Notice of Intention to Grant Exemption Under Section 66 of the Marine Pollution Act 1974

PURSUANT to section 66 of the Marine Pollution Act 1974, I, Colin Campbell Alexander McLachlan, Minister of Transport, do hereby give notice of my intention to exempt all contributing ships other than home-trade ships and New Zealand fishing boats from the provisions of section 29E (2) of the said Act.

Section 29E (2) provides that a contributing ship shall not be entitled to a certificate of clearance pursuant to section 74 of the Customs Act 1966 until the receipt for any oil pollution levy payable in respect of that ship is produced to the Collector of Customs to whom application is made for the issue of a certificate of clearance.

DECISION OF THE INDECENT PUBLICATIONS TRIBUNAL

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Acting Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publications: The Wizzer Dirty Joke Book, The Fantastic Dirty Joke Book, The Nice Dirty Joke Book, and The Great Dirty Joke Book, all published by Pennine Publications.

Hearing: 25 May 1978.

Appearances: Mr P. E. Leloir for Acting Comptroller of Customs.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

Each of these booklets has 64 pages given up to a melange of cartoons, jokes, photographs and gags. They are uniformly vulgar, and salacious in an unimaginative and frivolous manner; the level of the taste is execrable. The Tribunal has no hesitation in declaring them to be indecent.

BEFORE THE INDECENT PUBLICATIONS TRIBUNAL

Messrs L. M. Greig (Chairman), D. M. Wylie, Mrs H. B. Dick, Mrs L. Edmond.

Hearing: 25 May 1978.

Appearances: Written submissions from the applicant.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

The publisher's blurb claims that "the simple idea behind this book" is "to help husbands and wives enjoy each other more". The text is made up of photographs of a couple performing the act of coitus in a variety of positions, and a short paragraph describing the advantages of each. The man and woman pictured are naked except that both wear brief underpants. The effect of this item of clothing, and of the blank expressions on the faces of the models, is to make the whole presentation curiously artificial and posed. The book has a kind of inverted prurience which the Tribunal finds offensive. Moreover the claim that such a collection of photographs, or their captions, can have any serious bearing on relationships between married couples is both flimsy and false, so that the book fails to meet the requirement of the Act for honesty of purpose. This was the opinion held by the Tribunal when the book was considered in 1970 (see Decision No. 223) and it sees no reason to change that decision. The Tribunal declares Love Positions to be indecent.

Hearing: 10 August 1978.

Appearances: Mr G. E. Tanner for Commissioner of Police. Written submissions on behalf of David Bruce Cameron.

DECISION

These nine publications each deal with the use and cultivation of drugs particularly marijuana and psilocybin mushrooms. The publications come before us following a seizure by the police, their attention being drawn to the sale of these books by a member of the public. It is stated that this is the first time on which the police have taken action under section 25 of the Act in respect of books of this type and it is the first time in which the Tribunal has had to consider this type of book.

The hearing of this matter was first set down for 22 June 1978 but was then adjourned to 20 July 1978 to enable the respondent to make application for legal aid. On 20 July 1978 the matter was again adjourned and was finally set down for hearing on 10 August 1978. The respondent on that date applied again for an adjournment because his legal aid application had not been completed and was subject to appeal to the Legal Aid Appeal Authority. Counsel for the applicant opposed the adjournment pointing out the considerable delay that might result if the matter was to await final decision by the authority. The respondent had provided written submissions on the merits of the application to us and after consideration of the application for the adjournment it was decided that the matter should proceed. We should say that as well as the original submissions made by the respondent we have also received further submissions by him in reply to the submissions made by the police. The respondent has in our view had adequate opportunity, which he has exercised, to make relevant submissions to us, but in any event the Tribunal must make the final decision upon its own reading of the documents and taking into account all the considerations which it is obliged to under the Act.

The first thing we should note is that of these nine publications, seven deal in more or less detail, with the cultivation of marijuana and psilocybin mushrooms while one deals with the use of marijuana in cooking and the other, New Zealand Green, deals generally with marijuana in New Zealand. The last is a somewhat different book to which rather different considerations apply.

The books about cultivation describe and depict ways in which marijuana and psilocybin mushrooms can be cultivated both for personal and commercial use. We were told in evidence that from the horticultural point of view, the descriptions were sound and would enable any person in New Zealand to cultivate the plants successfully, either indoors or outdoors. Sufficient advice is given to enable the extraction of the effective part of these plants for its use. The 'cooking' book promotes the general use of marijuana as a suitable ingredient for a wide variety of common dishes.

Marijuana is a controlled drug under the Misuse of Drugs Act. Psilocybin and the materials to be extracted from these mushrooms are also controlled drugs and the Tribunal was told that their active ingredients are considered to be particularly dangerous. The books dealing with the cultivation and cooking therefore deal with matters of crime in respect to the production or manufacture of controlled drugs, the supply of controlled drugs, their possession and use and the cultivation of prohibited plants. It is to be noted in this regard that in nearly all the books advice is given as to how to avoid detection of the growing, cultivation and processing of the plants; in some of them considerable space is taken up with a description of growth of the plants indoors and in quantities which are suitable only for commercial sale. In all the books, there is a clear understanding that the cultivation, possession, and use of the drugs involved is unlawful.

While this group marks a new departure for the Tribunal, which up to now has dealt almost entirely with matters of sex, the principles to be applied under the Act are the same. The questions to be answered, having taken into account all the matters in section 11 of the Act, are whether these books or any of them are indecent in that they describe, depict or otherwise deal with matters of crime in a manner that is injurious to the public good, or whether they are indecent in the ordinary meaning of that word as being an affront to commonly accepted standards of decency. In either case the Tribunal must decide what are commonly accepted standards and what is injurious to the public good. We are entitled to take into account the present public concern about the use and abuse of drugs and the steps presently being taken to increase penalties and to facilitate the detection of crimes relating to drugs in a Bill recently introduced into the House of Representatives.

The dominant effect of the books on cultivation and use now before us is to promote and encourage the cultivation of marijuana and psilocybin mushrooms in substantial quantities. The advice as to avoidance of detection and the general understanding of the unlawfulness of the cultivation and growth seem to us to cast serious doubts on the honesty of purpose of the authors and publishers of the book and thus those who sell them. There is no scientific, social or political importance in the publications and there is certainly no literary or artistic merit. The publications would have a wide circulation and would appeal both to users and sellers and prospective users and sellers of the drugs involved.

It is our conclusion that the publications on cultivation and use in this instance are both injurious to the public good and contrary to commonly accepted standards and are therefore indecent.

New Zealand Green is what is sometimes described as underground literature. It is part satire, part information and part propaganda in support of a change in the law. Unlike the other books it does not promote crime. The dominant effect of this book is not such as to cause affront or injury.

The Tribunal therefore finds that the seven books on cultivation and growth and the cooking book (numbered 2 to 9 above) are indecent and New Zealand Green (number 1 above) is not indecent.

The "normal" refers to the present site of the instruments. Standard period for normals is 1941-1970. No normals are available for stations with only short records.

*Indicates that the sunshine recorder is not located at the station but is in the near vicinity.

A rain day is a day with rainfall equal to or greater than 0.1 mm.

Where the extremes of temperature and rainfall have occurred more than once during the month, the date of the first occurrence is given.

NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR AUGUST 1978

General—During August pressures were slightly higher than normal over the North Island and slightly below over the South Island. Winds were predominantly north-westerly over the whole of New Zealand, but stronger in the south than in the north. Most of the North Island experienced dry, warm conditions, but in the South Island most regions were wetter than usual. Cloudy conditions prevailed in most areas west of the main ranges. Grass growth was reported to be good in most districts with lambing proceeding well in the North Island in the dry conditions. Some farmers in Canterbury, Otago and Southland lost lambs during the wet spell towards the end of the month, but stock was in a reasonable condition.

Rainfall—Rainfall was below normal in the North Island apart from some areas of Northland. In Bay of Plenty, Poverty Bay, Hawke's Bay and Wairarapa some areas had less than 50 percent of their normal August rainfall. In the South Island the only areas with totals below normal were Nelson, parts of Marlborough and the Canterbury coast as far south as Banks Peninsula. Many stations in South Canterbury, Otago and a few in Southland recorded more than double their normal August rainfall.

On the 9th and 10th heavy rain fell in Fiordland and Westland. At Milford Sound 332 mm was measured in the 24-hour period to 9 a.m. on the 10th, and this is the highest one-day fall recorded in August since this station began in 1930; the previous highest of 235 mm occurred in 1960.

Snow followed by exceptionally heavy rainfall in the South Canterbury and Otago regions on the 25th, caused a major landslip which blocked the railway line at Sawyers Bay (Dunedin), and derailed a locomotive of a passenger train. Large areas of the Taieri Plains were flooded, and many new born lambs were killed. Power lines were broken and roads closed by flooding and landslips. At Oamaru Aerodrome 58 mm of rain was recorded in 24 hours; the highest recorded in August since the station began in 1943.

Temperatures—Temperatures averaged nearly 1°C above normal over most of the North Island, and between 1/2°C and 3/4°C above in the South Island. In Otago and Southland they exceeded the normal by more than 1 1/2°C. Parts of Bay of Plenty were slightly colder than usual. Day time maximum temperatures were about 1°C above normal in most places.

Sunshine—In most areas east of the main ranges the total sunshine for the month was between 15 and 30 hours more than normal. Most localities west of the ranges had 20 to 40 hours less sunshine than normal, but Manawatu and parts of Westland were slightly sunnier than usual.

WEATHER SEQUENCE AUGUST 1978

The anticyclone that was centred over Australia at the end of July moved slowly onto New Zealand, and most of the country experienced fine weather until the 3rd of the month. Temperatures were above normal along the east coast of the South Island and in Wairarapa. Early on the 4th a cold front associated with a depression to the south of the country moved onto the West Coast, and heavy rain was reported in Westland and Fiordland, with moderate falls over most of the country as the front moved northeast. By the 5th an anticyclone had moved onto New Zealand from the Tasman Sea bringing fine weather to most districts, apart from the West Coast where some isolated showers were recorded. The anti-cyclone moved slowly to the east of the country on the 7th, and a depression formed to the south of Tasmania and began to move southeast towards New Zealand.

During the morning of the 9th heavy rain began to fall on the West Coast, as a cold front associated with the depression moving towards New Zealand moved onto the South Island. Some stations in Westland and Fiordland recorded in excess of 200 mm in the 24 hours to 9 a.m. on the 10th, and in the following 24 hours more than 150 mm was reported by stations in these regions. Most areas west of the main ranges recorded light to moderate falls during the passage of this cold front over the country. Most areas east of the ranges recorded no rain at all. Temperatures were higher than normal along the east coast of both Islands, exceptionally high in Canterbury and Otago from the 7th to the 10th. A weak ridge of high pressure extended across New Zealand until the 13th.

A complex depression developed in the north Tasman Sea early on the 13th, and started to move eastwards towards the North Island. By the 14th a warm front associated with this depression had moved onto Northland, and falls in excess of 40 mm in 24 hours were recorded in many areas of the North Island. As the depression moved quickly southeast across the country moderate falls were reported as far south as Manawatu. A trough of low pressure moved onto the South Island early on the 16th, and as it moved slowly across New Zealand moderate to heavy rain was reported in most districts. The only areas that experienced fine weather were Poverty Bay, Hawke's Bay and coastal areas of Canterbury and Otago. Temperatures were higher than normal on the east coast of the country.

An anticyclone became established over the whole country from the 19th to the 21st, but pressures fell rapidly as a depression moved towards the North Island from the Tasman Sea late on the 21st. A cold front ahead of this depression crossed onto Northland and moved slowly east. A combination of high tides, strong winds and heavy rain caused flooding and damage in some areas in Northland and Auckland. By the 23rd a complex trough of low pressure had moved onto New Zealand from the south Tasman Sea, and a depression developed in this trough early on the 24th. This system was slow-moving and did not move away from the country until early on the 26th. Snow followed by heavy rain caused widespread flooding in Canterbury and Otago. More than 70 mm was recorded at Oamaru in 48 hours, and nearly the same amount was reported in Dunedin in the same period.

The complex trough was followed by a depression moving across central New Zealand on the 27th/28th, this also bringing moderate to heavy falls to most areas, with lighter falls in Poverty Bay, Hawke's Bay, Wairarapa and Manawatu. A cold southerly airflow became established ahead of an anticyclone in the Tasman Sea, and temperatures became very cold on the 28th, especially in Canterbury, Wellington and Wairarapa, but warmer than normal on the West Coast.

The anticyclone moved slowly towards New Zealand, and extended a ridge of high pressure over most of the country—this brought fine weather to most districts. Early on the 30th a weak cold front moved onto the South Island bringing showers to areas of Southland, Otago and the West Coast. Another cold front was lying across Fiordland and Southland by the afternoon of the 31st, and this moved slowly north. Isolated showers were reported in many districts as it crossed the country. Temperatures were slightly warmer than usual on the east coast of both Islands at the end of the month.
