No. 725-726

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of application by the Secretary for Justice for decisions in respect of the book Vampirella, December 1972. No. 21, and Eerie, February 1973, No. 45, both published by Warren Publishing Co., New York.

There was no appearance of the applicant nor of the publisher's representative in New Zealand. Accordingly no submissions were made.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THESE are two comic books of the more extreme "horror" variety. They each contain over 70 pages of comic strips interspersed with a limited amount of reading matter and advertising material all related to the same theme. They represent the picture story counterpart of the more bizarre type of science fiction and horror film. There is nothing obscene in them. In terms of the Act we see no grounds for preventing adult readers from reading them, though the average person would probably very quickly lose any initial interest he may have in them.

It is their impact on young and immature readers with which we have been concerned. To the very young they would be meaningless, and on those in their developing years we do not think these particular publications would make any more injurious an impression than many of the fairy tales on which previous generations have been nurtured.

The Tribunal classifies these two publications as not indecent.

25 September 1973.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

No. 727

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Moscow Nights by Vlas Tenin, published by Bantam Books Inc., New York.

Mr Bathgate appeared on behalf of the applicant. Mr Taylor, the New Zealand distributor, appeared. No submissions were made.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THIS paperback Russian novel, set in Moscow and its countryside, is described by its publishers as "the erotic sensation from the Soviet underground"—and as "the outlaw erotic masterpiece that explores the liberated variations of the Soviet experience—from sense expanding drugs to uninhibited sexual experimentation".

The novel is not without some literary merit and the account of life in the Soviet Union would be of interest to the general reader. The Tribunal was inclined not to impose a restriction, but after careful consideration of the descriptions of sexual encounters felt obliged to impose one.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

25 September 1973.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

No. 728

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the magazine Health and Efficiency, Vol. 2, No. 18, published by Plant News Ltd., London.

Mr Bathgate appeared on behalf of the applicant and made submissions. Mr Heron, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the New Zealand distributors and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

MR Bathgate advised that complaints had been received regarding the contents of this particular issue. The department was aware that the Tribunal in earlier decisions had declared Health and Efficiency issues not indecent and pointed out that the magazine had a long history as a naturist publication catering for those interested in nudist clubs. He submitted that issue No. 18 featured a number of poses and studies that were not straight-forward and natural.

The Tribunal agrees that some of the photographs are contrived and perhaps the honesty of purpose of this magazine is becoming suspect. However, considering the issue as a whole, the Tribunal is not inclined to impose any restriction.

The Tribunal classifies this issue as not indecent.

25 September 1973.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

No. 729-730

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of application by the Comptroller of Customs for decisions in respect of the books One for the Gods by Gordon Merrick and The Lord Won't Mind by Gordon Merrick, published by Avon Books, New York.

Mr Bathgate appeared on behalf of the applicant and made submissions. There was no appearance of the publisher's representative in New Zealand.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THESE two novels, the second the sequel to the first, are claimed to be a widely read American saga of the love of two homosexuals and their relationships with the world around them.

Mr Bathgate, appearing on behalf of the Comptroller of Customs, referred the Tribunal to the homosexual content and the low moral tone of the novels, and submitted that they glamorised a practice which was a criminal offence in New Zealand. There was no appearance on behalf of the importers.

The Lord Won't Mind opens with a detailed account of the seduction of a supposedly inexperienced youth of 19 by a more sophisticated young man, 3 or 4 years his senior. They form an enduring liaison, and the temporary and intermittent interruptions it suffers by unstable and unsatisfying attachments, both male and female, which both experience form the theme of the remainder of the book. The sequel, set in Greece and the Greek islands, continues, with obscene detail, the story of their psychical fidelity and physical infidelities.

These two books are not badly written. But, in our judgment, any literary merit some critics may claim for them is out weighed by their obsession with sex, and with detailed description of deviant and unwholesome sexual behaviour. These lead us to question the honesty of purpose of the two books. It is our considered view that they could have a corrupting influence, particularly on younger readers.

The Tribunal classifies these two books as indecent.

25 September 1973.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

Mr Bathgate appeared on behalf of the applicant and made submissions. Mr Taylor, the importer, appeared and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THESE 11 comic books have at least one characteristic in common—they depict scenes of violence and horror in a way that is injurious to the public good. Four of them contain frames which are sexually obscene.

In classifying these books, the Tribunal is required to have regard to subsection (3) of section 11 of the Act. Picture story books have a particular appeal to children, and if allowed free circulation these would be likely to fall into their hands. While most of the stories might be beyond the comprehension of younger children, the violence, cruelty, and horror come through so clearly and consistently that the effect of a sustained diet of them could be very harmful. The behavioural patterns which are held out for the education of the young reader are degrading and debasing.

The Tribunal classifies these books as indecent.
