Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book The X Y Z of Love by Inge and Sten Hegeler. Published by McGibbon and Kee Ltd., London.

The Tribunal has considered The X Y Z of Love by Inge and Sten Hegeler. There was no appearance of the applicant. Mr P. J. Downey appeared as counsel for an importer, not the publishers' agent, who had had copies seized by Customs.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

Mr Downey stated that the book had been on sale for some time. He claimed that the approach of the authors was basically factual, advisory, and seriously intended; that the lightness of touch with which the theme was handled was not inappropriate, and that the book was a useful supplement to other acceptable works in this field by the same authors. The cover was not objectionable.

All of this argument we readily accept and we consider the book a valuable one for adult inquirers. It is, however, very explicit about some of the more sophisticated love-making practices and we do not consider it to be in the public interest that young people should be introduced to these too easily.

The Tribunal classify the book as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by Murdoch Riley, manager, of Wellington, for decisions in respect of My Carnal Confession by Gerty Agoston, published by Universal Tandem Publishing Co. Ltd., London; The Innocent One by Lisa March, published by Universal Tandem Publishing Co. Ltd., London; Cruel Venus by Victor Rogano, published by Canova Press; and Sex Watchers by Sterling Harkins, published by Ben's Books Ltd., London.

Mr P. J. Downey appeared on behalf of the applicant and made submissions.

DECISIONS OF THE TRIBUNAL

My Carnal Confession

This book by Gerty Agoston was compared by Mr Downey, counsel for the publishers' agent, with an earlier book by the same author which the Tribunal considered in decision No. 183, and proceeded to classify as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 17 years.

Mr Downey submitted that the present book before the Tribunal was of comparable quality. The Tribunal in that earlier decision described that book as "quite well written" and said that parts were "quite amusing". My Carnal Confession does not merit such comments. It is a pretentiously written and tedious story about a couple obsessed with sexual pleasure. The claim made on the cover, "Perhaps the most explicit sexual confession ever made by a woman" is, fortunately, not what the Tribunal has to decide. What it does decide is that in this novel sex is presented in debased rather than in honest terms, and that this is injurious to the public good.

The Tribunal classifies the book as indecent.

The Innocent One

This book is claimed to be the translated memoirs of a Swedish servant girl working for an American family and is offered as a literary discovery, similar to other authentic accounts of sexual experience in an earlier period. Despite the "high purposes" invoked by the narrator in offering her experiences, nothing in the book raises it above the level of a prurient recital of increasingly perverted and extreme incidents. It has no social realism to authenticate the claim made about its origins and appears to be simply a cheap attempt to exploit interest in underground erotic literature.

The Tribunal classifies it as indecent.

Cruel Venus

Cruel Venus, by Victor Rogano, B.A., was published as a softcover book by Canova Press in Great Britain in 1970, and its likely retail price in New Zealand would be $2.25.

It claims to be a study of women exercising power and authority through the ages, but this framework is used as a vehicle for several unsourced, pseudo-contemporary accounts of female cruelty with a strong bias towards sadism. It cannot be said to be a work written with serious intent, and taking into account the considerations laid down in section 11 of the Act, in particular 11 (f), the Tribunal classifies it as indecent.

Sex Watchers

Sex Watchers, by Sterling Harkins, was published by Barclay House in the United States in 1969 and by Ben's Books in Great Britain in 1970; it would retail in New Zealand for approximately $2.00.

It is in no way a serious study of voyeurism, but a strung-together series of accounts of voyeurs' experiences which are to all appearances fictional. It is written in a rather prurient way without any redeeming feature. There is no "honest purpose" nor any "honest thread of thought", to quote section 11 (f) of the Act, in this book.

The Tribunal classifies it as indecent.

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs in respect of the book Two and Two, by Henrik Tjele, published by Grove Press Inc., New York.

There was no appearance of the applicant. Mr P. J. Downey appeared as counsel for the publishers.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

In Two and Two, a very thin story serves as the vehicle for presenting a variety of sexual experiences engaged in by the characters with tireless enthusiasm. There is some glib philosophising about "liberation" and "order" in human affairs in the final pages, but otherwise the book is largely devoid of any interest in human experience beyond the savouring of sexual activity. It is described on its cover as "an erotic novel", but this is to understate the degree and nature of its preoccupation with sexual gratification and the titillating tone of its narration. It is a novel that is clearly indecent.

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the magazines Man and Woman Parts 1-8, by Marshall Cavendish Ltd., published by Love and Malcomson Ltd., Surrey, England.

There was no appearance of the applicant. Mr R. A. Heron appeared as counsel for the publishers' representative in New Zealand.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

The magazines under consideration form the first eight parts of a publication subtitled The Marshall Cavendish Encyclopaedia of Adult Relationships. The publication is planned for ninety-eight weekly parts. It is intended to retail at 65 cents per copy. The publisher specialises in the production of good quality encyclopaedias in weekly parts for countries in all parts of the English-speaking world. Because the publication is in serial form it is not possible to consider the publication as a whole, nor the eight issues before us as though they constituted the whole. Accordingly the Tribunal has considered each issue separately.

At the hearing, Mr R. A. Heron on behalf of Gordon and Gotch (N.Z.) Ltd., sole agents for the publishers, made submissions and called Professor A. J. W. Taylor, Professor of Clinical Psychology at Victoria University of Wellington, to give evidence. Professor Taylor confirmed that the editorial advisory board, editorial staff, and authors were well qualified to produce such a publication and indeed some of the staff were recognised as authorities in the particular fields in which they wrote. Professor Taylor gave a clear and succinct description of the publication which the Tribunal readily accepts. It is as follows:

"I found parts 1 to 8 of the above publication most agreeable attempts to deal with problems of human sexuality, particularly when compared with the torrent of literature on the subject that has fallen far short of acceptable standards. The magazines contain frank and factual information about different aspects of human sexual behaviour. The material is presented in a range of styles from the descriptive to the clinical, and much of it is based upon research data instead of the kind of fantasy with which so many magazines of this type are filled. The level of discourse is good, and were it not for the simple illustrations that accompany many articles, it would deter the sensation seekers. Each of the parts has a case study that in my opinion is a realistic portrayal of the kind of sexual difficulties that people present to clinics and social work agencies."

Professor Taylor in elaborating his opinion of the publication stated:

"Hence I would support the case for the publication of the magazines with some restrictive clause that would help to keep them from early adolescents . . ."

Here again the Tribunal is in sympathy with these views of Professor Taylor.

In considering each issue the Tribunal did not find anything inconsistent with the apparent general purpose of the series, that is, sex education presented in a natural and healthy way.

Nevertheless, a display of some of the individual illustrations (or "the simple illustrations" as described by Professor Taylor) might prove disturbing and even harmful to young persons who could lack a full appreciation of the purpose and of the context from which they have been taken. To safeguard the public interest, therefore, we feel obliged to impose a certain measure of restriction. But in imposing a restriction we commend the publication and, subject to that restriction, would hope that the publication is widely read and studied.

The Tribunal classifies each of the eight issues as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 16 years except when they are being advised by parents or professional advisers.

The "normal" refers to the present site of the instruments. The standard periods for normals are: for temperature 1931-60, for rainfall 1921-50, and for sunshine 1935-60. No normals are available for stations with only short records.

*The sunshine recorder is not located at the station but is in the near vicinity.

NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR APRIL 1971

General—April weather was a continuation of that of March. There was again an unusually high incidence of easterly to north-easterly winds over the North Island, with floods and slips in eastern districts from Hawke's Bay to Bay of Islands, while the remainder of the country had sunny, warm, dry weather. In southern and western districts of the North Island and in Canterbury the rainfall was inadequate, adversely affecting crops and pastures.

Rainfall—Rainfall was less than three-quarters of the normal value over most of the South Island and the greater part of the North Island. In the Taihape-Wanganui-Manawatu area it was less than a quarter of the normal and many stations had their lowest April rainfall.

By contrast, rainfall was well above normal in Hawke's Bay and Gisborne, in Coromandel, and also in eastern districts from about Auckland to Bay of Islands, with a considerable area receiving more than double the normal. The heaviest rain was reported around Port Charles, near the tip of the Coromandel Peninsula, which received a total of 21 in., of which about 9 in. fell in 6 hours during the night of 15-16 April. The main period of easterly rains was from the 10th to the 20th, with many thunderstorms.

The persistence of easterly to north-easterly winds from November to April over the North Island has caused unusually low rainfall at Wellington over this period, the total of 11.32 in. being the lowest there since the same months in 1886-87. Stations with unusually low rainfall from January to April include Christchurch and the Hermitage. On the other hand, Whangarei Aerodrome's total from January to April of 29.13 in. was the highest there since 1944.

Temperatures—Temperatures were above normal by 1°-2°F. (1°C.).

Sunshine—The West Coast, Otago, and Southland besides Manawatu were favoured with 30-60 hours above normal sunshine. Eastern and some northern districts of the North Island received 20 hours below normal.

Weather Sequence—At the beginning of April an anticyclone was centred near Tasmania with a ridge of high pressure extending on to New Zealand. Showers were reported at first in Northland besides Gisborne, Hawke's Bay, and Taranaki. However, by the 4th the showers were only isolated.

From the 5th to the 7th a depression over the eastern Tasman Sea drifted slowly on to Northland, while a weak trough of low pressure crossed the South Island. Light rain fell in northern districts of the North Island, and there were also a few showers on the Southland coast. Another trough of low pressure moved north-eastward over most of the country on the 8th and 9th accompanied by fairly general rain, mainly light. During the next 2 days this trough became stationary over Northland while an anticyclone covered the eastern Tasman Sea and the South Island. Eastern Northland reported strong winds with heavy seas and considerable rain. Rain also affected western Northland, Auckland, Coromandel, and Gisborne. On the 12th and 13th pressures were low to the north-east, and another trough of low pressure crossed the South Island. Rain persisted in Northland, Auckland, and Gisborne, spreading also to Taranaki. It was also general over the South Island but light in east coast districts north of Dunedin. Snow was reported in the Otago high country with the colder temperatures.

The period from the 14th to the 21st was generally unsettled over the North Island, with by far the heaviest rains of the month. A shallow depression just west of Northland moved away slowly into the Tasman, while yet another trough of low pressure crossed the South Island, followed closely by an anticyclone. From the 14th to the 16th rain was already fairly general over the North Island and heavy in some eastern districts. It also affected parts of the South Island. From the 17th to the 19th the depression remained stationary just west of Northland, while the trough was stationary across the country east to west near Auckland. In the strong easterlies some very heavy rain was reported, especially in Coromandel and Northland, with serious flooding. The remainder of the North Island received rain once again on the 19th and 20th besides most of the South Island, as a north-south trough of low pressure crossed the North Island. The depression had been drifting slowly south-westward and on the 21st it crossed the South Island. This day was still unsettled in many districts but the rain cleared in Northland and Coromandel.

On the 22nd and 23rd a small depression crossed the North Island with a north-south trough. Rain affected western districts of the North Island besides Fiordland and South Westland.

During the last seven days of the month an anticyclone formed in the New Zealand area and remained almost stationary there until the 28th, when it moved towards the Chatham Islands, while still covering the country. This was a period of particularly sunny and mild weather. However, in Northland showers were reported on the 24th and 25th and again on the 29th and 30th; spreading on these latter 2 days to Auckland and Gisborne. Fiordland also reported a few showers, on the 26th and 27th.
