No. 756-759

Decisions of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of a reference to the Tribunal under section 12 (1) of the said Act by the Magistrate's Court at Wellington for a decision and report in terms of the said section in respect of the following books: Child Love by Phyllis Norroy, published by Grove Press Inc. New York, Eros and Psyche by Alexis Socrates, published by Berkley Publishing Corporation, U.S.A. Ride a Cock-Horse by Lela Seftali, published by Olympia Press, New York, Tableaux Vivants published by Grove Press Inc. New York.

Mr Drury, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the Customs Department and made submissions. Mr Taylor, the importer, appeared and made submissions.

DECISIONS AND REPORTS

(No. 756)

Child Love

A novel written in the form of private letters from Phyllis to Marie recounting the adventures and experiences of a little girl to a classmate.

The letters described in detail the several adventures of a young girl not only with youthful girlfriends but also with adults—male and female.

It is unpleasant and depraved and has no redeeming features. The book has no honesty of purpose and it is written for one reason only and that is to appeal to the prurient interest of the readers.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent.

(No. 757)

Eros and Psyche

This is a translation of a French novel based on the classic love story of Eros—the God of Love—and Psyche—the soul—a princess of remarkable beauty as related in The Golden Ass of Appuleius.

This modern French version recounts with Gallic gusto the sexual adventures not only of Eros and Psyche but of other gods and goddesses of Greek mythology. The writing is pedestrian, the story is a poor imitation of the classic story. The honesty of purpose can be questioned. And because of its explicit descriptive passages of sexual behaviour the Tribunal is of the view that this novel should be restricted.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

(No. 758)

Ride a Cock-Horse

The back cover of this paperback book claims that it is "the first of its kind, the most vibrant, debauched, insolent little book ever". And so it is. It offends against the criteria laid down in the Act and is indecent within the meaning of the Act.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent.

(No. 759)

Tableaux Vivants

The jacket of this paperback novel, purported to be written by Paul Perret, claims that it is a kind of French "manual of erotology" whatever that may be. The Tribunal considers that the "manual", consisting of a series of 15 erotic tales, is written in a manner that offends against the standards of decency the Tribunal must apply. Taken as a whole this book is unwholesome and written solely for the purpose of exciting prurient interest.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent.

No. 760

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Women and Animals Vol. 1, No. 1, anonymous, published by Titian Productions, London.

Mr Bathgate appeared on behalf of the applicant and made submissions. Mr Henderson, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the New Zealand distributors and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

This curious volume has 30 pages of text and many times that number of pages of photos, with no connection being established between the two. The whole production seems devoid of editorial coherence or honesty of purpose, both text and photos catering for an unhealthy preoccupation with unusual sexual behaviour. There is a section of advertisements for other books included and this makes the pornographic nature of the publication even more explicit.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent.

No. 761

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book The Happy Hooker by Xaviera Hollander, published by AIM Printing and Typesetting, Darlinghurst, N.S.W.

Mr Bathgate appeared on behalf of the applicant and made submissions. Mr Taylor, the New Zealand distributor, appeared and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

The Happy Hooker is the life story of Xaviera Hollander, who took up prostitution on a part-time basis and graduated to become "the most successful madam in New York City". Her career, however, was shortlived. A campaign by the authorities to eradicate prostitution brought her a police raid in July 1971 and her premises were closed down.

The book provides a factual account of prostitution as a way of life and in the process examines many of the conventional myths surrounding the profession.

Towards the end of the book Miss Hollander switches to what is essentially a case history approach to describe the character, sexual problems, and backgrounds of the men who patronised her business and their reasons for doing so. Her accounts, particularly of those who suffered personality and physical defects or who were in some way emotionally or physically deprived, are not without compassion and warmth. While the methods she used to assist such people might not have been the most effective, or acceptable to society, there is evidence of Miss Hollander's genuine concern for people.

The book portrays what is essentially a hedonistic view of life, but there is some expression of conventional values. This may not be evident to the younger reader, but should be discernible to the more mature. Miss Hollander's somewhat exaggerated accounts of her own sexual encounters and experiences make up a large portion of The Happy Hooker. However, despite the fact that sexual activities are described in detail and in language which some might consider to be crude and offensive, the book is what it purports to be—the life story of a prostitute—and is not without some literary and social merit. The explicitness of the descriptions of sexual encounters make it unsuitable for younger readers. A restriction is therefore required.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

No. 762

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the book Xaviera by Xaviera Hollander, published by Warner Books Inc. New York.

Mr Bathgate appeared on behalf of the applicant, but made no submissions. Mr Taylor, the New Zealand distributor appeared and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

Xaviera—the sequel to The Happy Hooker—deals with Miss Hollander's life following the closure of her business. Tedious and trivial recollections of her experiences as a prostitute and brothel keeper, of the character and the escapades of the girls who worked for her, and of her later sexual adventures, form the greater portion of this book. Interspersed with these narratives are cursory and somewhat glib accounts of her co-operation with the District Attorney's office in its investigations into prostitution and police corruption, of her publicity trips to promote sales of The Happy Hooker, her interviews with the news media, and her subsequent departure for Canada, just ahead of deportation.

It is the Tribunal's view that this sequel lacks the elements which gave the earlier book some social and literary interest. The brief glimpses of Miss Hollander's new role as author are overshadowed by the recital of sexual exploits. This recital panders to prurient interest and the profusion of incidents is so great as to suggest that the book is an attempt to capitalise on the success of The Happy Hooker by providing sensational material for vacarious pleasure. The dominant effect of the book is to present the pursuit of sexual experience, including some perverse practices, in a manner and with an emphasis which we consider injurious to the public good.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent.

The "normal" refers to the present site of the instruments. Standard periods for normals are: Temperature 1931-60, Rainfall 1941-70, Sunshine 1935-60. No normals are available for stations with only short records.

*Indicates that the sunshine recorder is not located at the station but is in the near vicinity.

A rain day is a day with rainfall equal to or greater than 0.1 mm.

Where the extremes of temperature and rainfall have occurred more than once during the month, the date of the first occurrence is given.

NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR OCTOBER 1973

General—October was a dry and warm month for most of the country. The dry weather was already beginning to have a serious effect in Marlborough, where some farmers were selling off cows for lack of feed. Other areas affected, but less seriously, were Nelson, Canterbury, and Wairarapa.

Gales were widespread, especially in eastern districts, on the 1st.

Rainfall—Rainfall was below normal, mainly by 50 percent, except in South Westland, Fiordland, Southland, and Otago, where it was somewhat above normal. Greatest deficiencies were recorded in Bay of Plenty, most of which received less than a quarter of the normal rainfall.

Temperatures—Temperatures were mainly above normal and the departure amounted to more than 1°C in north-eastern areas of both islands.

The coldest days were the 4th, the 17th, the 25th, and the 26th.

Sunshine—Sunshine was close to normal over the greater part of the country. However, it was 30 to 50 hours below normal in Southland, over a considerable part of the West Coast, and in oastal districts of Otago and South Canterbury.

Weather Sequence—At the beginning of the month a trough of low pressure associated with a deep depression to the south was crossing New Zealand. North-westerly gales were reported in many areas, especially in eastern districts and about Cook Strait. Moderate amounts of rain were reported over a considerable area of the South Island and in Wellington and southern Wairarapa, but elsewhere the rain was mainly light. On the 2nd a weak ridge brought improved weather to some districts, but rain persisted in the west and south of the South Island. On the following day another trough associated with a depression far to the south crossed the country. More gales were reported and some snow in the South Island high country. Scattered rain affected most of the South Island and the southern half of the North Island. From the 4th to the 6th a large anticyclone crossed the North Island and the weather was mainly fine. However, rain commenced on the West Coast on the 6th with the approach of a trough of low pressure. During the following 2 days this trough crossed the country with the formation of a small depression over the North Island. Rain was reported mainly on the West Coast and in northern districts of the North Island.

From the 9th to the 11th another anticyclone moved eastward across the North Island with warm and mainly fine weather. However, by the 11th rain had commenced on the West Coast with the approach of another trough of low pressure over the Tasman Sea. A small depression which formed on this trough crossed the South Island during the next 3 days while the trough itself moved over most of the country. Rain commenced in the west and south of the South Island and spread north-eastward over New Zealand, but it was only light east of the ranges from South Canterbury northward. A very deep depression passed far to the south during the next 2 days, while a complex trough of low pressure crossed the country accompanied by a change to southerlies. Scattered rain affected mainly the West Coast and Southland, and eastern and central districts of the North Island. Gales were reported in some areas and temperatures became colder. On the 17th a ridge of high pressure brought improved weather in most districts although temperatures remained cold. Rain was reported once again on the West Coast and in Southland during the passage of another trough of low pressure on the 18th, and western and some northern districts of the North Island were also affected. A weak ridge of high pressure brought better weather on the following day.

During the 20th and 21st a trough of low pressure moved north-eastward over the South Island associated with two depressions, one to the south and the other over the south-east Tasman Sea. A considerable amount of rain was reported on the West Coast and some falls also benefited the areas east of the ranges as far north as Ashburton, besides Nelson and districts around Cook Strait. Temperatures became rather warm. On the following day the depression over the Tasman Sea crossed the South Island while the trough moved on to the North Island. Rain became fairly general but only light falls were now reported east of the ranges. Temperatures became colder during the 23rd and 24th with the passage of a cold front. Rain was fairly general from Canterbury northward, especially east of the ranges, but it soon cleared over the South Island with the advance of an anticyclone. This was part of an extensive belt of high pressure which covered most of the country during the next 3 days bringing fine but cold weather. However, the trough became stationary east of the North Island owing to the presence of a depression far to the north-east, and rain was reported in Northland, Gisborne, and northern Hawke's Bay.

For the next 2 days the anticyclone covered the whole country, with fine weather. However, rain affected western and southern districts of the South Island once again on the 30th and 31st with the passage of a depression over Southland and the eastern movement of the associated trough of low pressure across most of the country. Light rain also affected most other districts except in the east of the North Island.
