Decision No. 5/82
BRO 38/81

Before the Broadcasting Tribunal

In the matter of the Broadcasting Act 1976, and in the matter of an application by Radio I Limited for amendment of sound-radio warrant MF 44 (1X1):

B. H. Slane, Chairman, Lionel R. Sceats, Member, Janet C. Somerville, Member.

Hearing: At Auckland, 30 November 1981.

Counsel: D. A. R. Williams and T. C. Gould for the applicant. F. A. Hamlin for New Zealand Post Office. J. B. Thomson for Broadcasting Corporation of New Zealand.

DECISION

In a decision dated 29 April 1980 (Decision No. 13/80) the Tribunal renewed the warrant for a period of 3 years and gave reasons why the period of the renewed warrant would be less than the maximum period of 5 years. At the same time the Tribunal deleted an existing warrant condition inserted at the time of the grant of the warrant by the Broadcasting Authority requiring the station to comply with the proposals contained in its warrant application, and substituted the following clauses:

- (e) The warrant holder shall not substantially depart from the basic format and content of its programmes or the type or extent of services intended to be provided at the time of the grant of the warrant without the prior consent of the Broadcasting Tribunal and subject to any conditions which the Tribunal might impose in the public interest.
- (f) Notwithstanding condition (e) the station may continue to provide the same services and basic format of its programmes as it was providing at the 30th day of June 1980, provided it lodges an application for such variations from its obligations as it considers necessary for the consideration of the Tribunal by 31 October 1980 and until the Tribunal has ruled on such application.

This amendment was intended to permit the station to carry on without being in breach of its renewed warrant but requiring it to put its proposals for departures from its existing obligations to the Tribunal for approval within 3 months.

The warrant holder now applies for the deletion of clause (f) and the substitution of a new clause (f) as follows:

Notwithstanding condition (e) the station may continue to provide the same services and basic format of its programme as it was providing as at the 30th day of November 1981.

The warrant holder also applies to amend the next renewal date of the warrant from 30 June 1983 to 30 June 1985. (The application actually refers to the renewal date being changed from the 30 June 1980. That this is an error is made clear when the particulars filed in support of the application are read with the application).

The application for renewal had been heard in Auckland on 10 and 11 July 1980 and a decision was given by the Tribunal on 29 July 1980. The warrant holder sought to appeal against the decision and instructed the solicitors then acting but the appeal was not filed within the stipulated 14-day period provided by section 84 (3) Broadcasting Act 1976. There is no provision for appeals to be lodged out of time.

When the Registrar learned that, although the Tribunal had been notified of an appeal, it had not in fact been lodged he notified the warrant holder and, some time later, this application was filed.

The application therefore falls into two parts. First, the application which was intended should be made within 3 months of the decision on the renewal and secondly an application to extend the duration of the current warrant to the maximum permitted—namely, a 5-year period from 30 June 1980.

The managing director of Radio I Limited, Mr G. B. Edwin, gave evidence of the news services provided by the company, and the community involvement. He briefly described the existing format which he said was exactly that which Radio I undertook to provide in its original warrant application. A case is put for the reduction in news services from that originally required on the grounds that there has been no significant public demand for news services beyond the existing hours on weekdays commencing at 6 a.m. and continuing hourly until 6 p.m. with extra bulletins during the breakfast and late afternoon periods. On Saturdays the first news bulletin is at 7 a.m. and bulletins presented hourly until 6 p.m. On Sundays bulletins start at 7 a.m. and continue hourly until 6 p.m.

Taking a broad view of the news and information services provided by the station we are satisfied that an effort is being made to comply during the day with the requirements laid down in the initial application. We are prepared to accept the omission of bulletins at night time partly because of the additional information services such as the traffic reports from aircraft and the other community involvement activities of the station. This should not be taken as a precedent for stations to reduce news bulletins from those promised. We accept here there is at present some determination to serve with news and information and to provide a community involvement to achieve those objectives in the original application. A 40 percent increase in news staff is some indication of that.

The amendment applied for is approved. The Tribunal is satisfied that the amendment is necessary in the public interest because it is unsatisfactory to relate back the performance of the station solely to a distant period, when breaches have been dealt with.

Mr Williams made detailed submissions on the jurisdiction of the Tribunal to amend the expiry date of the current warrant. In this respect the Tribunal does not need to be satisfied that the amendment is necessary in the public interest. But the applicant accepted that it must demonstrate that the amendment sought is justifiable in terms of the provisions of the Act.

Mr Williams submitted that the period for which a warrant is renewed is one of the terms of the warrant within the meaning of section 81 (4) of the Broadcasting Act. Where the words of the statute were precise and unambiguous they must be construed in their ordinary and natural sense. Section 72 provided that every warrant should, unless sooner revoked, continue in force until a date 5 years after the date of issue.

Section 81 (2) provides that the renewal of a warrant should take effect for the same period as the original term of the warrant renewed, "except that if the Tribunal is of the opinion that the holder of the warrant has been or is in breach of any condition of his warrant, the Tribunal may grant a warrant to take effect for such shorter period as it thinks fit." (That is what the Tribunal did in the case of the renewal of Radio I's warrant.) Mr Williams agreed that a warrant could not be amended to provide for an expiry date in excess of 5 years. That would render section 72 nugatory.

Mr Williams submitted that section 71 (2) was designed to ensure that at all times a warrant contain provisions dealing with the matters set out in that subsection. It did not conflict with the power to make amendments although section 81 (4) was made subject to section 71 (2).

Mr Williams took a hypothetical case to justify the reasonableness of his argument: An infringement may have led to a reduction in the term of the warrant under section 83 (4). It may be learned that the evidence of key witnesses against the warrant holder was false and perjured after any time of appeal had expired. Unless section 81 (4) could be used to vary the warrant by amending the warrant back to the 5 years the Tribunal would be powerless to rectify an obvious injustice.

The Tribunal is satisfied that there is statutory power to amend the warrant by amending the date on which it will expire provided the amendment would not have the effect of extending the duration of the warrant beyond the maximum of 5 years from the date of expiry of the previous warrant.

The circumstances in which such power should be exercised are alluded to later in this decision.

The argument of the merits of the application itself can be summarised as follows:

- (a) The renewal which led to the application was the first occasion upon which there was any challenge to the renewal of a private warrant and the first occasion when renewal was anything other than a formality.
- (b) The station had responded in a responsible fashion and had "put its house in order". The Tribunal's main concern had been that the directors and management should have addressed themselves to the question of obtaining the permission of the Tribunal to its changed news operation. It was not a case where there was concern about the reliability of the station.
- (c) The warrant was the foundation of its existence. Security of tenure was therefore important to its business operation. A reduced term set it apart from other stations and was unhelpful to its financial and business dealings.
- (d) The station was on a black list and the Tribunal had achieved the statutory purposes of scrutiny, examination and reorganisation on renewal, and there was no reason for any further discipline to be applied. The Tribunal could be satisfied that the lesson had been learned.

- (e) Allegations against the station had been made by the proprietors of the morning newspaper who were able to obtain extensive publicity for these allegations which were not in fact upheld.
- (f) The Tribunal was now given a chance to look again at the station which was a special case.

The position regarding the warrant of the station is, perhaps, misunderstood and it is as well for this Tribunal to state it clearly.

Although the warrant has been renewed for a shorter term than the maximum of 5 years, the station is neither on a black list nor set apart from other stations. It simply has its renewal coming up for consideration 2 years earlier.

However, all private station warrants do not run from the same dates and therefore there are warrants falling due during most years.

Section 81 (3) states:

Every application for the renewal of a warrant shall be granted by the Tribunal, unless it is of the opinion that sufficient grounds exist for the revocation of the warrant and the holder of the warrant has been notified accordingly.

This provision is compatible with the infringement provisions of section 83 which require any proposal to revoke or suspend the warrant on the grounds that the station has not been carried on with the terms and conditions of the warrant to be notified to a warrant holder.

It is therefore clear that if a station complies with the terms of its warrant from the date of its renewal to the expiry time of the warrant (whether it be 3 years or 5 years), the station is entitled to a renewal of the warrant. Furthermore, unless there have been breaches of conditions of the warrant which justify that course, the warrant renewal may not be made to take effect for a shorter period than 5 years. It is therefore clear that Radio I will be entitled to renewal for a term of 5 years if it has complied with the terms of its warrant during the 3 years for which it stands renewed at present.

In our decision on the renewal we said the 3-year period would provide a reasonable period for the Tribunal to survey the station's performance. A decision to reduce the term of a warrant must be regarded as an opportunity for the Tribunal to have a look again at the performance of the station towards the end of the period stipulated for the renewal. The question the Tribunal has to decide in the present case is whether there are sufficient grounds for accelerating that review. The effect, in the present case, is that, having reviewed the circumstances of the warrant at this stage, it should defer further consideration until three and a half years from now rather than at a time 3 years from 30 June 1980.

It is accepted by the Tribunal that the station has taken steps to improve its performance and to address itself to the problem of the relationship of its present services to those promised in its application and alluded to in the Tribunal's decision on the renewal.

However, the station did not immediately take action following the revelation that its renewal appeal had not been filed and some months elapsed before this application was made in July 1981. It must take that into account in considering whether or not the original decision which would have enabled the Tribunal to review the station's performance over a sustained period of 3 years should be superseded.

The Tribunal has also concluded that there are not sufficient grounds for, in effect, putting aside consideration of the station's performance, until 1985. The Tribunal has amended the warrant condition and it is reasonable to await the expiry of the 3-year period in 1983 to see whether the adherence to the terms of the warrant is sustained. We are not convinced that an enhanced performance should, on an application for amendment be regarded as sufficient to vary or virtually nullify the decision upon renewal in July 1980.

As we have stated, we do not consider that any person should regard the warrant holder any differently from a business or trading point of view, because its warrant is due for renewal in less than 2 years time. All stations face the approach of a renewal during the whole of the term of the warrant.

Radio I will be no more subject to any likelihood of a shorter period of renewal because its term this time is 3 years, than would any other station. In other words, the performance which led to the shorter term of renewal has been dealt with and cannot constitute the basis for a shortening of the duration of the warrant upon the next renewal. The station is not on any blacklist as far as the Tribunal is concerned and its performance will be examined in exactly the same way as every other warrant for renewal.

We do not think it appropriate that we should set forth the circumstances in which a warrant which is granted for shorter term on renewal would be restored to its original date of expiry. We do consider however that the simple device of putting the station's "house in order" (as Mr Williams has put it) should not entitle the station immediately to go back to the original 5-year term. The purpose of the renewal is more than a discipline, (although it is clear that it has had some effect on station directors and management who may previously have regarded promises made on the grant of a warrant somewhat lightly), it is an opportunity to review the conduct of the station at an earlier period than the 5 years. In this instance the Tribunal would have had the opportunity to review the performance of the station over a 3-year period, or something close to that. The applicant is asking us to consider performance of the station over some months during part of which the company thought it was proceeding with an appeal, and during part of which it had decided to make this application. The Tribunal does not consider that this is an adequate period for the Tribunal to determine the attitude of the station to its warrant obligations. During much of the period the station has been enjoying an increased audience and the economic benefits which flow from it, fuller advertising schedules for example. The problems arose when economic pressure threatened the viability of the station.

Furthermore, the review that has been undertaken at this stage was foreseen at the time of the decision to renew the warrant for 3 years as it was made clear that an application should be made within 3 months of that decision, or within 3 months of an appeal in respect of that decision being dismissed, when the warrant would be amended along the lines proposed by the Tribunal.

Simply restoring the original 5-year term cannot remove the immediate consequences to the company of the original renewal decision. The impact of that decision came in the statements made by the Tribunal in it and the decision to renew the warrant for less than 3 years. The effect of extending the expiry date to 5 years would no more indicate that the station has put its house in order than the plain statement we make in this decision that it has set about doing so.

The application for the deletion of clause (f) is approved and the following clause substituted:

"Notwithstanding condition (e) the warrant holder may continue to provide the same services and basic format of its programmes as it was providing on the 30th day of November 1981."

The application to amend the expiry date of the warrant is therefore declined.

The Tribunal deferred final consideration of this application until the judgment of the High Court was known in an appeal by Hauraki Enterprises against a similar decision of the Tribunal to grant a renewal for a period of only 3 years. (Decision 11/80). On 11 March 1982 that appeal was dismissed by the High Court. There is nothing in the High Court judgment to suggest the Tribunal had misdirected itself on the law or its application to renewals.

Dated the 29th day of March 1981.

For the Tribunal,

B. H. SLANE, Chairman.

Before the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publication:

Pornography: Men Possessing Women by Andrea Dworkin. Published by G. B. Putnam's Sons, New York.

Judge W. M. Willis (Chairman), Mesdames H. B. Dick, L. P. Nikera, Messrs J. V. B. McLinden, I. W. Malcolm.

Hearing: 1 April 1982.

Decision: 30 April 1982.

Appearances: Mr Leloir for Comptroller of Customs, Miss S. Moran for importer, Miss R. Parke.

DECISION

THIS book was imported through the Auckland Parcels Post Branch and seized on 14 October 1981. As the importer has disputed its forfeiture, the book has been referred to the Indecent Publications Tribunal for a classification prior to the commencement of condemnation proceedings.

Pornography: Men Possessing Women by Andrea Dworkin, is published in hardback and paperback. Although the American paperback was before the Tribunal for classification it also had in its hands, a hardback copy published in Canada by Academic Press Limited, Toronto, and a paperback published by the Women's Press Limited, 124 Shoreditch High Street, London. Each book is 304 pages in length. The author describes herself as a radical feminist, and this term in itself gives a clue to the tone of the book under consideration, and to the subject-matter which it covers. Andrea Dworkin makes no pretence whatsoever that she is writing to support the feminist viewpoint, a position which must be taken seriously. Pornography is a most difficult book on which to give a decision, for there is no doubt that it is completely serious in its content.

Even the bibliography which the author has included covers 47 pages, and in addition to this, she has listed many notes and references to authenticate the publication. A number of reviews have been written about this publication, and about the author's earlier books, for Andrea Dworkin has written at least four serious works. Times Literary Supplement and the New Yorker have treated her works as being a genuine expression of the feminist viewpoint. It would be fair to say that the author's publications will be found on the shelves of university and public libraries, both in New Zealand and overseas, as a result of the reviews her book has attracted.

The problem facing the Tribunal is to first accept the publication as being authentic, in fact, a serious study of pornography, and to then have regard for the unusual and perverted sex acts which are graphically described. To quote Mr Leloir of the Customs Department—"Part of the book is taken up with discussion of pornography with the balance having numerous lengthy extracts from other publications. These extracts explicitly describe perverted sex acts".

The Tribunal is very grateful for Miss Moran for her very full submissions in respect of this work. I think it is fair to comment that those who have read this book have found it most difficult to read. It is fair to say that much of the material she has included has been presented more to prove her point rather than to extract conclusions from the evidence.

Some arguments are hard to follow, and at times she degenerates into a fanatical harangue rather than using her obvious talents as a writer to present a reasoned argument.

The reviews have not always been kind to her, but they did say that Dworkin was an aggressive writer, who took a simplistic view of the role of the male whom she saw as a person who had an evil thirst for violence and domination in his sexual drive. She assumes that pornography and all its related, or imagined, problems to be on the same level as real life. She concludes that women will be free only when pornography has been abolished, but makes no suggestion as to how this is to be accomplished.

Many sections of the book may offend but there seems little doubt that the author has attempted to represent the feminist viewpoint, even if the presentation is radical and to many unacceptable. The work has merit as a serious study, especially for researchers in the field of women's studies, and for this reason is therefore classified as being not indecent.

District Court Judge WILLIS, Chairman.

Exchange Rates

IN terms of section 25 (2) of the Reserve Bank of New Zealand Act 1964, the Reserve Bank today released outer limits for rates of exchange to be used in transactions involving the conversion of New Zealand currency into foreign currencies and foreign currencies into New Zealand currency when delivery of the foreign currency dealt in will be effected by telegraphic transfer. The following range of rates, for the main currencies used by New Zealand traders in settling foreign exchange transactions, will remain in force until replaced by a new Schedule issued by the Reserve Bank. These rates do not apply to transactions for settlement after the expiration of 2 business days (forward transactions) or to transactions in which instruments are purchased which do not entitle the buyer to foreign currency balances in the foreign centre until the instruments have been delivered at the foreign centre. In the latter case interest at foreign centre rates may be deducted from the telegraphic transfer rate to compensate the purchaser for his loss during the transit period.

Another in the series of the Best publications, it has been reprinted without revision so that the basic studies may be accessible in the original style.

This particular bulletin still remains the only comprehensive account of most aspects of Maori fishing. The descriptions of methods employed in fishing given here are still quite basic for any future studies in this field since no first-hand observations can now be made. The detailed fishing methods outlined are accompanied by descriptions of the artifacts used, together with associated chants, magic formulae, special observances, and fishing lore.

LIVING LETTERS

STATE SERVICES COMMISSION

36 p. 1980 reprint.

$1.75 plus 55c p &amp; p

One of the aims in letter writing is to get ideas across to the reader clearly and briefly. But do letters always say what is meant? Even if they are clear to the writer, will the reader understand them easily? If you are still using the old clichés of "acknowledging receipt of", "according to our records", and "enclosed please find" it is almost certainly time to change your attitude to writing living letters.

(Government Printer.)

THE MAORI AS HE WASBy Elsdon Best*

295 p. 1974 reprint.

$6.50 plus 85c p &amp; p

Fifty years of public demand since this book was first published resulted in the need for reprints in 1934 and 1952. The text has been reproduced unchanged but the originals of some of the figures could not be traced and these have been replaced with similar illustrations. There have been many advances in our knowledge of Maori life since this book first appeared. The work of numerous ethnologists, and more recently archaeologists, has critically examined many of the earlier concepts, confirming some, disproving others, and altering others to varying degrees. No one has yet produced a synthesis of the results of all this scholarship and there is still nothing as comprehensive as this book of Best's to give a general account of the Maori. This book was first published when Best was 68 and thus represents the accumulated knowledge of a lifetime. It has now become a classic introduction to Maori life. Its continued availability should help the reader to obtain a basic background to old time Maori life which can be extended by further reading.

MAORIBy Witi Ihimaera*

$1.20 plus 40c p &amp; p

Well illustrated with 64 coloured photos. of interest to all New Zealanders and tourists. (Tourist and Publicity Department.)

MOA-HUNTER PERIOD OF MAORI CULTURE

436 p. 3rd edition, 1977.

$17.50 plus $1.50 p &amp; p

This book deals with the most important site yet investigated and in its discussions it traverses most of the New Zealand archaeological field.

A chance discovery in 1939 by a 13-year-old boy revealed the grave of a chief in the gravels of the Wairau boulder bank. The grave, goods, and bones of the ancient chief, prone in his gravel grave, with skull directed towards the setting sun, spoke with more authority regarding his race than the distorted memories of Maori tradition.

Although scholarly and technical, the book sustains throughout the drama of this archaeological discovery, and recreates from the evidence of bone and stone the life of our first Polynesians in the Moa-hunter period of Maori culture.

FOREST LORE OF THE MAORIBy Elsdon Best*

DOMINION MUSEUM BULLETIN No. 14

421 p. 1977.

$17.95 plus $1.50 p &amp; p

Printed without textual alteration, the work provides an important basis for any study of old-time Maori economics and perhaps more important of his attitude to what was a major part of his environment. It will be more of general interest today than when first written, since it stresses so fully the uses made by the Maori people of their natural resources, and supplies basic materials for further studies in ethnobotany and ethnozoology. The reverence which the old time Maori showed towards natural resources mirrors the modern concern for ecological principles.
