absence to which the worker was entitled under the terms of his or her employment, or leave of absence granted by or on behalf of the employer,— on more than one working-day, or (if the total number of hours worked by him or her during that period of six weeks exceeded his or her weekly hours for that period by not less than 20 per cent.) for more than three working-days.

(2) In respect of any undertaking in which it is customary to close down for a particular period at Easter or at Christmas or at New Year, no day within any such period shall be regarded as a working-day for the purposes of paragraph (c) of subclause (1) of this clause, unless the undertaking is duly required to open and to operate on that day by direction of a Controller for the time being in office as a Controller, whether under the Supply Control Emergency Regulations 1939§ or under any other emergency regulations.

8. (1) For the purposes of this Order, every worker who is not a junior worker shall be deemed to be an adult worker, and, except as may be otherwise provided in any award or industrial agreement under the Industrial Conciliation and Arbitration Act, 1925, or in any agreement under the Labour Disputes Investigation Act, 1913, or in any other agreement, every worker who has not attained the age of twenty-one years shall be deemed to be a junior worker.

(2) Where a female worker is employed in substitution for and is performing the work and receiving the remuneration of an adult male worker she shall for the purposes of this Order be deemed to be an adult male worker.

NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR MAY, 1945

General.—May was a cold, dull month with frequent rain. Conditions have been rather hard on stock, and some feeding out was started in most districts. The ground is very wet and waterlogged, and outdoor farm activities have been hindered.

Rainfall.—May is usually a rather wet month for the North Island and totals this year were above average, there being a few localized exceptions, chiefly near Whangarei, New Plymouth, and Hastings. Between Clarence and Southland totals were all very excessive, often being twice to treble the average, but near Port Hills and Little River they were over four times the average. On the other hand Westland was much drier than usual, and most of Nelson and Marlborough had deficiencies.

Some of the more noteworthy rainfalls which occasioned flooding may be mentioned. The 17th was very wet about the Bay of Plenty, with numerous falls over 5 in. At Matarau, Hicks Bay, there was 7.77 in., followed by 2.70 in. on the 18th, while at Katoa, East Cape, the falls on these days were about 8.20 in. and 1.21 in. respectively. At Little River on the 18th, 19th, and 20th the falls were 5.34, 7.57, and 4.89 in., these being the major contributions to the total of 24.51 in., which exceeded by 4 in. the total for May, 1934, which was hitherto the record of any month during its thirty years of records. The Dunedin area received falls of about 3 in. on the 19th.

Temperature.—Mean temperatures were about 2° F. cooler than average. There were some sharp frosts in nearly all districts. The final days were especially cold, and considerable snow fell on the ranges. The 29th was a very bleak day.

Sunshine.—While sunshine totals were near normal in Auckland and Napier, in most places it was a very dull month. The lack of sunshine was most noticeable in Taranaki, the Manawatu, Canterbury, Otago, and Southland.

Weather Sequence.—With an anticyclone to the north at first, the weather was mostly fine and cool; but in the south-west there were a few showers, which increased to rain as a depression passed nearby on the 2nd. Then a cold front advanced north-eastward, bringing a change from strong north-westerlies to westerly or south-westerly winds and rain to most places, amounts being only slight east of the ranges. Behind a secondary cold front on the 4th and 5th winds turned more southerly with showery conditions, including scattered hail or snow. Bright intervals soon increased, and the 7th and 8th were settled with widespread frosts, while an anticyclone passed slowly westward.

North-easterlies gradually strengthened and gave heavy rain over Auckland Peninsula early on the 10th, and as an extensive depression moved slowly south-eastward across the North Island there was rain at times in central and southern districts. A secondary depression which moved from Auckland to east of Hawke's Bay on the 13th gave further rain, especially on the east coast south of its path. From the 14th to the 16th a pressure col was over New Zealand, and there was much cloud with some fog or drizzle in the South Island.

The 17th to the 20th was a very unsettled period. On the 17th a depression was off Taranaki, while a more vigorous one was moving south-eastward towards Auckland. Dull conditions were general, with some very heavy rains in all eastern districts north of Canterbury, flooding occurring mostly in the Bay of Plenty and Urawera districts. By the 19th the first centre was off Canterbury and another over the middle of the North Island. Southerlies, which were generally strong, increased to gale force south of Christchurch, with intense rain in coastal regions. Flooding was particularly severe at Little River, and also serious at Taieri and Dunedin, but damage occurred in intermediate localities. During the 20th conditions improved from the south and west as the depression moved eastward and an anticyclone over the Tasman Sea was extending on to the South Island. On the 21st and 22nd showers were only isolated and mainly brief.

An anticyclone centred off northern New Zealand gave fairly settled weather from the 23rd to the 25th. Thereafter, with a stationary and extensive anticyclone over south-eastern Australia, changeable and very cold south-westerly conditions persisted. A cold front crossed the country on the 26th. During the 27th a vigorous orographical depression formed over Canterbury and was swept along in the strong squally south-westerly wind current. Ahead of it there were some westerly gales, strongest about Taranaki and South Auckland, and with its passage there were sharp showers of rain, hail, or snow. After a cold front on the 28th winds turned more southerly, and, while conditions were settled west of the Alps, elsewhere spells of very wintry showers continued. Conditions were much improved during the 31st.
