COMPENSATION FOR LOSS OF OR DAMAGE TO SERVICE KIT AND PERSONAL EFFECTS

977. In these regulations, unless the context otherwise requires,

981. Every claimant for compensation under these regulations shall, on making his claim, enter into an undertaking in the prescribed form to the effect—

- (a) That, in the event of compensation being awarded to him under these regulations in respect of any article, he will, if required, refund to the Crown any amount recovered by him in respect of that article under any policy of insurance (less the premium required to restore the policy to its original cover value), and also any amount recovered by him from any other person in respect of that article, but so that the total amount refunded does not exceed the amount or value of the compensation awarded; and
- (b) That, in the event of any article being recovered after compensation has been awarded in respect of its loss, he will, subject to Regulation 988 hereof, forthwith return to the Army Department the article issued in replacement thereof or reimburse that Department with the value of the article so issued, or, as the case may be, refund the amount of compensation paid in respect of the article so recovered.

985. Where any damaged articles of uniform, regulation kit, equipment, or personal effects are considered by the investigating officers to be unserviceable, compensation may, subject to these regulations and on the recommendation of the investigating officers, be paid as if the damaged articles had been completely destroyed, instead of being paid only in respect of the damage.

986. Where an officer or soldier who has made a claim for compensation under these regulations is discharged before the claim has been satisfied, whether by payment or by replacement, a report of the circumstances shall be forwarded by his commanding officer to Army Headquarters for consideration and for any necessary adjustment in assessing the compensation (if any).

987. Where an officer or soldier who has made a claim for compensation under these regulations dies before the claim has been satisfied, no compensation shall be payable in respect of any articles of uniform, regulation kit, or equipment:

"Provided that if the claimant has incurred expenditure in replacing any such articles, a refund of the amount so expended may, subject to these regulations, be awarded to the personal representatives of the claimant.

"Provided that, if the article so recovered is in a damaged condition, the officer or soldier may claim compensation in respect of that damage at any time within thirty days after the date of its recovery.

"989. The procedure to be followed in making a claim for compensation under these regulations, the information to be included in any such claim, the procedure by investigating officers on completion of their investigation of a claim, the method of assessment of compensation, whether by payment or by replacement, and the conditions to apply to the awarding and satisfaction of compensation, shall be as prescribed by Army Standing Orders."

Of 180 pages, the book is divided into three parts—cash benefits, health benefits, and finance. Each subject is dealt with in detail and there is a comprehensive index.

The book will undoubtedly be of considerable interest to those interested in social security and social services, and will be especially valuable to University students.

Copies have been sent to the principal newspapers and magazines for review.
