Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

No. 240-249

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by Murdoch Riley, of Wellington, company director, as agent for the publishers, for decisions in respect of the following books:

The Coming of a God. The Daughter of Fanny Hill, Vol. II. The Wife Traders. Flossie in Bondage. Transvestism. Sex Variations in Voyeurism. The Bisexual Woman. Part-Time Virgins. Eager Virgins. Auto-Eroticism.

DECISIONS OF THE TRIBUNAL

THE application is made by leave of the Minister of Justice. There was no appearance of the applicant. In respect of each book the Tribunal decides as follows:

The Coming of a God, by Jerry Fonarow; published by Holloway House, Los Angeles.

Nothing in this ill-written book has sufficient artistic or social purpose to offset the effect of its numerous passages of violence and indecency.

The Tribunal accordingly classifies it as indecent.

The Daughter of Fanny Hill, Vol. II; published by Brandon House, California.

Volume I of this book was considered by the Tribunal on 28 October 1969 and was declared not to be indecent.

The authenticity of this book, which is described as expurgated, remains very uncertain, and that contributes to the Tribunal's decision that as it in some ways and episodes lays a larger and more pervasive emphasis on sexual activities, normal and abnormal, than the first volume, its distribution cannot be considered in the public interest. The Tribunal accordingly classifies it as indecent.

The Wife Traders, by Charles Beck; published by Award Books, New York.

This is one more of too many books about wife-swapping. As usual it is set in an environment of idleness, affluence, and indulgence. Although the author contrived a romantically happy ending between Connie, the likeable partner in the swaps, mostly uncongenial, and Dr Larry Crandall, her husband having been incinerated in a car crash, these considerations do not offset the repetitions and emphasised details of the swaps or of the violence that enters into them. On these, the emphasis falls so heavily that the Tribunal is led to classify this book as indecent in terms of the Act.

Flossie in Bondage, by Florence H.; published by Bens Books Ltd., London.

The contrived true lovers' ending does not change the character or quality of this super-heated story of a passionate girl's surrender to her early seduction and her willing progress through a life of sexual promiscuity. The episodes of the progress are described with a fulsome emphasis on physical details. The effect, clearly intended, is such as to oblige the Tribunal to classify the book as indecent within the meaning of the Act, for it has no counteracting, artistic, or other merit.

Transvestism, by Hugh Magnus; published by Tandem Books, London.

Sex Variations in Voyeurism, by Sean O'Shea; published by Tandem Books, London.

The Bisexual Woman, by David Lynne; published by Bens Books Ltd., London.

Part-Time Virgins, by Sean Ahearn; published by Bens Books Ltd., London.

Eager Virgins, by Sterling Hankins; published by Bens Books Ltd., London.

Auto-Eroticism, by Alexander Gray; published by Bens Books Ltd., London.

These books follow a now fairly familiar pattern. The theme of each is some form of sex deviation, the method to supply some form of introduction, exposition, or commentary and to illustrate it with what purport to be personal case-histories and it is not denied that the expositions are matter-of-fact and adequately so, on an elementary level. It is however, noticeable that the credentials of the expositors, interviewers, and editors are not fully and explicitly stated, that the case histories occupy most of the space and take most of the emphasis, and that there is a disturbing correspondence in the form of the variation which is loose and in the stylishness, for example, confusion between the verbs "to lie" and "to lay" is prevalent. For such reasons, it becomes difficult to resist the impression that these books issue from a syndicate of writers rather than from individual authors. These and other considerations lead the Tribunal to decide that, whatever statement of fact these books rest on, their object is not to exhibit it but to exploit it in a manner not in the public interest, and that they are indecent within the meaning of the Act.

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

No. 250

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Secretary for Justice for a decision in respect of the book Lovers, by John London, published by New English Library Ltd., London.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THIS novel consists entirely of a series of sexual incidents, which progress in perversion and violence, perpetrated by a husband in revenge against his wife, whom he has discovered in intercourse with a negro.

The revenge consists of the husband seeking out one negress after another for seduction, rape, cruelty, and violence. The whole tone of the book is worsened by hatred, personal and racial.

The Tribunal accordingly classifies it as indecent.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

7 December 1970.

Decisions of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

No. 251-253

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for decisions in respect of the books: The Confessions of Georgina, The Encyclopedia of Erotica, The Bitch Goddess.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

The Confessions of Georgina, by James Paunce; published by Canova Press Inc., London.

This book claims to be the transcript of a true confession written about 1905 and a piece of genuine Victorian erotica. The author is not identified nor is the question of his identity opened up in the editorial matter.

The narrative is broken by frequent editorial interpolations which abridge the story and comment on it but without throwing any clear light on Victorian Society, from which it is alleged to emerge. The narrative itself is unquestionably pornographic and must accordingly be considered indecent. And point is lent to that decision by the very real doubts of the authenticity of the narrative.

The Tribunal accordingly classifies it as indecent.

The Encyclopedia of Erotica, by Dr Paul J. Gillette and Robert H. Dicks; published by Universal Printing and Distributing Corporation, New York.

This is on the face of it a bibliography of erotic or indecent works, it is also an anthology of extracts from major and minor erotica. To take the first description first, it is to be observed that the first desideratum is that it should be complete and accurate. This book is neither. Works that should be listed are not listed. The comment on some considerable works are often inaccurate or insufficient. There are many misprints. Secondly, the extracts printed are such as to suggest beyond possibility of mistake that the main purpose of the book is to furnish a selection of the most lubricous passages in literature. The Tribunal cannot regard this as an honest purpose in bibliography and for that reason, and in consideration of the character of the extracts as a whole, decides that this book is indecent within the meaning of the Act.

The Bitch Goddess, by Allan Dixon; published by New English Library, London.

This is a novel based on the film world of Hollywood. The picture is revolting. The central character is a girl determined to become a star and to do anything or everything to win this end, sex, drugs, drink, all helped. The companions of her journey are, with hardly an exception, dissolute if worse than worthless. It comes as no surprise to find her ending as a murderess and providing the solution in a mad car wreck. To say so much is necessary only to explain why the Tribunal, having considered the narrative as a whole, its episodes and their tone and terms, concludes that it is to be classified as indecent within the meaning of the Act.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.
