Exchange Rates

IN terms of section 25 (2) of the Reserve Bank of New Zealand Act 1964, the Reserve Bank today released outer limits for rates of exchange to be used in transactions involving the conversion of New Zealand currency into foreign currencies and foreign currencies into New Zealand currency when delivery of the foreign currency dealt in will be effected by telegraphic transfer. The following range of rates, for the main currencies used by New Zealand traders in settling foreign exchange transactions, will remain in force until replaced by a new schedule issued by the Reserve Bank. These rates do not apply to transactions for settlement after the expiration of 2 business days (forward transactions) or to transactions in which instruments are purchased which do not entitle the buyer to foreign currency balances in the foreign centre until the instruments have been delivered at the foreign centre. In the latter case interest at foreign centre rates may be deducted from the telegraphic transfer rate to compensate the purchaser for his loss during the transit period.

The "normal" refers to the present site of the instruments. Standard period for normals is 1941-70. No normals are available for stations with only short records.

*Indicates that the sunshine recorder is not located at the station but is in the near vicinity.

A rain day is a day with rainfall equal to or greater than 0.1 mm.

Where the extremes of temperature and rainfall have occurred more than once during the month, the date of the first occurrence is given.

WEATHER NOTES FOR NOVEMBER 1979

General—Pressures were higher than normal over the whole of New Zealand during November, and were exceptionally high to the east of the country near the Chatham Islands. Winds were mainly north-westerly and there was a lower frequency than usual of strong winds. Most areas were warmer and drier than normal, but some areas of Bay of Plenty were rather cloudy. Although some districts had high monthly rainfall totals, these could be attributed to isolated storms in these areas.

Grass growth was reported to be good in most areas, especially towards the end of the month. Some farmers had started hay-making, although excessive growth had made this difficult in some districts. Stock was in good to excellent condition, but some lambs had been affected by wet conditions at the beginning of the month.

Rainfall—The only areas with rainfall appreciably above normal were parts of Northland, Bay of Plenty, Buller and coastal Canterbury. At Invercargill the lowest rainfall for November (22 mm) since the station began in 1940 was recorded. Some parts of Hawke's Bay and Southland had less than 25 percent of their normal November total, and in Poverty Bay, Manawatu, South Canterbury, Otago, and Fiordland less than 50 percent of normal fell.

Between 9 a.m. on the 10th and 9 a.m. on the 11th nearly 83 mm of rain were recorded in a heavy downpour at Whangarei, making this the highest one day fall in November since the station began in 1967.

On the 20th at Albert Park, Auckland, 21 mm were recorded between 4 a.m. and 5 a.m. During the same afternoon and evening a severe thunderstorm passed over the Christchurch area. Between 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. 45 mm of rain fell, and at 4 p.m. when the storm was at its peak more than 22 mm of rain were measured in one hour. This storm contributed nearly half the total rainfall for the month, making this November with more than 100 percent above normal, the wettest at Christchurch since 1967.

Temperatures—Temperatures were above normal throughout most of New Zealand during the month by $\frac{1}{2}$ °C to 1°C. In parts of Bay of Plenty, Taranaki and inland Canterbury they were above average by more than 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ °C. In most districts both night and daytime temperatures were greater than usual. During a warm spell from 20th until the end of the month, afternoon maximum temperatures were above normal by between 5°C and 8°C in areas along the east coast of both Islands. On the 27th Hawke's Bay had departures of 7°C to 9°C above the usual maximum.

Sunshine—The only areas with sunshine hours below normal were Bay of Plenty and Nelson with 30 to 50 hours less than usual. Taranaki and Wellington were above average by more than 30 hours.

WEATHER SEQUENCE

The ridge of high pressure that extended onto New Zealand at the end of October weakened as a trough of low pressure moved onto the country from the south. Most areas in both the North and South Islands recorded some light rain as the trough moved northwards on the 2nd and 3rd. By the morning of the 4th an anticyclone had become established over the country, and this persisted until late on the 6th bringing fine weather to most districts. There were some heavy showers in the central North Island areas and Poverty Bay. Temperatures were slightly cooler than usual during the first week of the month.

A cold front, associated with a depression passing to the south of the country, moved onto the South Island during the evening of the 6th, and this brought moderate rain to Fiordland and Westland. Lighter falls were recorded throughout most of the South Island, and moderate rain in Poverty Bay, Hawke's Bay and northern Wairarapa. Early on the 9th an anticyclone moved onto New Zealand from the Tasman Sea, and this brought fine weather to most districts until the 13th. Temperatures were cool on the 9th and 10th, but appreciably above normal on the 12th and 13th, especially along the east coast of the country. During the morning of the 13th a trough of low pressure was lying across the South Island and moving north-east across New Zealand. On the 14th a small depression developed within the trough and began to move south-east toward central districts of the country. Heavy rain was reported in Westland, Marlborough, Wellington, and Wairarapa, and parts of Manawatu and Bay of Plenty as the depression moved to the east of the country. Some of these areas had 24 hour falls of more than 50 mm, with light to moderate falls elsewhere. A ridge of high pressure extended from an anticyclone in the Tasman Sea which moved onto the country on the 16th. Most areas had fine weather until early on the 17th, although temperatures were cooler than usual in districts east of the main ranges.

A depression which had formed near Tasmania was lying to the west of Fiordland on the 17th, and an associated cold front moved northwards across the country. By the afternoon of the 17th the depression had begun to move slowly north-east and was almost stationary off the West Coast on the 18th. During the 20th the depression moved across the South Island bringing heavy rain to Westland, Buller, Nelson, and Marlborough. The cold front also brought heavy rain to Northland, Auckland, Waikato, and Bay of Plenty, some areas reporting 24 hour falls of more than 50 mm. At Christchurch Airport a fall of more than 40 mm was recorded in the 24 hours up to 9 a.m. on the 21st.

On the 21st a trough of low pressure moved onto Fiordland and was proceeding northwards across the country. 24 hour falls of 60 mm were recorded in Fiordland and Westland with light to moderate rain in most districts of both Islands west of the main ranges. From the 23rd to the 26th an anticyclone was almost stationary over New Zealand, and during this period only light showers were reported in some districts. A depression which had developed off the Australian coast moved southeast towards the country, and by the morning of the 26th another depression had formed on a cold front in the Tasman Sea.

The situation had become complex by the 27th, with multiple low pressure areas and associated cold fronts moving onto New Zealand from the Tasman Sea. As these systems crossed the country heavy rain was recorded in Westland and Fiordland, with 24 hour falls of between 50 mm and 70 mm, and lighter falls throughout the rest of New Zealand. The only areas that did not report rain were districts east of the main ranges. On the 30th a further trough of low pressure had moved onto the South Island and this brought rain to most of the country as it moved northwards apart from parts of Poverty Bay and Hawke's Bay. Temperatures were above normal throughout New Zealand during the last week of the month. On the east coast maximum temperatures were at least 5°C higher than usual.

NOTES FORMING PART OF THESE ACCOUNTS

1. Bases of Accounting

These accounts are prepared on an historical cost basis. The following significant accounting principles have been applied:

- (a) Premiums and discounts on dated investments are amortised from the date of purchase to maturity on a straight line basis. Realised profits and losses on sales of investments are taken to profit and loss account in equal instalments over five years commencing with the year in which disposal takes place. As redeemable quoted investments are normally held to or near maturity, no provision is considered necessary for any difference between the book amounts and the market values of such individual stocks quoted below book amounts at the balance date, neither have any transfers been made from reserves or out of the current year's profits to write them down, apart from the amortisation of premium on stocks bought above par referred to above.
- (b) Provision for taxation includes an appropriate adjustment for deferred taxation.
2. The market value of Government and local authority securities at 30 September 1979 was $88,627,000 (1978 $101,397,000).
3. There is a contingent liability for subsidies on home lay-by accounts.

NOTES TO THE ACCOUNTS

1. Statement of Accounting Policies—

(a) General—The general accounting principles recognised as appropriate for the measurement and reporting of results and financial position under the historical cost method have been followed.

The following specific accounting policies have been consistently applied.

(b) Tax Allocation—The charge for taxation in the profit and loss account is the amount of the estimated tax liability at current company taxation rates in respect of the net profit reported for the year. Timing differences arising from income receivable which has been accrued but not received in the current period and unrealised appreciation on investments (see note 3) are accounted for in the deferred taxation account.

(c) New Zealand Government and Local Authority Securities—These are all redeemable at par at fixed dates. Whilst in the ordinary course of business some realisation of the bank's investment in the securities may take place at prices below book values, it is the opinion of the directors that existing reserves are sufficient to cover any losses that are likely to arise on sales undertaken in the normal course of business.

The book values of securities purchased at a discount or a premium are adjusted through New Zealand Government stock revaluation reserve so as to obtain their redemption values by maturity dates (see note 3 below).

The difference between book values and proceeds on realisation of New Zealand Government stock is taken to profit and loss account in the year incurred.

2. As at 31 October 1979, the redemption value of New Zealand Government and local authority securities was $94,606,830, book value was $94,165,614, and market value (exclusive of accrued interest) was $89,817,740.

3. New Zealand Government Stock Revaluation Reserves—Arising from adjustment of book value of securities purchased at a discount or a premium and still held.

SHADOW OF THE LAND

By Ian Wards

422 p. 1968.

The title for this book was provided by Nopera Panakarero, a Kaitiaki chief of much influence, who, in May 1840, believed that only the "shadow of the land" had gone to Queen Victoria whilst the substance remained with the Maoris. Less than a year later he revised this opinion convinced that only the "shadow" would be the Maori portion.

The author examines the British acquisition of New Zealand, the Maoris trust in the Treaty of Waitangi and their confidence that its terms would be honoured and explains it was only by accident that the Maoris were guaranteed the possession of their lands and ancient privileges.

It is under these circumstances that the book considers the use of military force in New Zealand, analyses the arguments surrounding the provision of troops and concludes that, beyond any reasonable doubt there was never an attempt to govern by "moral suasion".

New Zealand followed the normal nineteenth century British pattern of territorial acquisition.

The book is an essential introduction to the Maori wars of a later date.
