Commerce Act 1975—Economic Policy of the Government Transmitted to the Commerce Commission Pursuant to Section 2A (1) (e) of the Commerce Act 1975

Mr K. B. O'Brien,
Chairman,
Commerce Commission,
P.O. Box 10273,
Wellington.

2 September 1980

Dear Sir,

In terms of the provisions of section 2A (1) (e) of the Commerce Act 1975, I hereby transmit to the Commerce Commission, the economic policy of the Government as regards the production, distribution, and price of liquefied petroleum gas (LPG).

The Government's economic policy includes the goals: "to reduce New Zealand's dependence on imported oil" and "to increase diversity in New Zealand's energy supply system" (as stated by my colleague, the Minister of Energy, in his document "Energy Strategy '79"). To this end it has promoted the production and nationwide distribution of LPG as an alternative fuel.

LPG, a mixture of propane and butane gases in liquid form, is a constituent of the gas and liquid streams from the Kapuni and Maui gas fields. The product has wide application as an energy source, increasingly for automotive use. Production is currently at the annual rate of 15 000 tonnes, with the rate forecast to increase to some 60 000 tonnes by 1982, though supply shortfalls are likely to continue at least until mid 1981 when the main Maui LPG extraction facilities commence operation.

The following are particular points of Government policy:

- (a) The production of LPG from the Maui and Kapuni fields should be combined so that effectively there will be a single supplying entity.
- (b) A national bulk distribution system should be established, without duplication of bulk handling facilities—the product, by its nature, being costly to store and transport.
- (c) There should be an assured supply of LPG to the South Island.
- (d) A common bulk price should operate ex main depots in the North Island and main ports in the South Island, so that South Island consumers can gain direct benefit from the North Island gas fields.
- (e) There should be competition at the wholesale level (from the point of bulk delivery of LPG) on normal commercial terms having regard to the need to avoid an undue proliferation of wholesale systems.
- (f) There should be sufficient retail outlets to ensure adequate supply on competitive terms.

On the question of price, it is the policy of the Government that the retail price of LPG should be at such a level in relation to the price of premium grade petrol that reasonable penetration of the automotive market is assured once LPG supplies become readily available. Provided that this objective can be met by those responsible for the distribution of bulk LPG in concordance with the points above, and as the price of LPG will be constrained by the price of competing fuels (currently subject to statutory price control), it would no longer be necessary in the public interest for LPG to be subject to price control. Accordingly, it would be the intention of the Minister of Energy to take steps in terms of section 82 of the Commerce Act to remove the item from price control.

The economic policy of the Government outlined above should henceforth and until further notice be one by which the Commission, Examiner, and the Secretary of Trade and Industry and the Secretary of Energy shall be guided in the exercise of their powers and functions under the Commerce Act 1975.

Yours faithfully,

L. R. ADAMS-SCHNEIDER,
Minister of Trade and Industry.
