Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

Decision No.: 1007

Reference No.: IND 26/80

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the District Court for a decision in respect of the following publication: Key Magazine No. 6 published by Key Publishing, Auckland:

BEFORE THE INDECENT PUBLICATIONS TRIBUNAL

Judge W. M. Willis (chairman); Mesdames H. B. Dick, L. P. Nikera; Messrs J. V. B. McLinden, I. W. Malcolm.

Hearing: 1 May 1981.

Decision: 1 October 1981.

Appearances: Inspector D. L. Bates for Legal Section, New Zealand Police, Mr J. Billington for Venus Shop Ltd. Written submissions supplied by Mr Alan Douglas, Publisher, Key Publishing, Auckland. Written submissions supplied by Aloma H. Colgan, Ph.D., Clinical Psychologist, Human Relations Centre, Auckland.

DECISION

A single copy of Key Magazine No. 6 was submitted by the District Court for classification pursuant to section 22 of the Indecent Publications Act 1963. The magazine came before the Tribunal as a result of a complaint being made to the Police by an adult member of the public.

A general description of the form and content of the publication may be helpful at this stage. Key Magazine has apparently been published in New Zealand since October 1978. Issue No. 6 contains 40 pages and measures 170 mm × 210 mm.

The bulk of the magazine is given over to the publication of advertisements by persons who (in the vast majority of cases) seek to make sexual contact with others. Five general types of advertisement are carried:

1. Couples seeking "swinging" times.
2. Women wanting to meet men.
3. Bi-sexual women wanting to meet other women.
4. Persons with unusual or "kinky tastes" who want others to share their sexual proclivity.
5. Men looking for women.

In many cases the advertisements directly solicit sexual contact. By way of example we set out two typical advertisements below:

(1) At page 6:

Couples: North Shore: Couple 45 and 36 need use of a suitable place in North Shore (Devonport to Albany) for discreet daytime sex. Female occupant would be welcome to join us. Male partner also interested in a friendly couple or lady who needs to satisfy unusual desires, daytime only. Any age group welcome. (C184.)

(2) At page 26:

Men: Rotorua: Happily married guy, but not getting enough. 30 years old, well built and good stayer. Very randy, would like to meet solo mother, single girls, bored housewives, for daytime sex. Race and age immaterial, if we click it's all go. All replies answered. (M456.)

In addition to the advertisements there are a number of articles and letters on sexual matters, and there are some 9 photographs of females and 2 of males, in states of partial or complete nudity.

After making those general remarks concerning the form and content of the publication, we turn now to examine those matters as required by section 11 of the Indecent Publications Act.

1. THE DOMINANT EFFECT OF THE PUBLICATION

There can be little or no doubt that the primary purpose of the publication is to provide a forum for persons wishing to make sexual contact with others.

The man behind Key Magazine, Mr Alan Douglas, explained to us his motives in publishing the magazine.

The magazine appears to have had its genesis in the fact that the New Zealand Herald had refused to accept an advertisement from Mr Douglas who was seeking a companion to "cuddle on a cold winter's night". Apparently the Herald was prepared to consider a form of advertisement with the word "cuddle" deleted. Mr Douglas could not see why his advertisement had to be censored in the way described, and since he felt there was a need for a publication to print such advertisements, he commenced publishing Key Magazine, as we understand it, some time in 1978.

Although Key Magazine initially may have carried only advertisements for lonely persons who wished to "cuddle" and the like, it (not unlike its former readers and advertisers, we imagine) has progressed rapidly to the stage of the direct solicitation for sexual relations.

One of the issues we have to decide is if the dominant effect of the publication is injurious to the public good, according to the test of indecency adopted by the majority in the High Court in Waverley Publishing Company Ltd. v Comptroller of Customs [1980] 1 NZLR 631. We note in passing that this test is higher than one which requires the material to be considered indecent according to the current standards of the community. The material must go beyond that and must be injurious to the public good.

In support of such a submission the Police stated:

"Various illustrations are offensively explicit and over all, human sexuality is dealt with in a debasing, coarse and rude manner."

Insofar as the contents of the advertisements could be criticised, Mr Douglas argued that:

"In fact, human sexuality is dealt with AS IT IS, painful though that may be to some."

Mr Douglas also submitted that the photographs in the publication were not in the least offensive to the people who buy the magazine, and that they were no more explicit than those on view each month in Penthouse. (Of the former submission we note that a similar submission was rejected by the House of Lords in DPP v. Whyte [1972] 3 All ER 12.)

We have more to say about the photographs later.

In as much as the advertisements deal, in many cases, in a brutally frank fashion with the satisfaction of a basic human passion, the views expressed by the Police and Mr Douglas may both be right. In a civilised society the demands of raw human passions are normally restrained in public. However, when the constraints of social veneer are removed or where the individual has the protection of anonymity what then emerges is not always pleasant.

We feel, in keeping with the standards that exist in the community, that if the test of indecency was that which is "an affront to commonly accepted standards of decency" (as expressed by Richmond, J., in Police v. News Media Ownership Ltd. [1975] 1 NZLR 610, 624) that we could regard this magazine as indecent. This is because we feel most people in the community would find a magazine that permitted the direct solicitation of sex by advertisement as offensive or debasing and contrary to normal standards of decency.

As already stated we are required to go further than that and find that the advertising, and the presentation of the publication is injurious to the public good. We feel we are able to take that further step in this case. We find that not only is this publication undesirable in the general sense already expressed above, but we find that its dominant effect which is really to act as a carrier in the spread of promiscuity, is injurious to our social fabric, and therefore injurious to the public good.

There are two main aspects of the publication which worry us. The threat to the family unit, and the possibility of the abuse of information obtained from a publication of this type.

We express concern that this publication contains some 60 advertisements from couples, many of whom are married, who wish to meet other couples or single persons for sexual encounters. There are numerous other advertisements by married persons in what might be called "singles" columns, which presumably means those persons want some extra-marital sex without their partners being aware, or being involved.

No doubt if the partners to a marriage want to indulge in extra-marital sexual promiscuity for whatever reason, they are completely free to do so in our present society. Normally, the parties are sensible enough to be discreet and conduct their affairs in private.

However concealed from public scrutiny that activity may be, it is a virtually inescapable conclusion that trauma and damage to the family unit may result, especially where children are involved. Most responsible people would regard it as abhorrent that children were brought up in an atmosphere of parental "swinging" and partner swapping. Even without the existence of children in the relationship, we can see the encouragement of promiscuity of this kind among couples as leading to marriage break-ups because of the formation of new associations, etc.

We do not think it is any defence to this aspect of the publication to say that the persons who advertise would become involved in this type of activity anyway. That is impossible to disprove, but it is possible to say that Key Magazine can only promote and encourage the opportunity for such promiscuity, because the very purpose of the publication is to give those people who contemplate that type of activity, an opportunity to extend their behaviour in a way that would otherwise normally be constrained by the social ethics of society.

We should add that we recognise many publications may incite or be concerned with the encouragement of behaviour that might be termed sexually promiscuous. Not all those publications could be said to be injurious to the public good as illustrated by the following quote from a recent decision concerning a publication called Sex and the Single Girl (Decision No. 1003):

"Insofar as the publication could be said to undermine (in an indirect fashion) our modern society's attitude to marriage through its advocacy of promiscuity and permissiveness, the book could be said to be corruptive, especially to younger readers.

While we apprehend the possibility that younger readers might be corrupted, we have had difficulty in assessing the likelihood of corruption arising because of the intangible nature of the danger with which we are dealing. After reflecting on the values and standards present in modern New Zealand society we feel it would be an overreaction to describe this publication as a threat to the place of marriage or responsible sexual relationships. We think the publication is aimed at young men in their late teens through to their 20s, and it would have limited appeal to most other readers.

It is our view that many young men go through a stage in their lives when they have casual relationships (which could hardly be described as abnormal) with the opposite sex.

This book has been written to cater for that limited market and we predict the adolescent reader being interested in the philosophy expounded in the book, only as a passing phase in his development."

The present publication is of course different from that above. Sexual contact is virtually guaranteed through Key Magazine, and it is this aspect that separates it from other publications, and which in our view puts it beyond the pale of acceptance.

The other aspect of the publication which we think is injurious to the public good is that it provides an ideal starting point for persons wishing to abuse the information that they might procure from the publication and for the encouragement of certain criminal offences. We refer here to the possibility of prostitutes advertising for customers, and to the possibility of advertisers being subject to pressures of extortion and blackmail through their sexual indiscretions.

Mr Douglas informed us, and we accept, that he tries to prevent the insertion of advertisements that might contravene the law. We not only have Mr Douglas' assurance on this point, but the magazine itself contains inter alia the following caution:

"The publishers will not knowingly accept any fraudulent or illegal material, but as we are not able to research in depth the intent of every advertisement, all advertisers shall be and will remain solely responsible for the content of their advertisement and shall indemnify the publishers against all liability thereof. Persons using the service of our magazine take full responsibility for their own actions. No advertising can be accepted from or on behalf of a prostitute." (Our emphasis.)

Mr Douglas also informed us that he would not carry advertisements concerning male homosexual activity. This was not because of any prejudice on his part, but in keeping with his philosophy that advertisements for illegal activity would not knowingly or deliberately be carried.

This is no doubt a wise position for the publisher to take and we therefore feel that the publication does not immediately fall into the category of a magazine promoting illegal sexual activity, as did the material considered by the House of Lords in Shaw v. Director of Public Prosecution [1961] 2 All ER 446.

However, it is virtually impossible for a publisher to ascertain whether any sinister intent lies behind even the most seemingly innocent advertisement requiring personal services. A reported example that can illustrate the problem can be found in Police v. Lavalley [1979] 1 NZLR 45 (CA). In that case Lavalley had inserted an advertisement in a local newspaper offering a live-in position to a female on the basis of "good wages, easy work". Although the advertisement in itself was innocent, Lavalley was really interested in encouraging prostitution and was convicted of an offence of that nature.

One would imagine that the chances of a prostitute attempting to advertise in a publication almost solely concerned with soliciting response for sexual activity as in the present case would be infinitely higher than an indirect solicitation through an ordinary newspaper. We feel there is a very real danger of such advertisements being placed in this magazine and there is very little Mr Douglas could do, if he wanted to, to police the situation. On his own admission, as emphasised in the extract set out already, "... we are not able to research in depth the intent of every advertisement. . . ." The job of policing and detecting sexual offending is already difficult enough for the Police without another possible avenue for soliciting being thrown open for them to try to cope with.

The other concern we expressed was that there was a possibility of those advertising or using the magazine's services being subjected to the pressures of extortion and blackmail because of their sexual indiscretions with unscrupulous people. Many of the advertisers refer to the desirability of a photograph being enclosed with a reply. Some advertisements refer to photography as one of the erotic diversions solicited (e.g., advertisements M446 and C118).

In very many cases the advertisement states "discretion assured", "discretion expected", etc. Not surprisingly many of the advertisers seeking sexual partners wish to maintain their anonymity until they are written to.

There is no doubt in our minds that unscrupulous persons could easily obtain evidence of sexual activity which could compromise persons using the services of the magazine. Mr Douglas has no way of controlling that activity either, and that is more or less acknowledged in his words, as already quoted "Persons using the service of our magazine take full responsibility for their own actions".

Blackmail and destruction of a person's reputation because of their sexual propensities or behaviour is notoriously difficult to detect, and would be easy, through the medium of the present magazine, to perpetrate.

It is very easy to see how the advertisement placed in, or replied to, in a moment of weakness or stupidity, could turn to disaster when subsequent threats are made of complaints to the Police, exposure to a spouse, or the publication of compromising photographs to friends and family. We have no doubt that many persons would prefer to pay than be exposed when confronted with their sexual indiscretions. We also have no doubt that there are those who are willing to manipulate and blackmail people for their sexual indiscretions. Those matters seldom emerge into public, but for a recent example of the former type of situation see Barsdell v. Kerr [1979] 2 NZLR 731 (where the facts involved an alleged payment of $20,000 by an employer comprising money paid on 3 different occasions to the husbands of women who had been sexually assaulted by an employee, so that the sums paid were paid to procure silence from the aggrieved parties).

This type of publication is an invitation for blackmailers to procure their unfortunate sources of revenue. We are convinced not only by this factor but also the other matters we have raised that the whole concept and the dominant effect of this publication is injurious, and indeed potentially dangerous to the public good.

2. THE SOCIAL MERIT OF THE BOOK

There are 2 general matters we must consider as being advanced by the publisher under this head. The first is that he submitted that instead of the publication being injurious to the public good, the magazine actually benefited a section of the community, As he stated in his written submissions:

"The main benefit of Key Magazine to the public is that it introduces lonely people to each other. A point you may not detect from a cursory glance at the advertisements is that many of the advertisers are desperately lonely. Several lasting and sincere relationships have been formed as a result of meetings arranged through 'Key Contacts'."

We would say that in the main the object of Key Magazine is to introduce promiscuous people to each other. We are not prepared to accept for 4 major reasons Mr Douglas' submission that the main benefit of Key Magazine was that it introduced lonely people to each other.

The first reason is that if Mr Douglas' submission was correct one would expect to see numerous advertisements of an innocuous or innocent nature, wherein people just wanted to meet others for company. The publication does contain some of these (e.g., L178), but the vast majority evidence a desire by the advertiser or advertisers to indulge in sexual activity. What evidence there is therefore overwhelmingly suggests that the advertisers are merely bent on enlarging or varying their existing sexual appetites.

The second matter is that we think it is inconsistent that a publication that purports to introduce people to each other, should carry numerous photographs almost all of which accentuate the exposed genital areas of the models. We refer in particular to the photos appearing on pages 7, 10, 14, 18, 23, 31 and 34.

Those photographs are more in keeping with the view that we have taken of the magazine, namely, that its function is to encourage promiscuity and to pander to the physical desires and wants of those persons concerned with it.

The next matter is that if the magazine is bona fide for the purpose of simply introducing people to each other, we are not able to see why advertisements of the number, type, and nature that are carried for couples, should be in the present publication. Although of course we accept that couples need to make friends outside their own relationship. It is perfectly obvious from the advertisements that the majority of couples there are not lonely, but are merely seeking to indulge in sexual experimentation, and multiple partner situations.

Our final ground for rejecting Mr Douglas' submission is that in a section of the magazine called "Kinky Korner" advertisements for deviate forms of sex appear. We feel this is yet another indication along with all the other factors that the publication is simply designed to cater for those wanting to satisfy their sexual pleasures. Mr Douglas has failed to point to anything which in our opinion could constitute social merit so as to counteract the deleterious effect of this publication on the community.

The second matter is that Mr Douglas was able to rely on the supporting evidence of Dr Aloma Colgan, who is a Director of the Human Relations Centre at Auckland. In respect of Key Magazine No. 6, Dr Colgan said:

"In its restricted form, I feel the magazine is not harmful. Its appeal is mainly to the older age groups, and caters to fantasies in behaviour that is not uncommon in our society. In a recent nationwide survey conducted by the Human Relations Centre, we found that 17 percent of males and 10 percent of females had engaged in group sex experiments, and that 30 percent of men and 20 percent of women had engaged in sex with one additional partner (Troilism). For many more it remains a popular fantasy.

Much has been written about these experiments 'open marriage' and 'swinging', particularly in the United States. In general it seems that, providing the marriage is stable, no harm results. In many cases such arrangements actually serve to keep marriages together. Given the shaky state of modern monogamous marriage, I feel that we must view such experiments with tolerance, accepting them as just one of the many alternatives to traditional marriage that have arisen over the last 10 years. I feel that Mr Alan Douglas has handled this new social phenomenon in a conscientious and responsible manner, in publishing a booklet warning of the consequences of open relationships."

Evidence of expert witnesses was relied on by the publisher of Forum magazine when that was before the Tribunal (Decision No. 877). The Tribunal said on that occasion:

"While we have heard and given careful consideration to the evidence presented to us we have expressed our reservations as to the usefulness or relevance of a great deal of that evidence in making our decision. No doubt evidence can be useful and relevant in considering some of the matters listed in section 11 (1). In this case expert medical and psychological witnesses can guide us in matters of medical, social, or scientific character or importance and general evidence may be of some use in assessing the purpose and motives of the persons associated with the publication and distribution of the magazine. In the end, however, it is the Tribunal which must exercise its own judgment and experience in determining the character in classifying the magazines or books before it. Evidence by others as to the desirability of censorship, the standards of the community here or elsewhere and the witnesses' views as to indecency generally or in relation to the book in question are unacceptable and indeed impertinent if considered as an endeavour to replace the function of the Tribunal."

In that case the Tribunal was impressed with the evidence of Dr Colgan indicating that the material under consideration could be helpful to those experiencing problems. Each case, however, must be dealt with on its own merits. In this case we are not dealing with a publication which provides the reader with an opportunity to engage in sexual fantasy but with a publication that will introduce him or her to the real thing. We are at a disadvantage in considering Dr Colgan's evidence because she did not appear before us to be questioned about the statements in her letter. It is not open to us therefore to speculate on her comments on the effect on children of seeing their parents "swinging" with other partners. There is no reference, in the written submissions to any effect that such relationships might have on children, although Dr Colgan did say that restrictions on the publication were necessary to protect non-consenting adults and children. We maintain the view expounded earlier in this decision, that as a matter of commonsense, children who are involved in such an environment must suffer as a result.

In a limited way, we sympathise with Dr Colgan's submission. In the last 10 years, alternatives to traditional marriage have arisen. In our present society many people live together in stable and responsible sexual relationships. Nothing we have said herein is meant to criticise such relationships or to direct moral obloquy at persons who live in such relationships.

While, therefore, we agree with Dr Colgan to that extent, we simply do not accept that this publication is designed to effect situations where people will enter into responsible sexual relationships. Our reading of the advertisements indicates that many are for people who wish to "cheat" on their partners and for those who wish to merely satisfy their physical sexual appetites in a casual hedonistic relationship.

Further, while we accept Dr Colgan's submission that many people in New Zealand may have experimented with or fantasised about group sex we do not see that fact as any reason why we should hold this publication not to be injurious to the public good.

For all the above reasons we reject Dr Colgan's evidence that there may be some social merit in Key Magazine which could justify or mitigate the otherwise injurious effects of the publication.

3. THE REMAINING CONSIDERATIONS UNDER SECTION 11

It remains now to discuss what might be called the subsidiary issues under section 11. The considerations of the issues raised under section 11 (1) (a) and (b) in this case necessarily involved a consideration of whether persons were likely to be corrupted by reading the book, whether persons were likely to benefit from reading the book and whether or not the book displayed an honest purpose. We have already ruled against Mr Douglas' submissions on those points and we further rule that there is nothing in the publication which would persuade us pursuant to the provisions of section 11 (2) that there is anything in the publication in the interests of art, literature, science or learning which would be for the public good.

Neither in this case is the price of the publication really a material factor. It sells very cheaply, and therefore the real question is whether it is sold in a manner that is likely to enable children and young persons to purchase it.

On this aspect of the matter we accept Mr Douglas' evidence that Key Magazine is only sold to subscribers, "adult shops" and to selected stationers. The publication is not sold through dairies or other mass outlets, and when sold over the counter in a retail situation the publication is contained in a sealed cellophane bag (so that the contents cannot be examined without the bag being ripped open) referred to by Mr Douglas as the "chastity bag".

However, it must be apparent that even if we accept the magazine is distributed only to adult readers, that factor alone cannot save it in view of the findings we have made as to its purpose and effect.

We have tried to consider this case carefully because although this decision only relates to the one issue of Key Magazine, the ramifications of declaring the publication to be unconditionally indecent may have drastic effects on Mr Douglas' publishing interests. We are aware that there have been subsequent issues of Key Magazine and in fact Mr Douglas sent us some. We wish to make it quite plain that in arriving at our decision in this case we paid no regard to what is contained in the other publications.

For the reasons expressed above we are of the view that Key Magazine should be declared indecent.

District Court Judge W. M. WILLIS, Chairman.

LIVING LETTERS

STATE SERVICES COMMISSION

36 p. 1980 reprint. $1.75 plus 45c p & p

One of the aims in letter writing is to get ideas across to the reader clearly and briefly. But do letters always say what is meant? Even if they are clear to the writer, will the reader understand them easily? If you are still using the old clichés of "acknowledging receipt of", "according to our records", and "enclosed please find" it is almost certainly time to change your attitude to writing living letters.

MAORI RELIGION AND MYTHOLOGY PART 1

A colourful booklet describing the coming of the Maori to New Zealand, his history, heritage, folklore, beliefs, and cultural unity.

Each chapter has a quotation from a Maori proverb, phrase, saying, or canoe chant and these concepts are presented in words and pictures.

Continues with the arrival of the pakeha and the pattern of events which followed, the Treaty of Waitangi and the Land Wars. Moves on to the Maori today, finishing with the theme, one country, two heritages in unity.

Well illustrated with 64 coloured photos, of interest to all New Zealanders and tourists. (Tourist and Publicity Department.)

MAORI AGRICULTURE

By Elsdon Best

THE MAORI AS HE WAS

By Elsdon Best

295 p. 1974 reprint. $6.50 plus 70c p & p

Fifty years of public demand since this book was first published resulted in the need for reprints in 1934 and 1952. The text has been reproduced unchanged but the originals of some of the figures could not be traced and these have been replaced with similar illustrations. There have been many advances in our knowledge of Maori life since this book first appeared. The work of numerous ethnologists, and more recently archaeologists, has critically examined many of the earlier concepts, confirming some, disproving others, and altering others to varying degrees. No one has yet produced a synthesis of the results of all this scholarship and there is still nothing as comprehensive as this book of Best's to give a general account of the Maori. This book was first published when Best was 68 and thus represents the accumulated knowledge of a lifetime. It has now become a classic introduction to Maori life. Its continued availability should help the reader to obtain a basic background to old time Maori life which can be extended by further reading.

THE MAORI CANOE

By Elsdon Best

NATIONAL MUSEUM BULLETIN No. 7

451 p. 1976. $17.50 plus $1.25 p & p

A reprinted edition without textual alterations and retaining the old Dominion Museum number. Another example of Elsdon Best's dedicated effort to preserve Maori culture. The material presented on canoes, their materials, types, methods of construction, and associated artifacts make interesting reading for the layman as well as for scholars of the Maori. (Government Printer.)

MOA-HUNTER PERIOD OF MAORI CULTURE

436 p. 3rd edition, 1977. $17.50 plus $1.25 p &amp; p

This book deals with the most important site yet investigated and in its discussions it traverses most of the New Zealand archaeological field.

A chance discovery in 1939 by a 13-year-old boy revealed the grave of a chief in the gravels of the Wairau boulder bank. The grave, goods, and bones of the ancient chief, prone in his gravel grave, with skull directed towards the setting sun, spoke with more authority regarding his race than the distorted memories of Maori tradition.

Although scholarly and technical, the book sustains throughout the drama of this archaeological discovery, and recreates from the evidence of bone and stone the life of our first Polynesians in the Moa-hunter period of Maori culture.

NETBALL Revised—A Guide Book for Teachers, Coaches and Players

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

58 p. 1978 $2 plus 45c p &amp; p

Netball is a spectacular exciting game which is played and enjoyed in many countries both by the very young and the more experienced and mature international players.

To obtain the utmost enjoyment it is essential that each player becomes skilful in the techniques and tactics of the game and to know and understand the rules.

While the publication is specially designed to assist teachers, coaches and players in schools, people interested in netball at all levels should find the material contained in this booklet of great assistance.

NATIONAL PARKS OF NEW ZEALAND

178 p. Revised third edition. 1974. $10.50 plus $1.25 p &amp; p

The revision of this popular publication has included numerous new colour plates and additional information on some of our parks. Because of the popularity of this book it is expected this edition will be in great demand. In addition to the book being an ideal souvenir for the overseas visitor it makes an ideal gift and also a valuable asset to anyone's home library.

THE PA MAORI

By Elsdon Best

NATIONAL MUSEUM BULLETIN No. 6

459 p., illustrated. Reprinted 1975 $15 plus $1.25 p &amp; p

The bulletin contains a wealth of information and descriptions of many Pa sites and structures. Although great advances in archaeology have modified some of the details listed by Best and some of the PAs included in the book no longer exist, the information contained in this bulletin is still an important contribution in this field and is not readily available elsewhere.

This book introduces navigation skills and techniques and gives rules for course setters. Fully illustrated with maps, diagrams and photographs.

SHADOW OF THE LAND

By Ian Wards

422 p. 1968. $9 plus 70c p &amp; p

The title for this book was provided by Nopera Panakarero, a Kaitiā chief of much influence, who, in May 1840, believed that only the "shadow of the land" had gone to Queen Victoria whilst the substance remained with the Maoris. Less than a year later he revised this opinion convinced that only the "shadow" would be the Maori portion.

The author examines the British acquisition of New Zealand, the Maoris, trust in the Treaty of Waitangi, and their confidence that its terms would be honoured and explains it was only by accident that the Maoris were guaranteed the possession of their lands and ancient privileges.

It is under these circumstances that the book considers the use of military force in New Zealand, analyses the arguments surrounding the provision of troops and concludes that, beyond any reasonable doubt that there was never an attempt to govern by "moral suasion".

New Zealand followed the normal nineteenth century British pattern of territorial acquisition.

The book is an essential introduction to the Maori wars of a later date.

TE REO RANGATIRA

197 p. illustrated 1974. $4.50 plus 45c p &amp; p

VIRUS AND VIRUS-LIFE DISEASES OF POME FRUITS AND STONE FRUITS IN NEW ZEALAND

710 p. Hard cover, 1975. $35 plus $3 p &amp; p

Possibly no subject in the whole field of agricultural technology has advanced as rapidly in recent years as that of chemical methods of weed control. This publication summarises and makes specific recommendations based on the experimental work conducted largely by the New Zealand Department of Agriculture. The book is divided into five sections:

Section 1—Principles of weed control and the uses of chemical weed killers.

Section 2—Supplies information on the control of many of New Zealand's worst weeds.

The information obtained was contributed by members of the Ngāti-Kahungunu tribe of the North Island. FISHING METHODS AND DEVICES OF THE MAORI

Another in the series of the Best publications, it has been reprinted without revision so that the basic studies may be accessible in the original style.

This particular bulletin still remains the only comprehensive account of most aspects of Maori fishing. FLORA OF NEW ZEALAND VOLUME III

By A. J. Healy and E. Edgar

220 p. 1980.

$18.50 plus $1.25 p & p

FOREST LORE OF THE MAORI

By Elsdon Best

DOMINION MUSEUM BULLETIN No. 14

421 p. 1977.

$17.95 plus $1.25 p & p

Printed without textual alteration, the work provides an important basis for any study of old-time Maori economics and perhaps more important of his attitude to what was a major part of his environment. It will be more of general interest today than when first written, since it stresses so fully the uses made by the Maori people of their natural resources, and supplies basic materials for further studies in ethnobotany and ethnozoology. The reverence which the old time Maori showed towards natural resources mirrors the modern concern for ecological principles.
