Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by Murdoch Riley, company director, of Wellington, for decisions in respect of The Dream Peddlers by Norman Phillips, The Ordeal by John London, The Love Broker by Sumner King, and Uninhibited by Ruy Traube, published by Belmont Books, New York.

Mr P. J. Downey, solicitor, appeared for the applicant and made submissions in respect of each book.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

The Dream Peddlers—The leading character in this paperback novel, published in New York by Belmont Books in 1970, is a virile, successful new Hollywood male star, who goes through approximately one new woman per picture.

Narrated by his agent, it ends in a mass orgy-cum-murder slightly reminiscent of, and patterned in small details on the Sharon Tate/Charles Manson affair of 1969.

The writing is undistinguished, the sex frank but not over-dominant. It would be difficult to contend, though, that there is any honest purpose, or thread of thought, in this book.

The Tribunal classifies it as indecent.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

The Ordeal—This paperback book was published by Belmont Books of New York in 1969 and is a noveletish, poorly written account of the struggle for succession and power in an American construction firm when its owner dies. As he leaves a young widow, the only-to-be-expected scenes of frankly written sexual encounter duly take place, but they do not by any means dominate the whole book. The frankness of writing, however, suggests that an age limit would be sensible.

The Tribunal classifies it as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

The Love Broker—This is a novel, allegedly autobiographical, about a procurer and the sometimes bizarre, sometimes perverted, sexual episodes he organises to satisfy the odd requirements of his clients.

The jacket blurb claims this to be an "explicit account of a profession never before fully documented"; it is by no means a full documentation nor its "profession" quite the word for Sumner King's Line.

He does not, however, provide sadistic or violet entertainment and while he exploits beauty and deviant desire he does have regard for persons. There is some study of character in the book and although much of the tone and detail is offensive it could scarcely be corrupting to adults who may wish to read it.

The Tribunal classifies it as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

Uninhibited—This is a collection of popularly presented case histories in the field of abnormal psychology. The method, common in this class of book, is to invent or select cases for their sensational impact, tell the story with some drama and light and shade, and explain it in the words of an objective and matter-of-fact psychological consultant or psychiatrist.

The cover accords better with the sensational narrative than with the dispassionate explanation, and we are in some doubt, as with others of this author's works, whether the whole thing is not a bogus concoction published with the sole motive of battenning on morbid curiosity. In any event, there can be little value in this exposition and there must be a certain possibility of stimulating young persons towards the perverse practices described. Even for the adult there are few redeeming features.

The Tribunal classifies the book as indecent.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

318-319

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the books I am the Beautiful Stranger by Rosalyn Drexler, published by Sphere Books, and The Libertine by Jacopo Massimo, published by Universal Publishing Corporation, New York.

There was no appearance of the applicant nor the publisher's representatives in New Zealand. Accordingly no submissions were made.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

I am the Beautiful Stranger—This novel is legitimate fiction, an attempt to convey the uncertainties, fears, and misconceptions which beset an adolescent girl. Domestic insecurity does not help. As though the book were a real diary, the reader finds that there are some passages which could be either fact or fantasy, though the character of most is clear.

Some of the detail is repellent but scarcely corrupting. The Tribunal does not consider that this feature is a serious enough blemish to warrant a restriction.

The Tribunal classifies the book as not indecent.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

The Libertine—This novel depicts a woman's discovery of a world of bizarre sexuality which her late husband's wealth and depravity had fashioned for his pleasure, and her own subsequent immersion in it.

The treatment of sexual perversion and the exploitation is prurient and degrading, particularly the indulgent portrayal of the central character's corruption. It clearly offends against the provisions of the Act.

The Tribunal classifies the book as indecent.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

320

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book The Goddess Game by Hugh Barron, published by New English Library, London.

There was no appearance of the applicant nor of the publisher's representative in New Zealand. Accordingly no submissions were made.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THIS novel tells the intimate stories of four girls who flattered together in Hollywood at one stage of their struggle for recognition in the world of cinema. The background of this whole world of big show business, Oscar hunting, exploitation, drugs, kicks, wealth, and beauty is real enough; the novel has plot and structure; the characters are well-defined; the causes and effects of ruthless ambition are recounted with a certain amount of subtlety. Those incidents which are in themselves obscene are inherent in the story and setting, and while nothing is spared in the telling, their inclusion can be justified.

There is, however, sufficient perversion and crudity to suggest restriction to adults.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

321

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Some Like it Dark by Kipp Washington, published by Holloway House, California.

There was no appearance of the applicant. Mr P. J. Downey, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the distributors in New Zealand and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THIS book is described as the intimate autobiography of a Negro call girl. The editor of her story says she wrote it as therapy, to find out the truth of why she did what she did. It sheds very little light on her problem or the racial-sexual situation; it may have some entertainment value for some adults but its obsessional treatment of sex justifies some restriction.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

322

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Sexual Deviation by Roger Farley Gray, published by Riverhaven Ltd., London.

There was no appearance of the applicant. Mr P. J. Downey, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the distributors in New Zealand and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THE text of this book is not as blatantly directed at exploiting morbid interest in sexual deviation as have been several treatments of similar material which the Tribunal has rejected as indecent. There is, however, an appeal to such interest in the description of the contents given on the cover, and the book's informative purpose and value are sufficiently compromised by this to require that the book be not available to the public without appropriate restraint on its circulation and display.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

323-324

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for decisions in respect of the books I am Curious (Thirty) and Threesome by Jill Emerson, published by Berkley Publishing Corporation, New York.

There was no appearance of the applicant. Mr P. J. Downey, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the distributors in New Zealand and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THESE two novels by Jill Emerson depict the passage of the main characters in each from the settled pattern of their lives into a mounting preoccupation with sexual experiment and adventure. Each novel has some attempt at literary effect, the first being in the form of a diary, the second varying the point of view in successive first person accounts from the threesome.

The dominant effect of each book, however, is not of any subtlety or insight in the portrayal of human experience but of salacious crudeness. To present sex as an uncontrollable appetite to be followed wherever it leads, and to savour the resulting experiences in such revolting detail, is to deal with sex in a manner injurious to the public good.

The Tribunal classifies both books as indecent.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

325

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Promiscuous Pauline, translation by R. J. B. Krauss, published by Riverhaven Ltd., London.

There was no appearance of the applicant. Mr P. J. Downey, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the distributors in New Zealand and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

DISTRIBUTED by Luxor Press, London, in 1971, this has the subtitle Memoirs of a German Opera Singer, and the introduction states that it is a translation of a German original published about a century ago, and gives an actual attribution to a named singer, although this is denied by standard musical reference works.

As one might expect from this publishing house, the memoirs are of the extra-curricular rather than the musical activities of the authoress. Indeed, the emphasis is almost exclusively sexual and the tone gradually degenerates through the book into acceptance of various forms of sadistic perversion. There is no redeeming feature and irrespective of the claims made in the introduction, there appears to be little honest purpose in this book.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

326

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Laying the Ghost by Jay Martin, published by Berkley Publishing Corporation, New York.

There was no appearance of the applicant nor of the publisher's representative in New Zealand. Accordingly no submissions were made.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

PUBLISHED in 1970 by the Berkley Publishing Corporation, New York, this paperback is a ghost story with a difference. It has no pretensions to literary merit, and a considerable emphasis on ghostly sexual encounters of unusual nature. However, it is told with a light comic touch, and many will find it an amusing romp. Others may well find it repellent rather than amusing, and the frankness of some of the language in the sexual scenes may cause offence to some.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

327

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Do It by Jerry Rubin, published by Simon and Schuster, New York.

There was no appearance of the applicant nor of the publisher's representative in New Zealand. Accordingly no submissions were made.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THE Comptroller of Customs submitted this paperback edition of Mr Rubin's book to the Tribunal for a decision. There was no appearance of counsel but a letter was received from Mr Nigel S. Roberts, Lecturer in Political Science and American Studies at the University of Canterbury.

Mr Roberts says that in December 1970 in the course of his duties he asked the University Library at Canterbury to order the book. He did so, he says, "Because: (i) whether we like it or not, Mr Rubin has been an influential figure in an unusual way in American politics since 1968; and (ii) overseas reviews indicate that Do It should not be simply censored or easily dismissed. It is, apparently, an important work if we are to understand and interpret the frame of mind of Mr Rubin's followers.

"For these reasons it would be less than honest for a full and thorough comprehension of American Government and Politics if Mr Rubin's Do It is not made available for consultation and reference by serious students of American Government at the very least".

Jerry Rubin is the leader of the Yippies, the Youth International Party. This is his testament, written as provocatively and offensively as possible. It amounts to a full exposition of the communist-anarchical philosophy underlying much of the student and prolonged-adolescent revolt prevalent today in the United States. Alliance with the Black Panthers is an element in the story, drugs are a factor. The tenets and attitudes which make up the "philosophy" are socio-economic and political as much as moral, although denunciation of conventional morality and subversion of accepted standards are preached throughout.

This is easily the most complete and authoritative statement that any member of the Tribunal has encountered of one of today's most disquieting social phenomena. It is ugly reading, but it provides a major contribution towards the understanding of a movement which is already to be reckoned with in many places. "Representative democracy is the enemy. The goal of each man his own revolution".

To refuse to allow the adult citizen to read this book would be to interfere with his right to make up his mind on questions which go to the root of moral and economic principle, matters upon which he has, as an adult, a right to make up his mind without unnecessary protection. It is not, in our view, the intention of the statute that we should attempt to deprive him of this.

We go further. The argument is aimed towards the minds of those considered likely to be susceptible to its attraction: adolescents and those who are immature. Here again we cannot believe that paternalist protection is in the interest of such persons, nor, therefore, in the public interest. To deny the young access to important facts of modern life or to a knowledge of doctrines which at some stage they are likely to encounter would be to do them a grave disservice.

In spite of features which we dislike and find objectionable, and bearing in mind section 11 (1) (b) of the Act, we have no hesitation in deciding that the Act does not require us to restrict the circulation of this book.

The Tribunal classifies it as not indecent.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

328

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Psychodynamics of Unconventional Sex Behaviour and Unusual Sex Practices by Paul J. Gillette, published by Holloway House, California.

There was no appearance of the applicant. Mr P. J. Downey, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the New Zealand distributors and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THIS was an application by the Comptroller of Customs. On behalf of the distributors we were supplied with copies of reviews of the book as an indication of its critical reception.

The case histories and explanations are typical of those normally included in publications of this kind, and there can be no question of the author's competence. Originally published as a textbook it is equipped with the scholarly apparatus of bibliography, glossary, and annotation throughout. The cover is unexceptionable, the style is not dramatised, there are no illustrations. We believe, however, that the place of the book is among textbooks and not as popular reading in paperback form.

The final third of the book deals largely with perversions and aberrations of a kind few people will encounter in a lifetime. While it is perfectly possible that the book might help people whose sexual make-up is unusual to reduce their feelings of guilt to more reasonable dimensions and to regard themselves in a more objective and healthier light, it is still true that this is a practitioner's book and that there could very well be a risk, of the kind we are required to take into account, of its being harmful and corrupting to some who might encounter it. We are of opinion that its circulation should be restricted.

The Tribunal classifies it as indecent except in the hands of persons concerned, either professionally, or as students, with sexual abnormalities.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

329

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Hidden Gems of Erotica by James Pounce, published by Riverhaven Ltd., London.

There was no appearance of the applicant. Mr P. J. Downey, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the distributors in New Zealand and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THE back cover of this book states that "here are unveiled and examined for the first time, seven startling, often shocking, examples of writing. These are 'sex stories'—suppressed until now—specially designed to please readers in search of what some people call 'pornography'".

Each story is presented by James Pounce and in so doing he gives a brief account of the story with his observations and explanations. Lengthy passages from the text are quoted and one would surmise that the more lurid passages have been selected.

The purpose of the book is frankly commercial and the extracts are chosen for excitement and for their pornographic content.

The Tribunal classifies it as indecent.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

330

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book The Klansman by William B. Huie, published by Sphere Books Ltd., London.

There was no appearance of the applicant nor of the publisher's representative in New Zealand. Accordingly no submissions were made.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THIS is an account of racism in Alabama in the United States of America told through the medium of a novel in which the characters are composites of real people. It is a story of the Klu Klux Klan and apparently every event that is related actually happened. In the words of a reviewer of this book for the Illustrated London News it is "ugly reading but no uglier than the reality: a chronicle of rape, lynching, and torture".

It is a tough story but a story that is told well and taken as a whole it is not indecent.

The Tribunal classifies it as not indecent.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

331

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Secretary for Justice for a decision in respect of the book The Man of Pleasures Companion by Peter Fryer, published by New English Library, London.

There was no appearance of the applicant nor of the publisher's representative in New Zealand. Accordingly no submissions were made.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THIS book is "a nineteenth century anthology of amorous entertainment". The amorous entertainment consists of a choice collection of passages from books, poems, magazines, and papers of that century.

Unlike other books of this kind which lack any reference to sources, a short bibliography at the back of this book indicates where the author has derived some of his material.

The Tribunal acknowledges that the anthology could be of interest to the student of Victorian society and its literature. There are, however, passages from various publications which combine sex and violence in such a way as to lead the Tribunal to impose a classification.

The Tribunal classifies it as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

30 July 1971.

332

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Bloody Mama by Robert Thorn, published by New English Library, London.

There was no appearance of the applicant nor of the publisher's representative in New Zealand. Accordingly no submissions were made.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THIS novel is in the tradition of "Bonnie and Clyde" but the criminal incidents are in greater number and variety and are more extreme in their depravity.

The book may be read as a riot of hilarity and a small proportion of readers would find enormous humour and entertainment in it. On the other hand, most people would see in it a glamorising of just about all the evils in the calendar of human iniquity; it has an insidious persuasiveness that makes its treatment of sex, horror, cruelty, crime, and violence injurious to the public good.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent.
