Japan—Restoration of Patent and Related Rights (Including Claims for Priority) of New Zealand Nationals

APPPLICATIONS may now be made by nationals of states at war with Japan for the restoration in Japan of patents, utility models, and design registrations (including applications) which lapsed or were invalidated or sequestrated after the 7th December, 1941.

If the original grant or registration is restored and no application made for extension of its normal term, the proprietor will be permitted to claim compensation in respect of any use from the 7th December, 1941, to the date of restoration. Alternatively, if the proprietor elects to accept an extension equivalent to the period during which he was unable to exercise his normal rights, he will be required to waive his claim to compensation in respect of any use occurring between the 7th December, 1941, and the date of restoration.

Applications for patents in Japan may also be made claiming priority of date based, in the case of New Zealand nationals, on a first application for a patent made not earlier than the 7th December, 1940. Third parties who have used the subject-matter of a patent granted on such an application between the priority date and the 1st February, 1951, will not be liable to action for infringement in respect of such use, provided they can prove that their knowledge of the invention was independently obtained. They may in such cases continue to use the invention on terms to be arranged with the patentee.

These restoration and application arrangements are covered by Japanese Cabinet Orders, and applications by New Zealand nationals under the provisions of the Orders must be made before the 1st February, 1951, to the New Zealand Government Trade Representative, care of Headquarters, British Commonwealth Sub Area, Tokyo, Japan, for transmission to the Japanese authorities.

Copy of the Japanese Cabinet Orders and other relevant documents, together with specimen copies of the forms prescribed for making applications to the Japanese authorities under the Orders, may be consulted at the Patent Office during ordinary office hours.

Dated this 19th day of September, 1950.

T. CLIFTON WEBB,
Minister in Charge of the Patent Office.

Japan—Restoration of Trade-mark Rights (Including Claims for Priority) of New Zealand Nationals

APPLICATIONS may now be made by nationals of states at war with Japan for the restoration and reinstatement in Japan of trade-mark registrations (including applications, demands for trials and appeals against rejection of claims for registration) which have been cancelled or invalidated or have lapsed by circumstances arising out of the war.

Upon restoration these rights will remain in force for a period equivalent to the period of protection to which they were entitled at the outbreak of hostilities.

Applicants for the registration of trade-marks in Japan may claim priority of date based on the first application for a trade-mark registration made not earlier than the 8th June, 1941.

Application may also be made for the cancellation of the registration of trade-marks in Japan, if the registered marks are so similar to the marks or names of nationals of states at war with Japan as to cause confusion. In the case of New Zealand nationals such applications must come within the scope of the following conditions:—

- (a) That the registration is so similar to the trade-mark or trade name of the New Zealand national as to cause confusion to the public.
- (b) That the registered trade-mark is used on merchandise which is identical with or similar to that on which the New Zealand national uses his trade-mark or trade name.
- (c) That the trade-mark or trade name of the New Zealand national is well-known in Japan.
- (d) That the trade-mark or trade name of the New Zealand national was used by him in any country prior to the date of application for registration in Japan of the trade-mark sought to be cancelled.

These arrangements are covered by a Japanese Cabinet Order, and applications by New Zealand nationals under the provisions of the Order must be made by the 1st February, 1951, to the New Zealand Government Trade Representative, care of Headquarters, British Commonwealth Sub Area, Tokyo, Japan, for transmission to the Japanese authorities.

A copy of the Japanese Cabinet Order and other relevant documents, together with specimen copies of the forms prescribed for making applications to the Japanese authorities under the Order, may be consulted at the Patent Office during ordinary office hours.

Dated this 19th day of September, 1950.

NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR AUGUST, 1950

General.—August is normally a month of changeable weather and the past month was no exception. Although on the whole temperatures were about normal, two spells of clear, frosty weather had the effect of retarding early seasonal growth of crops and pastures. Cold rain towards the end of the month caused many deaths among young lambs, especially in South Canterbury.

Rainfall.—In Canterbury and North Otago rainfall was more than twice the normal, most of it falling within the last few days. In the Waitaki-Waimate district it was the wettest August for over 40 years. There was a small deficiency in Westland, Southland, South Otago, Taranaki, and most of the Auckland Province. Rivers in South Canterbury were in high flood on the 22nd following heavy rain in the ranges, and again on the 30th after the heaviest day's rainfall experienced in the district in any August during the last 40 years.

Temperatures.—Mean temperatures in the North Island differed little from the average apart from a slight negative tendency in eastern districts. In the South Island they were mostly 1° or 2° below normal, but as much as 3° in the high country of Canterbury.

Light falls of snow occurred on the 6th–7th and again on the 18th–19th.

Sunshine.—Canterbury had the unusual experience of a very sunny month combined with high rainfall, the sunshine total being equivalent to 1 to 1½ hours a day better than the average throughout the province. Apart from a small deficiency in Marlborough and near Invercargill, the remainder of the South Island was also well favoured with sunshine. In the North Island there was a moderate deficiency in the east and south, and a slight surplus elsewhere.

Weather Sequence.—At the beginning of the month a spell of fine weather was drawing to a close with the departure of an intense anticyclone towards the east. The approach of a complex low pressure system from the west caused a general deterioration on the 2nd.

When the centre of a deep depression passed rapidly across southern New Zealand on the 3rd, heavy rain fell for a time in most places, while westerly gales were felt over a greater part of the North Island. The weather remained very unsettled. Another and even deeper depression passed south-eastwards through Cook Strait on the 6th, followed soon afterwards by a small secondary depression whose path lay across the middle of the North Island.

It became much colder on the 7th with some light snow falling in the South Island, but the weather soon cleared in Otago and Southland. Elsewhere it remained unsettled, under the influence of a shallow, almost stationary trough which extended from Westland north-eastwards across the centre of the North Island.

A spell of clear, frosty weather began on the 9th and continued for another six days. During this period a large, intense anticyclone moved slowly eastwards across the middle of the Dominion. Easterly winds prevailed in the north, however, and after the 11th showers developed about Gisborne and in exposed parts of Northland and Coromandel.

In the South Island, some rain fell on the 16th during the passage of a cold front and again when a secondary cold front passed some eighteen hours later. A ridge then extended across the Tasman Sea on to southern New Zealand while a shallow depression formed west of the North Island. When the latter moved slowly eastwards across Auckland and the Bay of Plenty widespread rain developed north of Canterbury and Buller. The ridge advanced slowly north-eastwards giving a temporary improvement in the north, but it began to rain heavily in Westland on the 20th with the approach of an unstable frontal system from the west. Two wave depressions formed within this system—the first passed Southland on the afternoon of the 20th, the second travelled rapidly eastwards across the centre of the North Island during the night of the 21st causing heavy rain and gales from Canterbury to South Auckland. Rivers in South Canterbury were in high flood on the 22nd, but the weather showed a general improvement during the day.

After the passage of a deep depression far to the south late on the 22nd, a cold front advanced rapidly from the south-west. With rising barometers, the weather then became clear and frosty.

By the 25th an intense anticyclone was moving slowly eastwards across New Zealand. At the same time, Northland came under the influence of an extensive depression approaching from the north. Rain spread slowly southwards to eastern districts of the North Island, as the depression pursued a south-easterly course to pass over East Cape on the night of the 28th. On the following day, when a complex disturbance arrived from the west, rain became general with heaviest falls in Canterbury.

At the end of the month this disturbance was centred east of Hawke's Bay and was moving away slowly eastwards, while a ridge from the west brought improved weather to Southland.
