Medical Council of New Zealand

THE following rules have been made by the Medical Council of New Zealand and are published for the information of those concerned:

THE CONDITIONALLY REGISTERED MEDICAL PRACTITIONER (OR INTERN) HOUSE OFFICER SERVICE

1. The period of service of conditionally registered medical practitioners (interns), is regarded by the Medical Council of New Zealand as a compulsory training period incorporating a significant content of educational experience.

2. An intern should have the opportunity to complete such experience and training as to entitle him to become registered as a medical practitioner 12 months after graduation. The period of 1 year shall not include more than 6 weeks' absence from duty for any cause.

3. In recommending a hospital for approval as suitable for intern training, the Council considers the occupied bed state, the number and status of the medical and other staff, the supporting services (especially radiology and pathology), activities in teaching, facilities, staff accommodation, and the relationship to adjacent hospitals for the purposes of teaching, experience and staffing.

4. A hospital will not be recommended when it has less than a total of three first and second year house officers since the Council considers that with less than three it is impossible to arrange adequate educational experience. This will not apply to smaller hospitals recommended for approval under paragraph 8 below.

5. Recognising that the practice of medicine in modern hospitals has become increasingly specialised so that strictly "general" experience for all interns for the whole 12 months is unrealistic, the Council interprets flexibly the phrase in the Medical Practitioners Act 1968, section 18 (1) (a), "satisfactory experience of the practice of medicine and surgery". This was recommended in the General Medical Council's memorandum of 1967, and the 1968 Report of the Royal Commission on Medical Education (Todd).

6. In assessing "satisfactory experience", the Council takes into account the nature of the four quarterly posts held during the intern year. One more specialised post may complement another of a more general nature to achieve a balanced training comprising 6 months medicine and 6 months surgery over the year. In assessing the educational value of particular posts within an approved hospital, the following classification has been used by the Council.

CATEGORY 1: More general posts suitable for an intern.

CATEGORY 2: More specialised posts suitable for a second year house officer, but which may be acceptable for an intern provided they are combined with posts from category 1, in the same or an associated hospital, to make an acceptable total.

CATEGORY 3: Posts unsuitable for an intern.

Examples of category 2 posts are obstetrics, accident and emergency (casualty), psychiatry, ear nose and throat, ophthalmology, and such specialties as thoracic and cardiac surgery. An example of a category 3 post is anaesthetics (full-time).

7. As a guide to the persons responsible for the rotation of posts for the intern, the Superintendent of an approved hospital may be advised by the Council regarding the acceptability of particular posts or combinations thereof within that hospital.

8. Only certain posts in smaller hospitals may be appropriate for the intern year. These hospitals will be recommended for approval only when such intern posts are incorporated in a rotational plan with another hospital.

9. In each approved hospital other than those approved under paragraph 8 above, an intern supervisor of tutor specialist status or above shall be designated to act with the Medical Superintendent in the allocation of posts, the planning and supervision of the training programme, and assessing the performance of the intern. The person so designated is to sign, with the Medical Superintendent, the certificate of satisfactory performance on the intern's application for registration as a medical practitioner. This supervisor is to be nominated by the medical staff of the hospital and approved by the Medical Education Committee of the Council, and his authority is to extend to smaller hospitals without such a supervisor, where interns from his hospital work on rotation.

10. The list of approved hospitals and the recommendations regarding posts within the hospitals will be reviewed as necessary by the Medical Education Committee of the Council after consultation with the Hospital Boards, their Medical Superintendents and intern supervisors referred to in paragraph 9.

11. These rules replace those formerly gazetted on 25 September 1952.

K. A. G. HINDES, Secretary to the Council.

Wellington, 26 June 1970.

The "normal" refers to the present site of the instruments. The standard periods for normals are: for temperature 1931-60, for rainfall 1921-50, and for sunshine 1935-60. No normals are available for stations with only short records.

*The sunshine recorder is not located at the station but is in the near vicinity.

NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR JULY 1970

General—July was an unusually mild month marked by a high frequency of westerly winds. Some growth was reported in the North Island and even in parts of Canterbury. Stock were reported to be in good condition and the weather proved favourable for early lambs.

On the 11th two small local tornadoes caused some damage in Waitara and New Plymouth. Strong westerly to north-westerly gales buffeted many districts from Taihape to Otago on the 20th.

Rainfall—For the greater part of the country rainfall was close to normal. However, it was more than double the normal value in Fiordland and the Southern Lakes district, while it was 50 percent above normal in most of Buller and Nelson, besides Taranaki just east of Mount Egmont. On the other hand, it was less than half normal in Central Hawke's Bay and in Northland around and to the west of Whangarei. It was also somewhat below normal elsewhere in the North Island east of the main ranges, in addition to Taupo and the remainder of Northland with Coromandel.

On the 2nd daily rainfalls of 2-4 in. in Nelson and Marlborough caused some flooding.

Temperatures—Temperatures were warmer than normal by 3-4 degrees in the South Island and by 2 degrees in the North Island. Wellington had its warmest July in over 100 years of records; and most of Marlborough, Canterbury, and Otago had the warmest July since 1949. This was the second successive month of relatively warm temperatures, especially in the South Island.

Snow was reported on the high country of both islands after southerly changes on the 13th and 27th; and also in parts of western Southland and Central Otago in strong westerlies on the 20th and 21st.

Sunshine—Sunshine was somewhat below normal west and south of a line through Motueka, Hanmer, and Dunedin; also in some western and central districts of the North Island. Highest deficiencies of 20-40 hours were recorded in Westland and North Taranaki. Areas east of the main ranges in the North Island besides Northland and Auckland were favoured with 15-50 hours above normal.

Weather Sequence—At the beginning of July a depression lay to the south-east of the Chatham Islands and another one to the south of Tasmania, while pressures were high to the north of New Zealand. Westerly conditions prevailed and a weak trough crossed the country causing rain in western districts as far north as Taranaki and also about Cook Strait. During the next 3 days the depression south of Tasmania moved eastward across the South Tasman Sea and an anticyclone formed near Campbell Island. Moist north-easterlies prevailed, causing the rain to become general, with heavy falls in Nelson, Marlborough, and North Taranaki. Some flooding was reported in Marlborough and Nelson. The depression eventually passed close to Southland and on the 5th a weak ridge of high pressure covered the country. Rain was still reported on the West Coast and about the North Island ranges.

On the 6th and 7th a complex trough of low pressure with a small depression crossed the North Island accompanied by general rain, mainly light. During the next 2 days an anticyclone moved on to the North Island from the Tasman Sea. The weather was settled apart from some rain in Hawke's Bay on the 8th and on the West Coast and parts of western Southland on the 9th.

On the 10th and 11th a depression south-west of Campbell Island moved eastward, while the associated trough of low pressure crossed the country. Rain was reported mainly in districts exposed to the north, including however Wellington and southern Manawatu. On the 11th two small local tornadoes were reported at Waitara and New Plymouth respectively. A secondary depression had formed over the Tasman Sea, and as it crossed New Zealand in the vicinity of Cook Strait during the next 3 days rain was fairly general, especially over the North Island. By the 14th the winds had changed to southerly with snow on the South Island high country and the North Island ranges. Another weak trough on the 15th brought rain mainly to western and northern districts of the North Island, but Wairarapa, Christchurch, Dunedin, and Invercargill were also affected. During the next 2 days an anticyclone moved from the North Tasman Sea on to Northland and the weather was temporarily settled.

By the 18th the anticyclone was centred to the east of Northland while a deep depression lay far to the south of Tasmania, and the associated trough of low pressure was approaching New Zealand. In the strong north-westerlies rain set in, not only on the West Coast but also in Wellington, North Taranaki, and northern Northland. The trough crossed New Zealand during the 19th and 20th and a depression formed on it close to Southland. With the change to very strong westerlies rain was fairly general except in some eastern coastal districts, and snow was reported in parts of Southland and Otago. Strong gales buffeted parts of the South Island besides Wellington. On the 21st conditions were somewhat more south-westerly and the weather cleared in Marlborough, Canterbury, and most of Otago. The period from the 22nd to the 25th was marked by the prevalence of westerly conditions, with a belt of high pressure extending from New South Wales across Northland and Auckland, while pressures remained low far to the south. Rain affected the West Coast and parts of Southland over the whole of this period; and at first western and central districts of the North Island and parts of Nelson, Canterbury, and Otago also reported light rain.

During the 26th and 27th a frontal depression over the North Tasman Sea moved on to Northland, while a deep depression was passing to the south and the associated trough of low pressure crossed the country, with a change to southerly winds. Rain persisted on the West Coast and developed also over the northern half of the North Island, soon spreading to most of the country. Snow was reported on the ranges and some high country of both islands. The depression over Northland moved south-eastward to the north of the Chatham Islands and conditions became more south-westerly. On the 28th rain affected mainly southern and some western districts of the North Island, but also Christchurch with Banks Peninsula, and Dunedin. On the following day a weak trough in the south-westerlies brought rain mainly to the West Coast and Southland but some light falls still persisted in Otago and Canterbury. For the last 2 days of the month an anticyclone was crossing Northland and the weather was fine except in Fiordland.
