Decisions of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

No. 160-165

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by Murdoch Riley, of Wellington, company director, as agent for the publishers, for decisions in respect of the following books:

The Daughter of Fanny Hill.The Male Homosexual.Mexico after Dark.Hong Kong after Dark.America's Teenage Sex Cult.The Maladjusted Female.

DECISIONS OF THE TRIBUNAL

LEAVE to submit the above books to the Tribunal was granted by the Minister of Justice. Mr Downey appeared at the hearing as Counsel for the applicant and made submissions.

In respect of each book the Tribunal decides as follows:

The Daughter of Fanny Hill.

This paper-back novel by an anonymous author is published by Brandon House, North Hollywood, California. Another edition is also published, in what Mr Downey terms the "English" edition, by K. and G. Publications (Herts.) Ltd., England.

Volume I of this English edition only is before us. We make no decision on the "American" edition, to adopt Mr Downey's terminology, as it is not before us and we have not seen it. Nor do we make any decision on Volume II or any other volume.

The novel consists of a number of letters allegedly written by "Miss Hill" setting forth some of her adventures. Despite an appropriate misprint in the preface, the style is laboured and the whole work is something of a museum piece. The language is restrained and indeed is hardly suggestive.

We rule it is not indecent.

The Male Homosexual, a paperback by Kenneth Marlow; published as a "Medco" book by Ben's Books Ltd., London.

This book is written by a self-acknowledged homosexual. The author attempts to describe some of the problems, physical but largely psychological, which such people are obliged to face. The language is moderate and matter-of-fact.

The book necessarily deals with deviant sexual practices. Descriptions of these, as detailed by the author, could be harmful to young persons who may not as yet realise the existence of this problem, much less its implications. The price of $1.40 does not place it beyond the purse of young folk.

For these reasons, pursuant to sections 10 and 11 of the Act, we declare that the book is indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

Mexico after Dark, by William Hopson and Lois O'Connor; published by Macfadden-Bartell Corporation, New York, and K. and G. Publications (Herts.) Ltd., England.

This paper-back book purports to be something of a "Guide Book" for foot-loose and fancy free male tourists in Mexico.

Although some of the narrative is slightly suggestive—the most objectionable being possibly a description of a "voo doo" ceremony—we rule, on considering the book as a whole, that it is not indecent.

Hong Kong after Dark, by William Fitzpatrick; published by Macfadden-Bartell Corporation, New York, and K. and G. Publications (Herts.) Ltd., England.

This paper-back book also purports to be a "Guide Book" of the type already referred to in the Tribunal's decision on Mexico after Dark.

It is even less objectionable. We rule it is not indecent.

America's Teenage Sex Cult, by E. R. Linton; published as a "Medco" book by K. and G. Publications (Herts.) Ltd., England.

To those concerned for the welfare of teenagers at the present time this work might be interesting and informative. It deals not only with the sexual behaviour of a section of young folk, including those of more affluent society in the United States, but also with their involvement in other types of delinquency, car conversion, robbery, etc. The language is matter-of-fact; the tables of statistics have a certain value. In all, we feel it is a candid approach to an unfortunate state of affairs.

We rule it to be not indecent.

The Maladjusted Female, by Dr A. Joseph Bursteln; published by K. and G. Publications (Herts.) Ltd., England.

This book, which retails at $1.40, deals with the psychological and other problems that face female homosexuals. Although the approach is objective, this book is popular rather than scientific. It deals with the sexual practices of lesbians, knowledge of which in this form could be harmful to immature persons.

For this reason, in pursuance of sections 10 and 11 of the Act, we rule that the book is indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

No. 166

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision regarding the book The World is Full of Married Men, by Jackie Collins; published by The New English Library Ltd., Barnard's Inn, London.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

WE are obliged to Mr Greig, who appeared as Counsel for the importer, for his assistance.

This paper-back novel tells the story of a would-be film star and her sexual encounters with potential promoters. The theme is well-worn and the treatment of it undistinguished, but there is a plot and some attempt at characterisation; the language is pedestrian and no exception can be taken to it. Were it not for the almost complete preoccupation with sex and the detailed description of one particularly ruthless piece of victimisation, the book would not be classifiable as indecent. But granted these elements, it could be harmful to young persons, and the price (quoted as 75c in New Zealand) puts it well within their reach.

We therefore declare the book to be indecent in terms of section 10 (b) of the Act in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

F. McCARTHY, Deputy Chairman.

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

No. 167

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Juliette, a translation by Austryn Wainhouse of a book by the Marquis de Sade.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THE book is a hard-cover edition and is published by Grove Press, New York, 1968. Its price in New Zealand is unknown to us.

A translation of a companion work, Justine, by the same author was considered by the Tribunal in 1965 (see New Zealand Gazette, 4 March 1965, at page 290). In those proceedings the Tribunal had the benefit of the assistance of counsel and of the evidence of the importer. No submissions were made before us in the present proceedings.

The narrative of the sexual excesses of Juliette and other characters in the work, their debauchery and resort to violent crime, although interlarded with long (and often indecent) semphilosophical discussions on wrong doing and evil, clearly bring the work within the connotation of "indecent" in section 2 of the Act.

However, for reasons outlined in the earlier judgment on Justine—primarily the literary, historical, and psychological interest of de Sade's work—we feel that Juliette should likewise be available to mature bona fide students for the purpose of research and study, as provided under section 11 (1) (b) of the Act.

We therefore hold that the book is indecent, except in the hands of bona fide students over the age of 20 years engaged in work or research in sociological and related fields.

F. McCARTHY, Deputy Chairman.

28 October 1969.

Decisions of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

No. 168-171

In the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by Robert Stanley Temple, of Hikurangi, bookseller, for decisions in respect of the following magazines—

Nudism Today, Vol. III, No. 6;

Nude Living, Vol. VI, No. 3, February 1967;

Sundial, Vol. V, No. 5, March 1967; and

Nude Lark, December 1966

all published by Elysium Incorporated, Los Angeles, California.

DECISIONS OF THE TRIBUNAL

No submissions were made on behalf of Mr Temple, whose solicitors advised us that although he has disposed of his book-seller's business he still wishes a decision from the Tribunal in respect of these magazines.

The Tribunal refers to its decision of 12 September 1969, published in New Zealand Gazette of 18 September 1969, at page 1798.

The magazines listed above are journals of nudist societies in the United States. None of them contains any material of a lubricious nature. The photography is restricted to nudism alone. The poses are not improperly suggestive.

The Tribunal therefore declares that these magazines are not indecent.

F. McCARTHY, Deputy Chairman.

28 October 1969.

Decisions of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

No. 176, 177

In the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Secretary for Justice for decisions in respect of two magazines—

Pin-up International, Vol. I, No. 3, and Girls of the World, Vol. I, No. 7

both published by Top Sellers Ltd., London.

DECISIONS OF THE TRIBUNAL

THESE are both "girlie" magazines. We refer to the Tribunal's decision published on 18 September 1969 in the New Zealand Gazette, at page 1798, and we apply the criteria we set forth in that decision.

Pin-up International is, we consider, a magazine in which, although there is undoubtedly emphasis on the female form, for the most part there is not the same measure of suggestiveness as in the more objectionable magazines of this type—although there is some. We feel, however, that, despite this, its distribution should be limited to persons of the age of 18 and over.

We therefore classify this magazine as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

The magazine Girls of the World, however, we feel is quite different and comes within that category of publication where photographic pose and text bring it within the connotation of the word "indecent" under section 2 of the Act.

We classify this magazine as indecent.

F. McCARTHY, Deputy Chairman.

28 October 1969.

Decisions of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

No. 172-175

In the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by Roy Frank Whitaker, of Napier, wholesaler, for decisions in respect of the magazines—

Modern Man, editions December 1968, January 1969, and February 1969;

Modern Man Quarterly, Spring 1969, Vol. 53 (902);

Tiger, No. 8 (902), Spring 1969; and

Modern Sunbathing Quarterly, Vol. 51 (902), Spring 1969

published by Publishers Development Corporation, Skokie, Illinois, U.S.A.

DECISIONS OF THE TRIBUNAL

MR Whitaker appeared in support of his application. Although he has pointed out that some "remainders" of these magazines have apparently been admitted into the country without question, he agreed that these "remainders" were not the volumes of these magazines which we are now considering. We cannot concern ourselves with the distribution of these "remainders". We have not seen them and they are not before us.

The Tribunal refers to its decision published in the New Zealand Gazette of 18 September 1969, at page 1798. All these magazines are of the "girlie" type.

In the Tribunal's view, all these magazines clearly fall within the category "wherein the illustrations are no longer intended to inform and attract but to disturb and to pervert".

We do not propose to deal with the contents of each magazine in detail, as we feel no good purpose would be gained by so doing. Suffice it to say the photography almost without exception is objectionably suggestive; while the text, with one or two exceptions, deals exclusively with sex, sex perversion, and eroticism in a manner which in our view is injurious to the public good. They all clearly fall within the connotation of "indecent" in section 2 in our view. The saving provisions of section 11 do not apply.

The Tribunal classifies all these magazines as indecent.

F. McCARTHY, Deputy Chairman.

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

No. 178

In the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application to the Tribunal by the Secretary for Justice to consider Maskerade, 1969 edition; published by the Students' Association of the Massey University.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

UPON the hearing of this application, Mr R. C. Savage, of the Crown Law Office, appeared for the Secretary for Justice. Mr J. H. Williams, of Counsel, appeared for the publishers, the Students' Association of the Massey University.

Before proceeding to deal with the subject matter of this application, the Tribunal finds it necessary, again, briefly to state its views as to the process by which it should arrive at its decision. Mr Savage, of Counsel for the Secretary for Justice, argues, as he did on the hearing of the application to the Tribunal in respect of the Waverley Publishing Co. Ltd. (New Zealand Gazette of 25 July 1968, p. 1251) that we should first consider the dictionary meaning of the word "indecent"; then, if that provided insufficient grounds for declaring the document indecent, we should have recourse to section 2 to see if it should be declared indecent within the extended sense which he claims that section provides; finally, if the document failed to survive either the first or the second test and was on the face of it indecent, we should then consider whether the provisions of section 11 (2) would save it from being so classified. In support of his argument he cited Pickens v. Franssen [1964] N.Z.L.R. 606. No doubt this case governs the method of approach which has generally to be pursued; but the later decision of the Full Court, in Robson v. Hicks Smith and Sons Ltd. [1965] N.Z.L.R. 1113, which was an appeal under the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and dealt specifically with the meaning to be ascribed to the word "indecent" where used therein, indicates that section 2 was not intended to be interpreted in the restricted way suggested by Mr Savage. Haslam J., at page 1119, says:

The use of the comprehensive verb "includes" may be explained by the presence in the definition of topics outside the customary meaning of the word "indecent" in conventional speech, viz., horror and the like. . . . It may be sufficient to suggest that the revised definition of "indecent" indicates the fact that the Act is designed to liberalise certain restrictions that previously existed, while retaining a proper measure of control of a social mischief. . . .

Also Woodhouse J., at page 1122, after setting out the definition in section 2 says:

This is not a comprehensive definition, and on this ground we were invited to hold that the term "indecent" was used in the Act with its ordinary meaning. But in my opinion there are two principal reasons against this submission. In the first place the definition itself deliberately includes, as indecent, noxious material which has a capacity to injure the public good. In this way a distinction seems to be drawn between such material and that which has a less harmful tendency whether it is otherwise noxious or not. To put the matter in another way, I think that if it has been thought necessary to include in express terms such descriptions of sexual matters, for example, as are injurious to the public good, then anything less than this can hardly be brought in by implication. Secondly, I think that this interpretation of the word is in accord with the development of legislation of this type. For many years the test of indecent material has not been equated with that which is merely unwholesome or offensive; it has involved something with a more malignant flavour, and the power of the material to contaminate. Again, at page 1123, he says:

If the word "indecent" had been used in this Act in its ordinary meaning (which does not ordinarily carry these implications), then much material would be prescribed by it which has never previously been controlled by this sort of legislation. I do not think that the Act was intended to introduce some more stringent regulation of books and other written material. On the contrary it seems designed to do away with all those restrictions which in the past have seemed to be anomalous or unnecessary, while providing so much protection for society generally as may be required to avoid injury to the public good.

In the light of the decision in Robson v. Hicks Smith and Sons Ltd. (supra), we feel obliged once again to reject the line of reasoning submitted by Mr Savage. If we should be wrong in this view and perhaps have taken more out of this decision than was intended, the matter could appropriately be reviewed upon appeal.

Mr Savage also submitted that the application of subjective judgment should have no place in our approach. As we said in the Waverley Publishing Co. case, the Tribunal must have regard to what is currently acceptable in the community. At the same time, it is impossible for the members of the Tribunal not to be conditioned to some extent by their respective backgrounds and instincts. That there is room for the exercise of subjective as well as objective judgment was, indeed, represented to the Tribunal by the Solicitor-General, Mr Wild, Q.C. (now Chief Justice), when he introduced the statute to the Tribunal at its first sitting and referred to the taking away of questions of indecency in literature from the Courts and committing them to the judgment of "well chosen persons whose decision could be expected to reflect the current standards and tastes of the community", and added "the Tribunal may find that the question of indecency really becomes one to be judged subjectively on each occasion".

The above observations are little more than an elaboration of the views the Tribunal expressed in the Waverley Publishing Co. case, and it sees no reason to depart from them.

We turn now to the subject matter of this application. In the view of the Tribunal, the dominant impression conveyed by Masskerade 69 is one of barely relieved vulgarity. In word and picture its content is coarse in conception and crude in expression. Its frequent resort to the subject of sex as a prop for its humour, the tasteless attacks on religious forms and attitudes, and a series of jokes involving disease, bestiality, and racial prejudice, undoubtedly make this a magazine which offends against normal standards of propriety and good taste.

Yet, notwithstanding submissions to the contrary by Mr Savage, the Tribunal reaffirms its view that a document may normally be adjudged indecent only if it actively contravenes the Act by "describing, depicting, expressing, or otherwise dealing with matters of sex, horror, crime, cruelty, or violence in a manner that is injurious to the public good". Whether anything less offensive than is here indicated would be thought indecent by the community at large—or unsuitable for certain sections of it—is a matter for members of the Tribunal to judge in the light of what they believe to be currently acceptable standards. It was not suggested to us that Masskerade 69 was injurious to the public good in the sense that it would seriously corrupt mature readers. Nor was its presentation of sex, however vulgar and crude, alleged to be deleterious in the sense that it exploited prurient interest. Nor was it claimed that any individual item in the magazine was in itself so grossly indecent as to justify banning. What were matters of very serious concern to Mr Savage, and in our view rightly so, were the offensive nature of the magazine as a whole, the price, the size of the edition, the circumstances of distribution, and its wide circulation leading to the certainty that it would find its way into the hands of immature readers.

Masskerade 69 was printed in an edition of 55,000 copies, of which 52,000 were sold throughout the North Island within the space of 2 to 3 days. Such effective promotion removes Masskerade 69 and comparable magazines from the immediate context of a university campus, or a single capping procession, and also from certain conditions of privilege which have traditionally applied to the revels of university students on the day of their graduation. The promoters of any such magazine, or those in authority over them, must show themselves to be fully aware of their responsibilities to their extended community; and at a point in time early enough to forestall the kind of situation which has arisen with Masskerade 69.

A responsible attitude would be evident in a concern to ensure that any university publication, in the balance of its content, the nature of its wit, and the skill of its satire, came within the bounds of decency, as these may be inferred from earlier judgments of the Tribunal. On two counts the conditions of sale make such an act of self-discipline and social responsibility particularly necessary in the case of a magazine like Masskerade 69. First, the low price and large edition, the incentive basis for paying sellers, and the lack of any close supervision over those actually selling it create conditions in which children can all too easily acquire it. Informal directions that it should not be sold to younger people are unrealistic, and the risk of such socially unacceptable consequences should be reduced by making the contents less objectionable. Secondly, the rapid rate of sale of such a magazine as Masskerade 69 means that any subsequent reference to this Tribunal to decide upon its decency (as in the present case) may be at best little more than an academic exercise and at worst a means of enforcing the punitive provisions of the Act. And if the latter should happen in default of early preventive action by a university, it cannot reflect well on the university authorities responsible, whether it be in respect of the welfare of the students involved or the goodwill of the public at large. A decision of this Tribunal will provide a guide to acceptable standards, but it cannot forestall massive distribution of another magazine, and no decision subsequent to distribution can recall the copies sold. There can be no satisfactory substitute for the acceptance of a joint responsibility by university authorities and students to ensure that any publication they issue comes within the bounds of decency. The Tribunal noted the expressed intention of the University authorities and the Students' Association at Massey University to enforce stricter controls in future. An agreement among students' associations to define and respect the territorial boundaries within which capping magazines are sold would also have merit.

Some 3,000 copies of Masskerade 69 remain unsold, and the Tribunal is firmly of the opinion that these must not go on unrestricted sale. Even if the magazine is not thought to be grossly offensive by most adult readers, its content and presentation make it quite unsuitable for younger persons. Restriction, moreover, involves restraints on displays as well as distribution, for section 21 of the Act makes it clear that the mere exhibition of a document to any person in whose hands it has been declared indecent constitutes an offence of strict liability under the Act. As with all books so classified, if the Tribunal's decisions are enforced, such a restriction effectively precludes their open display in shops and their sale on the street. For these reasons the Tribunal declares Masskerade 69 to be indecent in the hands of persons under 17 years of age.

L. G. H. SINCLAIR, Chairman.
