Validating in Part a Third-party Notice Served on the Auckland Harbour Board after Due Date

B. C. FREYBERG, Governor-General
ORDER IN COUNCIL

At the Government House at Wellington, this 27th day of July, 1949

Present :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL IN COUNCIL

WHEREAS Frederick Vincent Ward, of Auckland, Driver (hereinafter referred to as the plaintiff), by Writ of Summons and Statement of Claim issued out of the Supreme Court of New Zealand, Auckland Registry, under No. 207/48, on the thirteenth day of August, one thousand nine hundred and forty-eight, commenced an action against the Auckland Harbour Board (hereinafter referred to as the Board), claiming damages in respect of injuries alleged to have been caused by negligence of the Board, its servants, or agents on the sixteenth day of February, one thousand nine hundred and forty-eight, at Auckland :

And whereas an Order was made in the Supreme Court of New Zealand, at Auckland, on the eighth day of October, one thousand nine hundred and forty-eight, that Penrose Transport Company, Limited (hereinafter referred to as the company), the employer of the plaintiff, be added as a defendant to the said action :

And whereas on the said eighth day of October, one thousand nine hundred and forty-eight, the plaintiff filed an amended statement of claim wherein he alleged that the negligence in respect of which he claimed damages was that of the mobile crane-driver who was at the time the employee, servant, or agent either of the Board or of the company :

And whereas in its statement of defence to the said amended statement of claim the Board alleged as a defence thereto that the plaintiff had not given to it a notice of intention to commence his said action one month before the same was commenced as required by section two hundred and forty-eight of the Harbour's Act, 1923 :

And whereas on the twenty-fourth day of January, one thousand nine hundred and forty-nine, the plaintiff discontinued his said action as against the Board and filed and served upon the company a further amended statement of claim wherein he alleged new grounds of negligence on the part of the company, its employees, servants, or agents :

And whereas the company, being in doubt whether it was required by section two hundred and forty-eight of the Harbours Act, 1923, to give the Board notice of its intention to issue a third-party notice pursuant to the Code of Civil Procedure of the Supreme Court of New Zealand against the Board, gave to the Board written notice on the twenty-eighth day of February, one thousand nine hundred and forty-nine, of its intention to issue a third-party notice claiming contribution from the Board in respect of the plaintiff's claim for damages on the grounds set out in the said written notice :

And whereas on the twenty-first day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-nine, an Order was made by the Supreme Court of New Zealand, at Auckland, giving to the company leave to issue out of that Court such a third-party notice against the Board :

And whereas by misadventure notice of intention to issue the said third-party notice was not given and the said third-party notice was not issued and served at and within the times respectively referred to in section two hundred and forty-eight of the said Act for notice and commencement of an action against a Harbour Board, and therefore if compliance with the provisions of the said section is requisite in the case of such third-party notice the issue and service of the said third-party notice is invalid :

Now, therefore, for the purpose of resolving any doubts, and in pursuance and exercise of the powers and authorities vested in him by section two hundred and fifty-six of the Harbours Act, 1923, and of all other powers and authorities enabling him in that behalf, His Excellency the Governor-General, acting by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council, doth hereby order and declare that the said notice of intention to issue the said third-party notice, and the said third-party notice itself, shall be deemed for the purposes of section two hundred and forty-eight of the Harbours Act, 1923, to be and at all times to have been valid and to have been respectively given, issued, and served in accordance with the provisions of the said section two hundred and forty-eight so far as the same relate to the claim of the company to contribution from the Board in respect of any amount by which any damages which may be recovered by the plaintiff against the company in the said action may exceed the amount of compensation which may have been paid or be payable by the company under the Workers' Compensation Act, 1922, and its amendments, in respect of the plaintiff's said injuries and for which the company may have a right of contribution or indemnity in a proceeding duly instituted by it against the Board; the intent of this Order in Council being to leave for determination by the Supreme Court of New Zealand in the said action, as if this Order in Council had not been made, the question whether, and, if so, to what extent, the Company is entitled also to contribution from or indemnity by the Board in respect of such compensation as aforesaid.

T. J. SHERRARD,
Clerk of the Executive Council.

NOTE.—At stations where departures from normal are in parentheses the record has been maintained for less than ten years in the case of temperatures and for less than twenty years in the case of rainfall and the normals are partly interpolated.

NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR JUNE, 1949

General.—June was a mild month with very unsettled weather. Although rain was frequent and some places had a record number of rain days, the total rainfall was not unduly high. Grass growth was unusually good for a winter month, and autumn-sown crops have also done well. Stock remained in excellent condition, but in the far south the land has been too wet for cultivation.

Rainfall.—Rainfall was below average in Western Otago, North Canterbury, Gisborne, and the greater part of Auckland and Westland. At Milford Sound it was the driest June since records commenced in 1929. For the rest of the country the departure was positive. The coastal area from Dunedin to Timaru had over double the average rainfall; in Dunedin itself it was the wettest June for over thirty-five years. Many stations in western and northern districts of the North Island recorded rain on at least twenty-five days. At Te Aroha, though rain fell on twenty-eight days—the highest in any month for over sixty years—the total rainfall did not reach the average.

Temperatures.—Apart from a small section of mid-Canterbury mean temperatures were appreciably above normal, especially about the Manawatu and National Park districts. In general western districts were slightly milder than eastern districts. Frosts were generally fewer in number (except in Canterbury) and less severe than is usual in June.

Sunshine.—The duration of bright sunshine was appreciably below normal in Southland, Westland, Nelson, Taranaki, and South Auckland; elsewhere the anomalies were small.

Weather Sequences.—A ridge of high pressure followed the departure of a shallow depression and south-westerlies prevailed. It remained showery in the west and south, but the weather soon cleared elsewhere.

On the 4th an active disturbance which had come from the Queensland coast was advancing eastwards across the Tasman Sea. Winds turned north-easterly and rain spread rapidly over the North Island and the northern part of the South Island. On the frontal system associated with the disturbance several wave depressions formed, one of which crossed the North Island on the night of the 5th. The main centre was over Taranaki on the 7th, and east of Gisborne on the 8th.

A spell of cold south-westerly weather followed. In districts sheltered from the south-west, such as Bay of Plenty, Wellington, Hawkes Bay, and much of Marlborough and Canterbury, the weather was typical of such situations, that is, fine generally but interrupted at infrequent intervals by brief showers during the passage of secondary cold fronts. Elsewhere in the more exposed districts showers were frequent and heavy, with winds at times reaching gale force. Snow fell on the high country and some light falls extended down to sea-level in Otago and Southland on the 15th. When the south-westerly flow diminished in strength after the 16th, showers became gradually less frequent.

A ridge of high pressure which had been on the way across the Tasman Sea since the 13th passed over New Zealand on the 20th. It was closely followed by the occlusion accompanying a depression which had earlier produced widespread floods in New South Wales. Winds swung to the north-east and rain spread rapidly south-eastwards over the country. There was a change to north-westerlies in the North Island on the 21st, and a temporary southerly change in the south after the low-pressure centre had crossed to the east on the 22nd. By that time a new and extensive depression covering the Tasman Sea was advancing towards the South Island, while a wedge of high pressure extended from Eastern Australia to the south of New Zealand. The weather remained very unsettled. On the 23rd and 24th cold easterly winds produced widespread heavy rains in coastal districts of Otago and South Canterbury with some snow inland. In its dying stages the depression passed slowly southwards over Southland on the 26th.

After widespread fogs in Otago and Canterbury on the morning of the 27th, the weather improved in the east and north. In the north, however, there was a rapid deterioration again on the 29th and general rain fell over the Auckland and Hawkes Bay Provinces during the passage of a fast-moving depression which passed south-eastwards across the East Cape on the 30th.
