The "normal" refers to the present site of the instruments. The standard periods for normals are: for temperature 1931-60, for rainfall 1921-50, and for sunshine 1935-60. No normals are available for stations with only short records.

*The sunshine recorder is not located at the station but is in the near vicinity.

NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR AUGUST 1970

General—August was marked by an unusually high frequency of northerly to easterly winds. It was cloudy, mild, and wet with some major floods. The mild weather brought good growth in most districts.

Rainfall—Rainfall was more than double the normal value in Auckland City and Coromandel; in Bay of Plenty and Taupo; about and east of Nelson City; and in the Alps and the Canterbury high country together with Central Otago. Most of the remainder of the country also received rainfall somewhat above normal. However, rainfall was 25 percent below normal in most eastern districts from Rangiora to Balclutha.

Widespread flooding of the Rangitaiki Plains and other parts of eastern Bay of Plenty occurred following heavy rain there on the 13th as a depression developed in a trough during the passage over the area. Many daily rainfalls were reported of 5-10 in.

A trough of low pressure became stationary over Nelson on the 29th, and heavy rain caused slips and serious flooding in the city, resulting in two deaths. The daily fall of 5.41 in. was the highest recorded there in over 80 years of observation, and of this 4 in. was recorded in 6 hours between 6 p.m. and midnight. On the following day the same trough caused daily falls of up to 12 in. in the Alps, with major floods in the Buller and Grey Rivers.

Temperatures—Temperatures were above normal, mainly by 1-3 degrees over the North Island, by 2-4 degrees over the South Island; and by 2 degrees over the country as a whole. The Hermitage, Mount Cook, had its warmest August in over 40 years of observations.

This winter (June, July, and August) has been persistently mild. In parts of the South Island it has been the mildest winter in many years of record. Thus Naseby and the Hermitage have had their highest winter mean temperature in over 40 years of record; while Christchurch has had its highest winter mean temperature in over 60 years of record, equal with 1916 and 1962.

The main period of cold southerlies was from the 22nd to the Sunshine—Sunshine was below normal over nearly the whole country. In Bay of Plenty and eastern and southern districts of the North Island the deficiency mounted to 40-60 hours.

Weather Sequence—At the beginning of the month an anticyclone was centred over the North Island while pressures were low near Macquarie Island and a trough of low pressure moved on to the South Island. In the northerlies rain set in on the West Coast. During the 2nd and 3rd another trough of low pressure moved on to the South Island and rain spread over the whole country except near the east coasts. The trough became stationary through Auckland with the formation of a small depression. During the next 2 days the rain spread to all districts of the North Island and to eastern districts of the South Island, but there was a clearance over the remainder of the South Island. Some heavy falls were reported about the Gisborne ranges. The depression moved to the south-east of Gisborne and another depression became active over the North Tasman Sea, while pressures were high to the south. On the 6th rain persisted in most eastern districts, especially Gisborne and northern Hawke's Bay, and also over most remaining districts of the North Island. On the following day the second depression crossed Northland with rain there and in Gisborne and Hawke's Bay. Some flooding was reported in Northland.

From the 8th to the 11th an anticyclone moved from off the New South Wales coast across the Tasman Sea and the North Island, and to the east. This was a period of mainly fair weather. However, rain was reported at times on the West Coast, with light falls occasionally also around Invercargill, and from Manawatu to Taranaki.

With an anticyclone far to the east of the North Island, on the 12th pressures were again very low near Macquarie Island. A small depression moved across the Tasman Sea and the associated trough of low pressure moved on to both Islands at once, lying NNE-SSW. During the 13th and 14th a depression formed on the trough just east of Auckland and moved slowly north-eastward. Rain fell but falls were only light east of the ranges.

Northland (2-5 in.) but more especially in eastern Bay of Plenty (5-11 in.). Major flooding occurred on the Rangitaiki Plains, while Whakatane and Opotiki were also affected. Surface flooding was also reported around Dargaville. For the next 4 days the depression moved slowly away to the north-east while pressures were mainly high to the south-east and the south. The easterlies brought rain east of the ranges in the North Island, spreading at times to Bay of Plenty and Taupo. Some rain was also reported on the West Coast and in Southland.

By the 19th a depression was centred midway over the Tasman Sea with two centres, of which the smaller and more northern one crossed the North Island near Auckland on the following day. Rain became general over nearly the whole of the North Island with some considerable falls in Northland. Scattered rain was also reported in the South Island, especially Nelson and Westland. As the main depression moved through Cook Strait on the 21st rain became general except in Fiordland. An anticyclone to the south-west of Southland moved eastward and as the depression also moved in this direction, cold southerlies covered the country from the 22nd to the 24th. Strong gales buffeted Wellington. The rain cleared first in the west of the South Island and later in the remainder of the South Island and in most western and northern districts of the North Island. On the following day an anticyclone covered New Zealand and the weather was fair.

As the anticyclone moved away to the east and pressures became very low to the south of Tasmania, strong northerlies set in, with rain commencing on the West Coast on the 26th and spreading over most of the country with the advance of a trough of low pressure during the 2 following days. Strong northerly gales buffeted Wellington. By the 29th the trough had become stationary through Cook Strait, causing excessive rain about and east of Nelson City with a major flood. However, the rain cleared over most of the North Island. On the following day the trough moved southward with excessive rain in the Alps, causing serious flooding in the Grey and Buller Rivers. Rain continued on the West Coast and in the Alps, and spread also to Otago and Southland. On the last day of the month a small depression formed over Westland and the trough moved northward again, affecting the same parts of the South Island but also western districts of the North Island from Wellington to Taranaki, with considerable falls there.

Auditors' Report

We, the undersigned, being the auditors of the South Canterbury Savings Bank, appointed in terms of section 29 (3) of the Trustee Savings Bank Act 1948, report that:

1. We have examined the books, accounts, and vouchers of the bank, and have received all of the information and explanations we have required.

2. We have verified the cash, investments, securities, and assets of the bank as at 31 March 1970.

3. The manager has certified that, to the best of his knowledge and belief, all requirements of the Trustee Savings Bank Act 1948, and regulations thereunder, have been complied with.

In our opinion, the above balance sheet and profit and loss account are properly drawn up so as to present fairly the financial position of the South Canterbury Savings Bank as at 31 March 1970, and the results of its operations for the year then ended, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.
