Decision No. 16/78

Decision of the Broadcasting Tribunal

IN the matter of the Broadcasting Act 1976, and in the matter of a complaint by Astons Limited under section 67 (8).

WARRANT HOLDER: Broadcasting Corporation of New Zealand (Television One).

BEFORE THE BROADCASTING TRIBUNAL

B. H. Slane (Chairman), Lionel R. Sceats (Member), Janet C. Somerville (Member), Rufus G. Wallingford (Co-opted Member), Allan P. Jesson, J.P. (Co-opted Member).

Hearing: 6 November 1978 at Rotorua.

DECISION

Mr W. G. Aston on behalf of Astons Ltd., referred a complaint to the Tribunal in respect of an item in a programme in the Fair Go series broadcast on Television One on 24 November 1977.

The Programme

The item in the programme arose from a letter written by Mr William Lyle of Lake Okareka who complained about the service he had received from the Rotorua firm, Astons Ltd. In a filmed interview in the programme, Mr Lyle told of having purchased a colour television set in Britain which he brought to New Zealand. He had it converted for use here, and claimed that it was a perfect set except it could not receive TV 2. Mr Lyle said he had called in a Mr Reeder, a local installer of aerials and television serviceman, and was persuaded that some people, known to Mr Reeder, could adjust the set to receive both channels.

The substance of Mr Lyle's complaint was that he had paid $95 and after four and a half months he had got back his colour set which still received only the Television One signal, had poor sound and no colour. He claimed that Mr Reeder did not say where the set had been sent for this work to be done on it and that, if he had known it was to be sent to Aston's Ltd., he would not have agreed because he did not think they had the men or equipment to handle the set.

He also said emphatically that he had not authorised repairs to the extent to which they had been carried out on the set. He said that neither Mr Reeder nor Mr Aston would visit his home. He still held an aerial which belonged to Mr Reeder which Mr Reeder had declined to collect.

All this was recorded on film.

The programme went to to record that Mr Reeder had said the set was not working particularly well at the time he took it, and the colour was marginal. The programme went on to say, however, that Mr Aston had said that it did not have a colour fault when it came in and a whole lot of problems developed during the time it was in the workshop.

The programme reported Mr Aston as admitting he had never seen a set of this type before but saying, "we felt competent to handle it." The programme alleged that although service information had been requested from Wellington it was sought only after the set had already "blown up on Mr Aston's work bench." It had blown up again after the parts had been replaced.

It quoted Mr Aston as saying that he did not consider any of his technicians were to blame for the failures, that fate had dealt Mr Lyle a dirty turn and it was not the result of anything done by the company. The firm had offered to waive the charges if Mr Lyle decided to buy another new colour television set from him.

Fair Go ended the programme by pointing out to the parties that Rotorua had a small claims court which could possibly accept the dispute and deal with it quickly, justly and cheaply.

The Complaint

On 23 February 1978 solicitors for Astons Ltd. wrote to the Director-General of TV One to advise that they had been instructed to issue proceedings for defamation in respect of Astons Ltd. in the programme. The letter also suggested that there would be justification for a complaint to the Tribunal.

The solicitors complained that although Mr Lyle had been interviewed in Rotorua Mr Aston was not contacted at the same time. They claimed Mr Aston had been assured of the opportunity of putting forward his version of the facts but he was not given the opportunity to do so. The solicitors asked that the complaint in respect of the programme be dealt with independently of a defamation claim.

There was subsequent correspondence between the Corporation and the solicitors which culminated in a decision by the complainant to proceed with the complaint and not with the defamation action.

On 21 July 1978 the solicitors were requested to supply further information which was done fully in a letter dated 1 September 1978. The complaint officially lodged with the Secretary of the Corporation was two-fold. First, that the company was not given an opportunity of appearing by Mr Aston on the programme to rebut the statements made by Mr Lyle, and secondly, that the programme itself contained untruthful allegations.

On 14 September 1978 the Corporation wrote to the solicitors for Astons Ltd. and informed them as follows:

"We have now had an opportunity to consider these details and it is evident that they are of a nature that would make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for the Corporation to reach a conclusion on the complaint. The Corporation's complaints procedure is one of internal investigation. It does not provide for parties or witnesses to appear, or for the testing of evidence by examination. The nature of the facts set out in your letter of 1 September 1978 appears to require this procedure.

"However, as you are aware section 25 of the Broadcasting Act 1976 provides in certain instances for a complainant to make his complaint to the Broadcasting Tribunal. The Tribunal is properly equipped to consider disputed evidentiary situations and you may prefer to have the matter adjudicated by it. Your letter of 20 June 1978 to the Director-General of Television One clearly contemplated that course.

"To enable you to invoke the provisions of subsection (5) of section 25, I think it might be helpful if I advised you formally, that for the reasons given, the Corporation is unable to reach a decision on the matter of your complaint. I do so, now."

The Tribunal sat in Rotorua to hear the complaint and had the benefit of evidence from Mr Aston, his office manager, Mr E. T. Louisson, and his workshop foreman, Mr L. G. Fish.

Mr Desmond Monaghan, Controller of Programmes, represented the Corporation and Mr M. R. McDonald, a researcher for Fair Go gave evidence.

It was Mr McDonald who discussed Mr Lyle's criticisms of Astons Ltd. with Mr Aston on the telephone. But before they spoke, Gillian McGregor, reporter for the programme, had been asked to see Mr Lyle while she was in Rotorua for another purpose and to film an interview with him for possible use in the programme. Mr Monaghan told us it was common practice to film such an interview in order to present succinctly the complainant's story. It cannot always be done in a studio setting. She was not instructed to see Astons Ltd. to put any of the allegations to them. This decision led to the complainant feeling there was discrimination.

After some discussion (initially on 14 November) with Mr Aston, Mr McDonald understood the programme was likely to be broadcast on 17 November. He claims that Mr Aston was invited to go to Wellington to take part in the programme in the studio.

Some persuasion was apparently used to encourage him to attend, Mr McDonald promising him that he would enjoy himself!

It is apparently the policy of the programme to tape record all such telephone interviews and, of course, to inform the person concerned that his conversation is being taped in accordance with normal broadcasting ethics. From that tape, extracts would be taken, which were used in the programme and the accuracy of which was not challenged by Mr Aston in this case. Their completeness was, however, challenged and will be discussed later.

It was the second conversation, the next day, lasting for about three-quarters of an hour which led to misunderstandings. There is a dispute as to what was decided by that conversation. Mr Aston is very clear in his mind that he had indicated he did not want to go to Wellington but that he did want the opportunity to go if the matter was to proceed in the programme. In support he claims that their conversation ended with Mr McDonald saying that he understood that Mr Aston would be holding himself in readiness. This he certainly did and had Mr Fish available to travel with him.

That was not Mr McDonald's understanding. He duly reported to his producer that Mr Aston did not want to appear on the programme.

It is quite clear that there was confusion and we have no reason to suspect that either party to the telephone conversation was endeavouring to mislead us in his statements made about this conversation. In fact each had a colleague listening to the conversation at his end.

The result was, however, that no step was taken by Mr Aston because he expected to be informed if the item was to proceed on the programme but had hoped that the full information that he had given would result in the dropping of Mr Lyle's complaints by Fair Go.

The office manager for Astons Ltd., Mr Louisson, however, heard a trailer for the programme on 24 November and became alarmed causing Mr Aston to telephone Television One where he managed to speak to Mr McDonald. Mr McDonald said that he had had a call in all day to Astons which had been unsuccessful. He thought that when he eventually did speak to Mr Aston that it was as a result of his toll call. In any event it was only intended by Mr McDonald as a courtesy call to inform him that the item would be used on Fair Go at 7.30 p.m. that evening. Mr Aston protested and eventually spoke to some unidentified person higher in the programme hierarchy. But it was to no avail. The producer made a decision not to drop the item from the programme in order to allow him to appear. It was the final programme of the year.

After carefully considering the evidence we are satisfied:

- (1) Fair Go genuinely wanted Mr Aston to appear on the programme.
- (2) The manner in which Mr Aston put his wish not to have to go to Wellington could have led Mr McDonald to believe that he was unwilling to appear on the programme and that no further steps needed to be taken to persuade him to do so.

Because we consider the confusion was genuine we cannot uphold the complaint in this respect.

It is, however, pertinent to make one or two observations. The first is that an invitation to a representative of a firm whose reputation is at stake in a programme, is an important matter. Consideration should be given to issuing such invitations formally in writing by letter or telegram so that there is no confusion about:

- (1) The nature and extent of the matter to be dealt with on the programme, and
- (2) The specific invitation to attend.

It may even be appropriate on such occasions to confirm in writing a refusal of a person to appear.

It is a practice well established in organisations such as the Corporation and in business generally to make full file notes of telephone conversations on important matters and to confirm some of them in writing to the party concerned.

As the programme was not broadcast on the 17th but on the 24th of November, the delay could have led Mr Aston to believe that it was not being proceeded with. In the circumstances there was ample time in which to have written confirming that Television One had noted his desire not to appear on the programme to discuss specific complaints of Mr Lyle.

Secondly, when such a situation has occurred, and it is discovered late in the day, consideration should be given to dropping the item. In this case we were told by Mr Monaghan that a decision was made not to drop the item. We were not told whether this was because of a time factor or because the producer thought that Mr Aston had simply changed his mind. We are conscious of the fact that, as Mr Monaghan told the Tribunal, decisions have been taken to drop items in the course of the broadcast of this programme. The Tribunal cannot determine at what stage such a decision could have been made in the present instance. In the absence of full information of considerations which the producer would have had to take into account, we cannot say with confidence that the item should have been dropped.

We would also point out that, if during the period she was in Rotorua, Gillian McGregor had interviewed Mr Aston personally and had been given the opportunity of speaking personally to Mr Fish this investigation might have been more thorough and certainly a good deal fairer. It is much less likely that there would have been confusion about whether or not Mr Aston was to tell his side of the story on television.

The second part of Astons Ltd. complaint, relates principally to statements made by Mr Lyle on the programme which Mr Aston felt had not been a fair summary of the facts and did not disclose that some matters of fact were in dispute. Principally the complaint centred about the clear innuendo in the programme that the faults were due to bad workmanship on the behalf of Astons Ltd. who were incompetent to deal with the particular set.

Astons Ltd. was concerned that the suggestion was clearly made on the programme:

- (1) That they had been paid $95 for repairs and adjustments to the set which proved ineffectual.
- (2) That they had handed over the set in what they had believed was good order and condition when it was not in such a condition.
- (3) That they had proceeded with repairs which had not been authorised by Mr Lyle.
- (4) That they were not competent to do the work they endeavoured to carry out.
- (5) That the failures in the set that occurred while it was in their care were their fault or the fault of their employees.

They were also concerned that there had been no disclosure that they had lent Mr Lyle a black and white set for free use while his set was in their workshop and that he had refused to return it.

The dispute between Mr Lyle and Astons Ltd. is now before the Small Claims Tribunal. For that reason the decision has been made but may not be released until after the tribunal has dealt with the claims and counter-claims so that any publicity given to this decision will not prejudice those proceedings.

It is, however, important to note that this Tribunal is not dealing with exactly the same matter. The Broadcasting Tribunal is only concerned with the way in which Mr Lyle's dispute with Astons Ltd. was portrayed on television and whether or not that portrayal was a fair and accurate one.

We had the benefit of Mr Lyle's giving evidence to us on some matters relating to the circumstances in which he was interviewed and the comments he made on the programme. We emphasise that the Tribunal has not investigated and does not adjudicate upon his dispute with Astons Ltd.

It does appear, however, that the programme did less than justice to Astons in a number of respects.

First, Mr Lyle stated on the programme that he had paid $95. In fact he handed a cheque for $95 to Astons Ltd. but stopped payment. There is a dispute whether he did this immediately or the following day—about which we are not concerned. The important point as far as the programme was concerned, was that he had never paid the $95.

Yet Mr Lyle was allowed to state three times on the programme without correction that he had paid his money, twice coupled with remarks about the condition of the set when he received it back.

Mr Monaghan agrees with the Tribunal that if the producer had been aware that payment on the cheque had been stopped, a correcting or qualifying statement should have been given on the programme to that effect.

The Tribunal considers it impossible that in the course of the long conversation with Mr Aston Mr McDonald did not become aware that that cheque had been stopped.

It is important in this programme that steps be immediately taken to correct statements which complainants may make, and which are known to programme people to be incorrect. It should not be left to the person or company complained about to have to correct the point as this may in itself leave some doubt in the minds of the viewers as to whose assertion is correct.

We consider this to be a serious fault and to justify the upholding of the complaint in part.

Mr Lyle's explanation for giving this totally wrong impression on the programme was that he had been requested to give a condensed version of the facts.

This also was the reason he gave to the Tribunal for giving the impression that, when he collected the set, Astons Ltd. considered that they had properly repaired and adjusted the set. This was not in fact the position. Mr Lyle admits that he took the set away in disgust and annoyance despite the request by Mr Fish for him to leave it until later in the day for a colour fault to be corrected. He had been invited in to see the set switched on after work had been done on it, and had then not been prepared to leave it there any longer. However on Fair Go he gave a distinct impression that Astons Ltd. had claimed to have repaired and adjusted a set which proved to be in worse condition than when he sent it in.

He also agreed that his statement that he had not authorised repairs to the extent of $95 was misleading. This also should have been corrected on the programme. He had himself supplied parts for repairs which arose after failure of the power supply on two occasions. This kind of failure, according to Astons Ltd., is likely to occur in sets without warning and had nothing to do with the work they were doing on the tuning of the set. We are not in a position to confirm this.

But we do consider their viewpoint should have been given and it should have been clearly confirmed that Mr Lyle did later, while the set was in their control, authorise further repairs to be carried out.

If all these facts had been made clear by the programme they may have had some influence on the viewer's willingness to accept Mr Lyle's statements about the competence of Astons. Rather as it occurred, the viewer was invited to believe the man he could see, while the refutation was given by studio characters reciting statements recorded during a research officer's long telephone conversation.

Furthermore the existence of the replacement set which had been given to Mr Lyle and his refusal to return it to Astons were not aired although they bore on the reasonableness of Mr Lyle's complaints about Astons.

There are real dangers in trial by television. The dilemma of someone such as Mr Aston (who would not present such a forthright and determined figure as his dissatisfied customer) is a real one. Whether to agree to be taken from his work for a day to go to Wellington to appear in strange surroundings to defend his company in front of the skilled television interviewer whose eyebrow raising may mean more to the audience than anything said in the programme; to realise that only the complainant, for economy of time, is pre-filmed and edited to be concise; or to stay away and hear one's words recited unconvincingly by a studio panel. Only at the studio will it be possible to see exactly what the viewers are going to be told. Will he be quick-witted enough to deal in a minute or two with his side of the argument.

In the present instance Mr Lyle was not available to go to Wellington because he did not want to leave his small business unattended. He was however filmed and his side of the story presented on the programme.

Mr Aston was thought to be unwilling to go to Wellington and therefore it behove the programme makers to decide whether they would afford a similar "privilege" to Mr Aston or whether to take abundant care to ensure that his side of the case was fully presented in his absence.

The Tribunal is not satisfied that a full version of the facts available to Fair Go was presented and while the Tribunal hesitates to say that the programme lacked impartiality it is certainly clear to the Tribunal that it lacked accuracy and completeness.

Care must be taken by this programme to ensure that personal participation in a "trial" by television is not forced upon individuals (or companies) by the fear that failure to appear in person will lead to less than adequate treatment of that side of the dispute.

There are three matters arising out of this complaint which the Tribunal feels obliged to comment upon:

- (1) There was 3 months delay from the time of the programme to the lodging of a complaint with Television One. There were further delays which were not the fault of Television One or the Corporation, before the Corporation could finally deal with the complaint on 14 September 1978.

The matter came before the Tribunal for hearing nearly a year after the original programme. Serious consideration was given by the Tribunal as to whether it should decide not to determine the complaint because of the delay by Astons Ltd.

Explanations were given that the cause lay with solicitors. It does appear that time was wasted by threatening defamation proceedings which they had no intention of bringing against the Corporation. Not only was the recollection of witnesses affected by the delay but some records were no longer available.

It may be that this Tribunal will decide not to determine complaints if they have not been lodged promptly after the programme, particularly where the complainant is the only person affected.

- (2) The Tribunal has once again to mention its concern at the Corporation's policy regarding the retention of records relating to programmes. We had the benefit of a video tape which had quite properly been retained. However, we were told that other records, papers, and tape recordings were disposed of in March 1978, after the complaint had been received by Television One. It was said to be due to a lack of communication.

We suggest, that care be taken not to discard materials relating to such a programme too early. (We accept there may be a need to remove them from a working area). Our remarks about keeping proper records of conversations and confirming arrangements in writing will mean little if the Corporation fails to keep those records after complaints are received.

- (3) The Corporation declined to decide whether or not the complaint against Television One was justified in whole or in part. Unlike the Tribunal, the Corporation appears to have no power by statute to decide not to investigate a complaint nor can it avoid having to determine whether or not it is justified.

We do not accept that it is necessary to have the power to administer oaths and conduct a hearing in the manner undertaken by the Tribunal in order to make some decision about the truth of allegations of unfair treatment.

If this were so then it would be impossible for prosecuting agencies, such as the police and Government departments, to undertake enquiries to decide whether or not there has been a breach of the law.

We commend to the Corporation a policy of carrying out investigation and gathering information, albeit by interview and/or correspondence with the people concerned, and to arrive at a decision as best it can on the material gathered giving due weight to the nature of the evidence available to it.

The Corporation might find it considerably easier to deal with such matters if proper written records were retained by programmes such as Fair Go in the course of their investigations.

Exchange Rates

IN terms of section 25 (2) of the Reserve Bank of New Zealand Act 1964, the Reserve Bank today released outer limits for rates of exchange to be used in transactions involving the conversion of New Zealand currency into foreign currencies and foreign currencies into New Zealand currency when delivery of the foreign currency dealt in will be effected by telegraphic transfer. The following range of rates, for the main currencies used by New Zealand traders in settling foreign exchange transactions, will remain in force until replaced by a new schedule issued by the Reserve Bank. In the latter case interest at foreign centre rates may be deducted from the telegraphic transfer rate to compensate the purchaser for his loss during the transit period.
