No. 812

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of a reference by the Magistrate's Court at Wellington for a decision in respect of the book Sex Ceremonies and the Occult by Pat Rhodan, and published by Brandon Books.

There were no appearances and no submissions were made.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THIS ill-written book is said to present cases of "the monstrosities of the occult world" in the U.S.A. with accompanying comment.

It offers detailed descriptions of sexual behaviour and its purpose can only be to excite prurient interest in the 'cases'.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent.

13 May 1974.

L. M. GREIG, Deputy Chairman.

No. 813-815

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of a reference by the Magistrate's Court in Auckland for a decision in respect of the books The Mouth as a Sensual Trap by Lydia Wilkinson, published by Brandon Books; The Swinging Singles Report by Thomas Eastwood, published by Brandon Books; and With his Mother and his Sister and Diana's Black Chauffeur by Michel Bourjade, published by Montmatre Press.

There were no appearances and no submissions were made.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

THE first and second of these books purport to be "case histories" and the third an original translation of a privately printed French book.

Each is a collection of explicit and crudely written sexual encounters devoid of any merit or honesty of purpose.

The Tribunal classifies each book as indecent.

13 May 1974.

L. M. GREIG, Deputy Chairman.

No. 816

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by Marketing Services (N.Z.) Ltd., for a decision in respect of the magazines: New Exclusive, Vol. 5, No. 7, 8, 9, and 10, published by Exclusive Man, London.

Mr. P. J. Downey appeared on behalf of the applicant and made submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

A salient feature of the Act under which the Tribunal operates is the attention that must be given to the effect on the public good in determining the character of any publication. The Tribunal must assess the public good with due regard to changing conditions. This need is most apparent in dealing with magazines of light entertainment, which, in a very competitive market, are constantly adjusting their content, style, and format to readers' tastes. The limits of acceptability, likewise, are not static and over a period of time may change considerably. The fundamental question to be asked of the four issues of New Exclusive now before the Tribunal is this: are these publications acceptable within the criteria laid down by the Act for circulation in this community at this time?

The answer in this instance can be readily given. The text, photographs, and advertisements in the magazines concentrate on presenting sex in a crude and prurient way, the special feature being a detachable poster-size centre-fold of a provocatively posed female. There is nothing in the magazines to complicate the simple, direct appeal they make to vicarious indulgence in their parade of poses and possibilities. The overall effect is to debase sex in a way that the Tribunal judges to be harmful.

The Tribunal classifies these four issues as indecent.

13 May 1974.

The "normal" refers to the present site of the instruments. Standard periods for normals are: Temperature 1931-60, Rainfall 1941-70, Sunshine 1935-60. No normals are available for stations with only short records.

*Indicates that the sunshine recorder is not located at the station but is in the near vicinity.

A rain day is a day with rainfall equal to or greater than 0.1 mm.

Where the extremes of temperature and rainfall have occurred more than once during the month, the date of the first occurrence is given.

NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR MAY 1974

General—May was a relatively mild month. Over the greater part of the country farmers reported good growth for the time of the year. However, in some northern districts of the North Island dry conditions persisted and the considerable rains of the 4th week were too late.

Rainfall—Rainfall was mainly close to normal. However, it was below normal by more than 25% on the West Coast with the Alps, the Canterbury high country and the greater part of Otago; in most eastern districts of the North Island; and in parts of Auckland and Northland. The week from the 23rd to the 29th was the wettest part of the month.

Sunshine—Sunshine was mainly close to normal. However, it was 20-30 hours below normal in Central and South Otago.

Temperatures—Temperatures were mainly up to 1½°C above normal, except in eastern districts north of Dunedin, where they were about normal. Snow was reported on the 7th to low levels in the South Island and also on the central high country of the North Island.

Weather Sequence—For the first two days of May an anticyclone was centred to the east while a depression over the Tasman Sea moved towards New Zealand. Rain was reported mainly in northern and north-eastern districts of the North Island, and also on the Southland coast. During the 3rd and 4th the depression developed two centres, one of which moved across the North Island to the east, while the other remained to the north of the country. A change to southerly winds brought rain in eastern districts. For the next two days an anticyclone over the North Tasman Sea covered most of the country and the weather was mainly fair. However, westerlies brought some rain to Fiordland. During the 7th and 8th a deep depression was passing far to the south and troughs of low pressure crossed the country, with some rain in most districts. Temperatures became colder and snow was reported to low levels in the South Island and also in the central high country of the North Island.

From the 9th to the 11th pressures were high to the north and low to the south. Freshening westerlies brought unsettled conditions to the Southland coast and Fiordland. Showers were also reported at times in Westland and also in some west coast areas north of Kawhia. During the next three days a trough of low pressure became stationary through Cook Strait with considerable rain in that area.

On the 15th and 16th an anticyclone centred to the east extended over the country, bringing mainly fair weather. For the next two days a weak trough of low pressure moved on to the South Island, bringing some rain once again to Southland and the West Coast. On the 19th the trough became slow-moving while pressures were low to the south-east. Showers were reported in some eastern districts, especially Gisborne and Hawke's Bay. On the 20th and 21st an anticyclone centred to the east brought mainly fair weather. However, there was some rain in Northland, Gisborne and Westland.

The period from the 22nd to the 29th was by far the wettest part of the month. A depression remained almost stationary over the Western Tasman Sea, while another small depression with an associated trough of low pressure crossed the North Island and became stationary. From the 22nd to the 25th considerable rain was reported, especially in northern and western districts of the North Island and western and southern districts of the South Island. A brief temporary improvement occurred in many districts on the 26th as the trough retreated to the north, but showers still affected most northern districts. During the next two days the depression over the Western Tasman Sea moved slowly eastward, while the trough moved southward again. Rain became fairly general, except in the far south-west, with some considerable falls in northern districts. Temperatures were cold in the South Island. On the 29th the depression crossed the country near Cook Strait with considerable rain in that area.

On the last two days of the month a large anticyclone with centres to west and east covered most of the country, and the weather improved generally. However, rain was still reported at times, especially in the central high country of the North Island and the Gisborne ranges.
