Decision No. 10/81

Com. 13/80

Before the Broadcasting Tribunal

IN the matter of the Broadcasting Act 1976, and in the matter of complaints by Robert Walter Dawson.

WARRANT HOLDER: Broadcasting Corporation of New Zealand (Television New Zealand Radio New Zealand):

B. H. Slane, chairman, Lionel R. Sceats, member, Robert Boyd-Bell, co-opted member, Gordon C. Ell, co-opted member.

Decision

Mr Dawson made 4 complaints to the Broadcasting Corporation. One was upheld.

We deal with each complaint individually.

Television 2: "Eyewitness"

An "Eyewitness" television current affairs programme broadcast on 9 September 1980, examined the result of the East Coast Bays by-election. Mr Dawson objected to the use of what appeared to be random interviews with 3 un-named people because they were not balanced or representative. He said it breached standards of objective journalism.

We have viewed a tape of the programme.

In the circumstances of the programme it was not necessary to obtain a number of interviews and present a balanced collection of them. While the purpose of the vox pop is frequently to do just that, in this instance it was to introduce consideration of National Party leadership and to illustrate the views held by some electors.

There was nothing in the introduction to the interviews to suggest they were anything more than examples of the "body of concern" about the leadership. The introduction did not mislead.

The Corporation told Mr Dawson: "Reference was made to anti Muldoon sentiment running high and the 3 interviews you refer to illustrated the point and served as a basis for further discussion of this issue. It was not a situation where balance of viewpoint was called for in the context of the programme discussion but the Corporation recognised that this point may not have been understood by many viewers and considers that an explanatory lead in to the interviews would have improved the presentation."

We agree with the Corporation's view. It would therefore be useful for news and current affairs editors to consider and define the proper use of street interviews, especially when the interviewees are not named. As the technique is so frequently used to reflect popular opinion, the use of unidentified people without a firm indication of the purpose could lead to the sort of misunderstanding by the viewer which led to this complaint.

The Tribunal does not consider that the use of the interviews or the way in which they were presented was improper or in breach of any rule or statutory requirement.

The complaint is not upheld.

Television New Zealand: "News" 12 September 1980

Mr Dawson's complaint was upheld by the Corporation in the following terms.

"The second part of your complaint concerned a news item on a food price increase in which 3 shoppers were seen being interviewed. The Board was informed that indeed a total of only 4 people had been interviewed and that viewers could have believed that the 3 gave views representative of a wider general view. This was not the case nor was it indicated in the item that only 4 viewpoints for the food price increase had been obtained.

In these circumstances the Corporation considered there has been a breach of the television rule relating to the accurate, objective and impartial presentation of news and this part of your complaint was accordingly upheld. This breach has also been drawn to the producer's attention."

Mr Dawson was not satisfied with that. He said the producer should have been reprimanded or disciplined. He thought the breach was treated lightly.

Section 25 (3) Broadcasting Act 1976 reads:

"If a complaint is found to be justified in whole or in part, the Corporation shall take appropriate action and shall inform the complainant of the action taken."

The Tribunal considers that telling the producer of the finding of the Board of the Corporation was appropriate action. There is no evidence that the breach was deliberate. The matter complained of did not require any other action. A reprimand or disciplinary action does not appear to be necessary for this type of incident in the absence of any aggravating circumstances.

The complaint that appropriate action was not taken by the Corporation is not upheld.

Radio New Zealand: "Morning Report"

Mr Dawson alleged the interviewer in "Morning Report" on 19 September 1980, pursued the Minister of Labour with "tiresome persistence." The Corporation found the interview though forceful, kept the minister to the point of the interview and was not in breach of good manners.

The Corporation told Mr Dawson: "Some questions posed incorporated a perspective of the situation which was then put to the Minister and even embraced interpretive comment on the Minister's reply, which was used as a base on which to mount further questions exploring the Government's position. The Minister was in a position to challenge, confirm or deny the contentions. It was recognised that any opinions expressed by the interviewer were conclusions that listeners could readily draw from the answers or the prevailing circumstances and were justified for incorporation in further questions."

Mr Dawson contended that the interviewer was ignorant of the Government's policies and that it was unnecessary for the interviewer to draw the conclusions for the listeners. He objected to the prefacing of questions by a paraphrase of the Minister's answers. He said the style of the interviewer was unnecessarily aggressive and did not appear to be informed or impartial.

The Tribunal has listened to a recording of the whole programme in which the interview took place.

The Tribunal does not consider that the interview was in breach of the rule that broadcasters are required to deal justly and fairly with any person taking part in any programme.

The Tribunal does not consider the interviewer was unnecessarily aggressive. It is often not understood by listeners that it is, on occasions, the role of the interviewer to take the position of devil's advocate. This is particularly so where there is some depth in the interview and it is not just a brief news interview where only the key facts might be sought.

The Minister was in a position to deal with the points put by the interviewer. The recording shows that the Minister was not disadvantaged by the approach of the interviewer. It is possible that, as a result of the strong questioning, the Minister presented his case with more force and eloquence than might have been the case if the interview had been conducted in another way.

The complaint is not upheld.

Radio New Zealand: "Morning Report"

In the same "Morning Report" programme on 19 September 1980, there was a report on some problems at the National Women's Hospital the following statement was made by the presenter:

"Claims by the Minister of Health, Mr Gair, that the problems of National Women's Hospital Neo-natal Unit are now well and truly over have been strongly refuted by senior medical staff"

Mr Dawson said the word refute meant "disprove by argument" and carried a judgmental comment undesirable in the news broadcast. The BCNZ should not condone the use of words in ways which would erode long accepted meanings.

The Corporation had told the complainant the point made was recognised and though it was agreed that it would have been better to use the word "deny" in the context of the situation, both words were often regarded as being interchangeable in common usage.

The Corporation told the Tribunal it had acknowledged that it would have been better to have used the word deny "which demonstrated that we have taken Mr Dawson's point".

However the Corporation did not uphold the complaint.

The "Heinemann New Zealand Dictionary" defines refute as "to prove a statement false." The Tribunal considers that the word "refute" was wrongly used in the context because the intention was not to indicate that "Morning Report" made a finding on the point in dispute.

Its use does not appear to have been deliberate. The listing of items broadcast in the programme read, "senior medical staff deny that National Women's Hospital problems are over". In other parts of the bulletin the word deny was used rather than refute in referring to the same news item. It appears to have been a sub-editorial error in the preparation of the introduction to the item.

Nevertheless we agree with Mr Dawson that in this context the word "refute" is not interchangeable with the word "deny".

The Corporation agreed with Mr Dawson and should have upheld the complaint (on this point of semantics) but chose to excuse the misuse of the word "refute". We consider its use should not have been excused.

The Tribunal upholds the complaint.

Decision No. 9/81

Com. 6/81

Before the Broadcasting Tribunal

In the matter of the Broadcasting Act 1976, and in the matter of a complaint by Clifford Reginald Turner.

WARRANT HOLDER: Broadcasting Corporation of New Zealand (Radio New Zealand—1ZH):

BEFORE THE BROADCASTING TRIBUNAL

B. H. Slane, chairman, Lionel R. Sceats, member, Janet C. Somerville, member, Robert Boyd-Bell, co-opted member, S. H. Gardiner, co-opted member.

Decision

Mr Turner complained of an advertisement for the Melville Wine Centre which was broadcast by 1ZH Hamilton on 5 December 1980. The text of the advertisement was:

"Today and tomorrow . . . there's a mighty pre-Christmas special at the Melville Wine Centre in Bader Street. Today and tomorrow your hostess at the Melville Wine Centre is Nola Gray, well known wine personality. She'll be conducting a wine promotion on these two days. You'll have the chance to win $5,000. Also . . .

there's 10 percent . . . even as much as 20 percent . . . off certain wine lines. So there you are, be sure to visit the Melville Wine Centre in Bader Street today or tomorrow for their special pre-Christmas promotion."

Mr Turner said the word "promotion" was a subterfuge to avoid using the word "wine-tasting". The advertisement mentioned the chance to win $5,000, a condition of which would be the purchase of a cask of wine. (He found this out by telephoning the advertiser).

The Corporation said that the rules permit a wholesaler or retailer to advertise the type of product sold, and this would not preclude reference to the promotion of wine.

When referring the complaint to the Tribunal Mr Turner raised another point. He said that the advertisement would endanger the physical mental or moral welfare of the audience in breach of Advertisement Rule 1.3.

He wished the Tribunal to determine whether or not an advertisement for a promotion was a euphemism for a wide-tasting and a breach of the rule.

The Corporation made 6 submissions.

1. This related to the alleged breach of Advertisement Rule 1.3.

2. The Corporation said that any suggestion of using a named person as a way of getting around the ban on brand names was untenable. Her name may be well known in the trade, but it is unlikely the public at large would conjure up a brand of wine on the mention of her name certainly not through a radio advertisement.

3. In upholding the decision in relation to a wine-tasting previously, the Tribunal said that it promoted the consumption of liquor. Since then the rules have been changed and the advertisement would have to be for the promotion of the general consumption of alcoholic liquor to offend the new rule.

4. The Corporation considered that a wine-tasting could well be an associated service permitted under Rule 1.11 (4) (C). A wine promotion could well fall into the same category.

5. Only wine was being promoted and therefore it was not in breach of Advertisement Rule 1.11 (4) (b) as it would not promote widespread or general consumption of alcoholic liquor.

6. The Corporation submitted that its decision was in the spirit and letter of the rules for advertisements associated with alcohol effective from 10 June 1980.

As we have said in other decisions there is now no ban on liquor advertisements "designed to encourage and/or promote the general consumption of alcoholic liquor". That is stated as a "broad intention" of the rule. But advertisements which conform with requirements (1) to (6) are clearly permitted. We do not find that this advertisement breaches the rule. The rule applies to this type of advertisement because it is an advertisement which mentions alcoholic liquor, but the advertisement conforms to requirements (1) to (6).

We do not agree with Mr Turner's contention that the mention of the name of the person conducting the wine promotion is a way of getting around the ban on brand names, because she may be known to be employed by a wine firm.

The advertisement requirement (2) is that advertisements must not use brand names as such. We consider it would be stretching the rule to agree with Mr Turner's contention that the mention of a person who identified with a wine company in this instance amounted to the use of the "brand name as such" in the advertisement.

The Tribunal was not required to consider whether a wine promotion for a wine-tasting is an associated service for which advertising is permitted under requirement (4) (c). While it could be said that wine-tasting is an associated service we do not think a promotion as such could fall into that category. But requirements (1) to (6) do not ban mention of a wine promotion in an advertisement. The list is simply of a number of prohibitions of the things that may be referred to.

Mr Turner alleged the Tribunal had already ruled that competitions associated with alcohol are not to be advertised on radio or television. This is not a correct statement of the position. The previous decision of the Tribunal depended on Regulation 14 which has been revoked.

As we have pointed out the opening statement in the rule is now no more than a general statement of intention of the rule.

As far as a breach of advertisement rule 1.3 is concerned it is clear that that rule must be read as part of the advertisement rules as a whole. These do contemplate advertisements being associated with or mentioning alcoholic liquor and it cannot be said that the advertisement rule 1.3 overrides advertisement rule 1.11.

We must say that we consider Mr Turner was justified in raising the matter with the Corporation. To advertise discounts does not appear to be consistent with the stated broad intention of Rule 1.11. Logically if discounts are to be advertised so should prices. To mention prices it would be necessary to mention brands and so on.

In the circumstances we can only reiterate our advice that the rules need to be rewritten.

The Tribunal is unable to uphold the complaint in this case although it considers Mr Turner was justified in bringing the matter forward. The outcome of the complaint shows once again the unsatisfactory nature of the present rule.

(1) In a letter of 21 May 1981 to the Commission, the Minister of Trade and Industry requested the Commission:

"To appraise the report of the interdepartmental study team and report on the present situation of the New Zealand electronics industry; the potential for its development; and its potential to contribute to New Zealand's economic growth, taking into account the interests of the manufacturers, employees, commercial and other users, and the distributive trade.

To recommend a development plan covering future development of the industry and action by the industry itself, other associated sectors and the Government.

To report on the above inquiry by 31 December 1981.

For the purpose of this inquiry and report, the electronics industry is to be considered to comprise both the consumer and non-consumer electronics industries. However, in undertaking its inquiry and report the Commission may take evidence on and otherwise have regard to any other matter or product it considers relevant to the inquiry under reference, or exclude from its consideration any matter or product it considers not relevant.

During the course of this inquiry and within the general terms of this reference, the Commission may, at its discretion and on its own initiative, further this inquiry or any part thereof by such means as it thinks fit, and give such notification of its intention as it considers necessary."

(2) The Commission invites parties who have an interest in any of the areas covered by the above reference to register that interest in writing with the Commission not later than 12 July 1981. Parties who intend to be represented by their trade association need not register individually, but being parties to a trade association submission does not preclude parties registering and making their own submissions.

can be referred to publicly by the Commission. Comments should reach the Commission's office not later than 7 August 1981.

(7) The Commission does not have copies of material provided to either the D.S.I.R. for its recent study on the electronics industry or the Department of Trade and Industry for the Electronics Industry Study because of confidentiality provisions. If interested parties wish to make this material available to the Commission they should forward a copy direct to the Commission.

(8) After receiving comments on the study team's report, the Commission will compile a draft report, with draft recommendations. This will be distributed to parties which have registered their interest in accordance with (2) above.

(9) Submissions will then be invited on the Commission's draft report. These should be provided in typewritten form with 14 copies of the public submissions and 12 copies of confidential submissions. They will need to reach the Commission's office not later than 9 October 1981.

In undertaking the study the Commission will be required to prepare an industry development plan which outlines an optimal pattern of future development within the industry and which recognises the government's policy as indicated above.

I therefore request the Commission to:

Inquire into and report on—the present situation of New Zealand's motor vehicle industry, the potential for its development, and the future objectives for the motor vehicle industry.

Recommend—

a development plan for the motor vehicle industry which meets the government's objectives of retaining the motor vehicle assembly and automotive component manufacturing industries, improving its efficiency, and ensuring that future investment within the industry constitutes an efficient use of resources from the national viewpoint, taking into account developments in the international motor vehicle industry.

For the purpose of this inquiry and report, the motor vehicle industry is to be taken to comprise those sectors and products described in the attached Annex A.

In undertaking its inquiry and report the Commission may take evidence on and otherwise have regard to any other material or product it considers relevant to the inquiry under reference, or exclude from its consideration any material or product it might consider not relevant to its inquiry.

During the course of this inquiry and within the general terms of this reference, the Commission may, at its discretion and on its own initiative, further this inquiry or any part thereof by such means as it thinks fit, and give such notification of its intentions as it considers necessary.

The Commission is requested to present its report to the government by 30 April 1982."

(2) It should be noted that the content of this reference is wider than that upon which the inter-departmental study team reported. Industries Development Commission Notice No. 1981/8, Study of the Motor Vehicle Industry

(1) In a letter of 6 May 1981, the Minister of Trade and Industry requested the Commission to undertake a study of the above industry and recommend a plan for its future development. The Minister's letter reads:

"In a statement on 24 November 1980 I advised that the government had decided to refer the motor vehicle industry study to the Industries Development Commission. This would be done once the government had decided which development option contained in the inter-departmental study team's interim report on the New Zealand Motor Car Assembly and Component Manufacturing Industries it would adopt as government policy.

The interim report examined the efficiency of the motor car assembly and automotive component manufacturing industries, and presented three basic policy options for their future direction. These options were:

Option I: To allow the industry to continue in its present form, subject to the same government controls, and use as a tool of economic management.

Option II: To phase out c.k.d. assembly over the next 5 to 10 years and meet New Zealand's annual motor car requirements through c.b.u. imports from the cheapest international source.

Option III: To develop, in consultation with the industry, a motor vehicle industry plan which establishes a policy based on the retention of the assembly industry and changes required to improve the industry's efficiency.

Following consideration of the inter-departmental report and submissions received on it from interested parties, the Cabinet Economic Committee on 28 January 1981, adopted an amended option III as government policy for the development of the motor vehicle industry. This decision and the CEC decision of 28 April 1981 recognised the government's wish to maintain the motor vehicle assembly and automotive component manufacturing industries while at the same time ensuring that future investment within the industry is channelled into efficient and productive activities having regard to developments within the international motor vehicle industry.

Enclosed as Annex B is a copy of the inter-departmental study team's interim report together with submissions received from interested parties.

The following parties will be recorded as registrants and need take no further action to register:

Decision No. 11/81
Com. 12/80

Before the Broadcasting Tribunal

IN the matter of the Broadcasting Act 1976, and in the matter of a complaint by Monitor Incorporated.

WARRANT HOLDERS: Broadcasting Corporation of New Zealand (Television New Zealand):

B. H. Slane, Chairman; Lionel R. Sceats, Member; S. H. Gardiner, Co-opted Member; Robert Boyd-Bell, Co-opted Member.

DECISION

MONITOR Incorporated complained about an advertisement by Broadlands Finance Ltd., the story board for which is annexed.

Monitor Inc. alleged that the advertisement was in breach of Rule 2.2 (b):

Children should not be urged in advertisements to ask their parents to buy particular products for them.

The Corporation did not uphold the complaint.

The Corporation did not take any account of any concurrent advertising. (A colouring-in competition was apparently promoted by the advertiser.)

The Corporation did not consider the naturalness of the advertisement made it objectionable particularly as it was not framed in a way to take advantage of the natural credulity of children nor was the thirteen-year-old urging her father to buy the particular items mentioned for her.

The Corporation decided that the child did not ask for things for herself but revealed a curiosity as to whether her father had any interest in obtaining certain items for the family's collective benefit.

The Corporation considered that the advertisement was intended to interest adults in a means of obtaining additional finance for home improvements and family amenities. The intention of the rule was to prevent parents being pressured by advertisements directed at children and the Corporation did not consider the rule and the advertisement to be in conflict.

Monitor referred the complaint to the Tribunal and in doing so made three points.

1. The Corporation should have taken into account the colouring-in competition which is to bring the children's attention to the services of the company and the television commercials.
2. The child was used to pose the question rather than an adult. The naturalness of the child wanting these things made the advertisement objectionable.
3. The message of the commercial was that the pool, the bedroom and the boat were obtainable now through a Broadlands loan. It was naive to think that children did not understand the message and that some of them did not then put pressure on their parents to get a loan in order to buy the things shown in the commercial.

Monitor submitted that it was the combination of these factors that made the commercial a breach of Rule 2.2 (b).

Members of the Tribunal not only observed the commercial a number of times on television but also viewed and discussed at length a videotape of the commercial.

The Tribunal came to the conclusion that it could not uphold the complaint for the following reasons.

First, the rule is fairly narrowly drafted and appears to have been intended for advertisements which directly urge children to ask their parents to buy particular products for them.

The complaint concerns an advertisement in which the advertiser does not aim his message principally at children.

The use of the child in the advertisement does not in itself indicate that the advertisement is intended to urge children to ask their parents to buy particular products.

It could be argued that the colouring-in contest achieves its goal if parents visit Broadlands premises to get a copy of the form. But we consider that, in this case, no great weight should be given to associated advertising in view of the wording of the rule.

Secondly, the advertisement clearly invites the viewer to consult Broadlands about the possibility of borrowing to acquire particular products. What the advertisement does is to raise the possibility of acquiring these items by means of finance provided by the advertiser. We think the distinction, in view of the narrow wording of the rule, is important.

Thirdly, as we saw the advertisement it was clearly directed to parents ("Don't wait for one day.") not to children. While it uses the appeal that the acquisition of the products might have to parents through pleasing their children, we do not see the advertisement as including a message for child viewers to press their parents to make these acquisitions.

The word in the rule is "urged". The complainant appears to consider that if the advertisement simply had the result of some children asking their parents to make these acquisitions that would constitute a breach of the rule. But the rule requires that the advertisement urge children to ask their parents. We cannot find that the advertisement crosses the line drawn by the advertisement rule.

We refrain from indicating where the line should be drawn in such matters. It is clear that the complainant would want to have the rule changed to provide a stricter standard.

The complaint is not upheld.

Co-opted Members

Messrs Gardiner and Boyd-Bell were co-opted as persons whose qualifications and experience were likely to be of assistance to the Tribunal in dealing with this complaint. They participated in the consideration of the complaint but, in accordance with the Act, the decision is that of the permanent members of the Tribunal.

Dated the 9th day of June 1981.

B. H. SLANE, Chairman.

GENERAL PUBLICATIONSMAORI AGRICULTURE

By Elsdon Best

NATIONAL MUSEUM BULLETIN No. 9

315 p. 1976. $13.50 plus $1.25 p & p

The only comprehensive study of Maori agriculture available, this bulletin adds a further volume to the series of Elsdon Best's works which the Government Printer undertook to reprint preserving the original text and bulletin numbers. I recommend this book and the series as a whole; to collectors, archaeologists, and to those studying the prehistoric economy of the Maori people. (Government Printer.)

THE MAORI AS HE WAS

By Elsdon Best

295 p. 1974 reprint. $6.50 plus 70c p & p

Fifty years of public demand since this book was first published resulted in the need for reprints in 1934 and 1952. The text has been reproduced unchanged but the originals of some of the figures could not be traced and these have been replaced with similar illustrations. There have been many advances in our knowledge of Maori life since this book first appeared. The work of numerous ethnologists, and more recently archaeologists, has critically examined many of the earlier concepts, confirming some, disproving others, and altering others to varying degrees. No one has yet produced a synthesis of the results of all this scholarship and there is still nothing as comprehensive as this book of Best's to give a general account of the Maori. This book was first published when Best was 68 and thus represents the accumulated knowledge of a lifetime. It has now become a classic introduction to Maori life. Its continued availability should help the reader to obtain a basic background to old time Maori life which can be extended by further reading.

THE MAORI CANOE

By Elsdon Best

451 p. 1976. $17.50 plus $1.25 p & p

A reprinted edition without textual alterations and retaining the old Dominion Museum number. Another example of Elsdon Best's dedicated effort to preserve Maori culture. The material presented on canoes, their materials, types, methods of construction, and associated artifacts make interesting reading for the layman as well as for scholars of the Maori. (Government Printer.)

MAORI STOREHOUSES AND KINDRED STRUCTURES

By Elsdon Best

116 p., illustrated. 1974 reprint. $6.50 plus 70c p & p

As an authority on Maori culture, the author has compiled in this publication a comprehensive record on the use of the different storage structures, etc., used by the Maori in former times. By studying items pertaining to Maori technology it is hoped this will throw light upon many phases of the social life and customs hitherto unknown. This bulletin is No. 5 in the Dominion Museum Series.

MICROZONING FOR EARTHQUAKES EFFECTS IN WELLINGTON, NEW ZEALAND

By T. L. Grant-Taylor, R. D. Adams, T. Hatherton, J. D. G. Milne, R. D. Northey, and W. R. Stephenson of the New Zealand Department of Scientific and Industrial Research

61 p. $8.50 plus 70c p & p

This report on earthquake microzoning is aimed at dividing extensive areas of Wellington into smaller zones and is intended as a guide only to planning of future redevelopment. The detailed studies of local geology and soil investigations have resulted in an Earthquake Microzone Map of Wellington. This map accompanies this publication. This report is the first one of a series. Later it is the intention to microzone other areas in the same way.

NATIONAL PARKS OF NEW ZEALAND

178 p. Revised third edition. 1974. $10.50

The revision of this popular publication has included numerous new colour plates and additional information on some of our parks. Because of the popularity of this book it is expected this edition will be in great demand. In addition to the book being an ideal souvenir for the overseas visitor it makes an ideal gift and also a valuable asset to anyone's home library.

NATIONAL MUSEUM MONOGRAPHS

Elsdon Best (1856-1931), who was a member of the staff of the then Dominion Museum from 1911 to 1931, made a notable contribution to the study of Maori ethnology. After a lifetime of experience, including many years in close contact with the Maoris of the Urewera, he spent the last 20 years of his life writing particularly of the social customs and beliefs of the Maori people. There is still a demand for the many monographs written by Elsdon Best and the following titles have been reprinted without alteration to the original text (National Museum):

No. 1. Some Aspects of Maori Myth and Religion. 43 p.	$1
