PURSUANT to section 34 of the Electricity Distribution Commission Act 1967, the Board shall exercise all rights and undertake all obligations previously exercised by the Council in carrying on its electricity undertaking.

4. REPRESENTATION

(i) On the date of completion, the Borough of Rangiora shall become a constituent district of the Board which from that date shall consist of nine members.

Tariff and Development Board Notice No. 282—Inquiry Concerning Protection for Inflatable Plastic Beach Balls and Other Inflatable Plastic Toys—Public Hearing

1. Following receipt by the Minister of Customs of a report from the Emergency Protection Authority the Government has accepted, with one exception, the recommendations of the Authority that inflatable plastic beach balls and other inflatable plastic toys be withdrawn from their respective item codes, 97.130 and 97.115, in the 1971-72 Import Licensing Schedule and be given a new item code with an allocation of 100 percent of imports of the same goods under 1969-70 licences. In view of the apparent lack of imports of the goods in the 1969-70 licensing period it has been decided by the Government that the allocation under the new item code will be 20 percent of imports of the same goods under 1970-71 licences.

2. In accordance with the provisions of the Tariff and Development Board Act the Minister of Customs has requested the Board to inquire into and report on what permanent form of protection, if any, is necessary in respect of inflatable plastic beach balls and other inflatable plastic toys, as classified in Tariff items 97.03 002 and 97.03.009 respectively. The goods are presently provided for in the Tariff as follows:

1. Following receipt by the Minister of Customs of a report from the Emergency Protection Authority, the Government has accepted the recommendation of the Authority that, pending inquiry and report by the Tariff and Development Board, a temporary duty of 15% be imposed, in addition to the duties already in force, on all polyester film sensitised for development by a diazo process from all sources except Australia. In this connection the Tariff provisions in respect of the goods in question, which prior to acceptance of the E.P.A. recommendation were as set out in Schedule A to this notice, have been temporarily amended, effective on 28 April 1972, in the manner indicated in Schedule B.

2. The "normal" refers to the present site of the instruments. The standard periods for normals are: for temperature 1931-60, for rainfall 1921-50, and for sunshine 1935-60. No normals are available for stations with only short records.

*The sunshine recorder is not located at the station but is in the near vicinity.
A "rain day" is equal to or greater than 0.1 mm.

NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR MAY 1972

General—May was marked by a greater frequency of south-westerly winds than usual, and it was predominantly a wet month but rather sunny. Excessive cloud and rain in parts of Southland and Otago made the ground too wet for farmers but elsewhere conditions were mainly favourable.

The heaviest rains were reported from the 13th to the 16th, and gales were widespread over this period with some damage, especially from easterlies in Greymouth.

Rainfall—Rainfall was above normal over almost all the South Island. It was more than double the normal value in an area mainly on the east coast of the South Island and 50 miles inland from Timaru to Balclutha but extending also northward to the upper Waimakariri catchment and westward in the south as far as Gore. Some unusually high totals of more than four times the normal were recorded inland from Oamaru. Duntroon received 165 mm, the highest rainfall for May in 57 years of observation, and of this amount 102 mm fell on the 16th.

Rainfall was somewhat above normal over the greater part of the North Island. However, it was below normal there in most eastern districts besides Bay of Plenty and northern Northland.

Temperatures—Temperatures were mainly ½°C below normal over the North Island and on the West Coast, but the same amount above normal over the remainder of the South Island.

Snow was reported to low levels in Southland and Otago and on the high country of both Islands from the 29th to the 31st. Lighter falls were reported in some areas on the 13th and 14th and on the 24th and 25th.

Sunshine—Sunshine was mainly above or close to normal but it showed wide variations. Eastern districts of the North Island were favoured with 40–55 hours above normal, Napier's total of 198 hours being a record high value for May in 38 years of observation. On the other hand, parts of Southland received nearly 40 hours below normal, and the West Coast was down by 25 hours.

Weather Sequence—At the beginning of May an anticyclone was centred over the Western Tasman Sea with a ridge extending on to New Zealand. On the first two days some rain was recorded in northern Hawke's Bay, Gisborne, and Northland. During the 3rd and 4th a deep depression passed to the south and the associated trough of low pressure brought a south-westerly change with fairly general rain, mainly light.

From the 5th to the 10th the anticyclone moved slowly eastward over the Tasman Sea. South-westerlies prevailed with mainly settled weather. However, light showers were recorded in some coastal districts at times. During the next two days a complex trough of low pressure was approaching New Zealand and the weather deteriorated from the south-west, with rain extending over the greater part of the South Island.

The period from the 13th to the 18th was particularly unsettled, with the heaviest rains of the month falling during the first four days. Rain became fairly general on the 13th as the trough of low pressure crossed the South Island, with some considerable falls. Snow was reported in the high country. During the 14th and 15th an anticyclone developed just east of the South Island, while a depression formed on the trough and moved slowly southward, west of Northland. Heavy rain persisted, spreading further northward, and many gales were reported. By the following day the depression was centred west of Cook Strait and the weather was clearing in some areas, especially Gisborne and Hawke's Bay. During the 17th and 18th the depression moved southward while a second small centre developed over Northland. Rain was still fairly general but mainly light.

The period from the 19th to the 25th was one with a predominance of south-westerlies. Three successive troughs of low pressure crossed the country, while the main centre of high pressure was almost stationary near Melbourne. This was a period of unsettled weather in Southland with frequent rain also on the West Coast, becoming heavy on the 23rd. Most other parts of the South Island and parts of the North Island also received some rain during this period, mainly light.

Yet another trough of low pressure moved on to the South Island on the 26th with considerable rain in Fiordland and South Westland, and lighter falls in Southland and North Westland. On the following day the rain became heavier and spread over the South Island and parts of the North Island with the formation of a depression west of Northland. During the 28th and 29th this depression moved eastward. Rain was reported in Northland, Auckland and Waikato, besides a number of eastern districts and Southland. The main centre of high pressure was still centred near Victoria, and the last two days of the month were marked by a return to south-westerlies with yet another trough of low pressure crossing the country. A depression formed on this trough as it moved north-eastward. Rain was fairly general but mainly light, and snow was reported to low levels in Southland and around Dunedin, and also on the high country of both Islands.
