are published by arrangement with Manor Books Inc., of the U.S.A. There have been a number of Manor Book publications referred to the Tribunal recently, see Decision 1006, in which both publications were held unconditionally indecent. The books are approximately 180 pages in length. In some cases the publisher has printed 2 books inside the 1 cover. These are referred to as "double books" and there are some 37 of these in the volumes we have to examine.

When referring to the general description of the publications Mr Leloir for the Comptroller of Customs said:

"On the whole the books have the appearance of being cheaply produced, many containing spelling and grammatical errors, poorly bound, poor quality paper, faded print, and in some cases missing their last pages. Some of the titles bear absolutely no relationship to the story inside . . .

Another indication of their cheapness comes from the fact that most of the books have been written anonymously under such euphemistic names as "Foxie", "Cherry Delight", "Big Rose" . . ."

The Tribunal accepts Mr Leloir's submission; further as a matter of record the Tribunal has set out in the Schedule annexed hereto marked "A" some of the miscellaneous inaccuracies we have noted in the books. It is plain that there are many defects in the texts.

We do not intend to deal with the publications individually in this decision (save for 3 to be referred to later).

We note that both Mr Leloir for the Comptroller of Customs and Mr Beech for the importer, took a global or omnibus approach in the submissions they made in respect of these publications. However we wish to say that all the books have been individually considered by each member of the Tribunal. There has been no collective consideration of the books as a whole and we have set out in the 2 Schedules annexed hereto some of the specific criticisms that could be directed at individual publications.

We wish to underline the extent of the Tribunal's consideration of the publications because it was apparent from an examination that they almost all had common qualities. It will therefore be convenient in this decision to refer to the publications collectively when considering the various factors we are required to take into account. However if we had not explained the position it might have been thought that we had dealt with the publications in a general way other than considering the individual merits.

We move now to consider the criteria we are required to consider by s. 11 of the Indecent Publications Act.

The Dominant Effect of the Publications—

There can be little doubt that these publications deal with sex in a form and with an intensity the Tribunal has rarely seen before. Virtually the whole gamut of sexual activity is covered in explicit and gross detail. Many of the publications are just numerous sexual encounters connected with the flimsiest of plots. We accept the Comptroller's submission that the books are vehicles depicting an orgy of sex in a patently offensive manner.

Literary, Artistic or Social Merit—

Mr Beech accepted Mr Leloir's submission that the vast majority of the books were devoid of any literary, artistic or social merit. The Tribunal agrees.

Likelihood of Corruption—

As the books are written in simple language and are so obviously tailored to cater to prurient taste we believe there is a high degree of likelihood that readers will be corrupted by them. In his submissions Mr Beech stated that these books would be unlikely to affect members of the population to the same degree as the more appealing pictorial material available (such as Penthouse magazine). Although this "market target" submission was not aimed solely at the issue of corruption we feel it is relevant to consider under this head. (The terminology was taken from the judgment of Jeffries J. in Waverley Publishing Co. Ltd. v Comptroller of Customs (1980) 1 NZLR 631 at 646. In his judgment Jeffries J. indicated that in appropriate circumstances the market target could be considered in determining the degree of likely injury to the public good.)

We think that submission has limited appeal in this case. We think that it is irrelevant that there is other material available on the market which might tend to deprave or corrupt some members of the community. It is clearly our job to prevent further material which we feel is injurious to the public good from coming on to the market.

We could refer to DPP v Whyte (1972) AC 849 in which a situation somewhat parallel to the present case was dealt with by the House of Lords. It was submitted for the appellants in that case that the material under consideration was likely to be read by persons who were already so depraved and corrupted that there would be little likelihood of any further deterioration. In rejecting that submission as being of any relevance, Lord Wilberforce said at page 862:

"The Act's purpose is to prevent the depraving and corrupting of men's minds by certain types of writing; it could never have been intended to except from the legislative protection a large body of citizens merely because, in different degrees, they had

Publisher: Pleasure Books, New York.

Chairman: District Court Judge Willis.

Members: H. B. Dick; L. P. Nikera; J. V. B. McLinden; I. W. Malcolm.

Hearing: on 16 August 1983.

Appearances—Mr J. Beech (written submissions) for importer N. H. Nicholas, Mr P. E. F. M. Leloir for Comptroller of Customs.

DECISION

ON 30 April 1980 the Collector of Customs at Auckland seized a total of 3215 paperback books, which we understand were part of a private importation of some 10 000 in total. There were many copies of the individual titles and so the 341 books we have to consider are a sample selection from the 3215 seized from the importation.

The books are all paperback novels published by Pleasure Books Inc., which appears to be a publishing company having its offices in New York, U.S.A. It should also be noted that a number of the books (e.g., The Child Swappers) refer to the fact that Pleasure Books previously been exposed, or exposed themselves, to the 'obscene' material. The Act is not merely concerned with the once and for all corruption of the wholly innocent, but equally protects the less innocent from further corruption, the addict from feeding or increasing his addiction."

Just as the House of Lords held that one of the purposes of the obscenity laws in Britain was to prevent possible further corruption of those who had been exposed to obscene material, so we feel that one of the objects of our Act is to prevent further corruptive material from coming on the market. Accordingly we do not accept Mr Beech's submissions that the "target market" of these publications is such that the likelihood of corruption will be minimised.

Dishonesty of Purpose—

In the Second Schedule hereto we have set out a large number of the publications which are duplicated in the 341 issues that were put before us. It can be seen from the Schedule that in some cases the same text is repeated under 4 different titles, and in many cases books have different authors, titles and years of copyright. The extent of the duplication is significant. It appears to us that the years of copyright in relation to any particular text are completely unreliable, and that the odds are extremely high that the details furnished as to authorship are likely to be inaccurate. The sheer number of duplications indicates to us that the publisher lacks an honesty of purpose. When the contents of Schedule A are added for consideration it can be seen that the list of unsatisfactory features grows disturbingly: there are grammatical errors; covers do not relate to interior contents; sometimes the author listed inside the publication is not the same as the one that appears on the cover of the book; sometimes the text inside a publication is muddled, and in one case the novel is not even finished. All these factors make it plain to us that the publisher has a dishonest purpose, revealed not only in the content but also in the mode of publication of these books.

The Importer's Submissions—

On his client's behalf Mr Beech made 2 broad submissions in support of the argument that we should not find these publications indecent. The first was that there should be few if any instances of censorship of the written word. Mr Beech replied heavily on the dicta of Jeffries J. in Waverley Publishing Co. Ltd. v Comptroller of Customs (supra) at page 646. That passage contains the reference to the report of the Committee on Obscenity and Film Censorship chaired by Professor Bernard Williams. In the course of that report recommendation 6 reads:

"The printed word should be neither restricted nor prohibited since its nature makes it neither immediately offensive nor capable of involving the harms we identify and because of its importance in conveying ideas."

In summary, Mr Beech said the overall effect of Jeffries J.'s comments were that the Tribunal was required to consider whether there was some special feature in the material under consideration which negatives the position accepted by that Judge that perhaps the printed word was potentially less harmful than pictorial pornography. Otherwise the written text would not be indecent.

For a variety of reasons we do not intend to embark upon a lengthy examination of the impact of the written word relative to other forms of communication. Among our reasons are firstly, that we feel this is not the appropriate occasion. We are dealing in this hearing with material which has been cheaply and shoddily produced for the maximum commercial reward from its sexual content.

Secondly, we are not aware that English Courts have adopted Professor Williams' views as a matter of principle when assessing the indecency or otherwise of material brought before them. As far as we are aware each case is still decided (as this case will be) on the individual merits of the publications.

Thirdly, Jeffries J.'s remarks in the Waverley case were made obiter as virtually all the material dealt with on that occasion was pictorial. There were no novels considered in the decision and any writing that there was was incorporated into magazines. We would be most reluctant to regard ourselves as bound or significantly affected by the learned Judge's views when they were related to a different context altogether.

Accordingly therefore we do not accept in this case that the written word lacks any potential to cause significant injury to the public good. We find expressly to the contrary.

The second main argument advanced by Mr Beech was that the present publications did not offend against current community standards. It was argued that there were other materials freely available which had from time to time been the subject of scrutiny by the Tribunal. Among the publications referred to were Penthouse, Pillow Talk and a number of novels considered by the Tribunal some time ago.

It is relatively easy to deal with this submission. Mr Beech drew a comparison between some of the text of Penthouse and the text in these publications. That approach however is not correct, because the Tribunal must consider the overall impact of each publication.

The point is neatly covered in the same judgment of Jeffries J. from which extracts have already been cited to us by Mr Beech. At page 645, 1.45 the learned Judge said of Penthouse:

"I thought it almost beyond argument that some photograph and text in that issue, isolated from the magazine as a whole, were indecent, but the magazine was not banned because the issue was looked at in its entirety . . ."

Pillow Talk is a magazine that was considered by the Tribunal in Decision No. 969 (a) dated 15 December 1980. Although Mr Beech sent us a copy of Pillow Talk, it was not one of the issues we considered in that decision. It was apparent that Pillow Talk at the stage it was considered by the Tribunal was not wholly concerned (as are these novels) with the prurient presentation of sex. A brief excerpt from our decision in relation to Pillow Talk will clarify that point:

"Topics dealt with in the articles include divorce and readjustment, sport and sex, guilt, sex in the law, the language of prostitution, sexual fantasies, sex in the church, and methods of contraception. The advice given is sensible and reassuring, obviously of a kind to help people who have real doubts and anxieties about sex . . ."

Plainly the content and object of the respective publications are different and we do not think Mr Beech can rely upon anything in a subsequent issue of Pillow Talk to substantiate a submission that we should rule the great majority of these novels as anything other than unconditionally indecent.

Mr Beech then listed 5 publications which had been considered by the Tribunal in its earlier decisions. Although Mr Beech submitted the classification in those cases had been "not indecent", that is not the correct position. All the books referred to were classified as indecent in the hands of a person under the age of 18. In a number of the cases (i.e., Love on a Trampoline) the publication seems to have been marginal. For example in Decision No. 463 there were a total of 7 publications considered of which 5 were ruled unconditionally indecent and Love on a Trampoline and another were declared indecent with the age restriction referred to already.

In support of this aspect of his submissions, Mr Beech produced evidence by way of affidavit from a Mr Dennis William Shirley, the proprietor of Shop 6 (an Auckland bookshop). Mr Shirley has been a bookseller for approximately 11 years and had read 5 of the titles of the present importation and compared them with the 5 titles referred to in Mr Beech's submission.

Mr Shirley had come to the conclusion that all the novels were virtually indistinguishable in terms of literary merit and content. There are obvious criticisms that could be made of that evidence, e.g., Mr Shirley did not appear to be cross-examined on his affidavit; it is not for a witness to assume the function of the Tribunal; the publications referred to by Mr Beech were dealt with by the Tribunal many years ago, and there have been many novels recently which we think comparable to the present publications, which we have ruled unconditionally indecent (see for instance the publications referred to in Decisions 1043, 994, 1029, 953).

From the comparisons we have been able to make we think that there is a marked difference between the standard of language used in most of the present publications compared to those earlier works referred to. In the circumstances we are unwilling to accept that the classification of the present publications as indecent would be inconsistent decision making, or contrary to contemporary standards.

Three Exceptions—

In the course of its perusal of the books the Tribunal came to the view that there were 3 that might be classified differently from the others.

It is not that these 3 publications have any clear redeeming features, for none of them would really have a claim to literary merit, rather these books lack the explicit sexual narrative of the others and for that reason we would be prepared to put an age restriction on them. The publications concerned are Housewives in Heat, The Woman's Pleasure and Call Me Dick.

Costs—

In our interim Decision No. 1066, which related to the importer's application for an adjournment in this case, we referred to the possibility that if the Tribunal were to find a majority of these publications manifestly indecent the Tribunal might well impose an order for costs on the importer. We noted that the cost to the taxpayer in relation to the Tribunal's involvement in this affair was approximately $22,000. It is obvious that the importer was concerned about what was said because he tendered evidence and submissions to the effect that there were a variety of reasons dictating against an award of costs in this case.

Mr Nicholas swore an affidavit in which he said, inter alia that he was on the verge of bankruptcy with debts totalling some $24,000 and that he owed $16,000 to the Inland Revenue Department which he was paying off at $30 per week. (It was not clear whether the sum of $24,000 incorporated the debt to the Inland Revenue Department).

That evidence went unchallenged because he did not appear to be cross-examined on his affidavit at the hearing (because it was stated that neither he nor his legal adviser could afford the cost of travelling to Wellington). In the absence of any evidence to the contrary we think we are bound to accept what Mr Nicholas says. We also note that when these matters are considered by the District Court, Mr Nicholas will be liable (if convicted) to a maximum fine of approximately $51,000. In the combination of circumstances referred to we think it is inappropriate that the Tribunal should in this case impose any further penalty by way of costs.

We note that on occasion the English Court of Appeal has quashed orders imposing trial costs on convicted defendants when they are liable for serious punishment—see e.g., R v Judd (1971) 1 WLR 89; R v Gaston (1971) 1 WLR 85. Although the main sentences in those cases were substantial terms of imprisonment, we nevertheless feel the same principles should be applied in the present case because of the maximum penalty the importer might face on the criminal charge.

On the costs point Mr Beech also submitted that in pursuing his rights before the Tribunal the importer was only exercising a constitutional right to require the prosecution to prove every element of the offence of which he is charged, and that further the Tribunal was the only body which had the power to rule whether or not the books were indecent.

We accept in certain circumstances that the practice of imposing costs on a person who has elected to plead not guilty to a criminal charge or who had insisted on his rights to have a matter determined by a hearing, could be undesirable in that it could provide a deterrent to innocent persons to plead not guilty, or to test their rights in the appropriate forum.

However there have been a number of comments at appellate level in England on this point. See for example the comments of Mackenna J. in Yoxall (1972) 57 Criminal Appeal Reports 263 R v Hayden (1975) 1 WLR 852 and Mountain (1978) 68 Criminal Appeal Reports 41. Those cases show that the English Courts have little compunction in making awards of costs against convicted persons if they have persisted in defending what have obviously been hopeless cases. Had the importer's financial position been stronger, the Tribunal would have given careful consideration to making a costs order against him.

Accordingly we rule all the publications unconditionally indecent save for, The Woman's Pleasure, Call Me Dick and Housewives in Heat, which we classify as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

An interim decision was given on 17 June 1983. As it shows the reasons for delays a copy is annexed.

Dated at Wellington this 13th day of September 1983.

MISCELLANEOUS INACCURACIES NOTED IN THE "PLEASURE BOOKS" IMPORTATION

Campus Hustler, author Robert Brown. Copyright 1978. Title of publication with comment on back page refers to a red haired sex bomb called Pam who hooks her way through college. The main character in the book is called Susan Watkins and she has blonde hair (p. 93). We feel in relation to this publication that reference should be made to:

College Hooker, author Rene Burton. Copyright 1979.

Comment. This is the story of the 18-year-old red haired girl called Pam who prostitutes herself in order to pay for her college education. We think this is clearly a case in which the content of this book was meant for the cover designed for Campus Hustler.

Celluloid Sex, author Marie Alden. Copyright 1976. Although Alden is listed as the author on the outside, on the inside cover the author is listed as Sybil Norfolk.

Daddy's Little Girls, author Charity Minx. Copyright 1977. The main characters are Andrea and Peggy Yen who are sisters. While the narrative on the back cover says "Peggy and Andrea are 2 sisters who delight in turning each other on. When they decide to add a man to their love games, the most likely candidate turns out to be dear old dad". In fact the sisters' parents go for a holiday at the start of the book, and return at its close. The girls do not have any sexual relations with their father.

Down on the Farm, author Rochelle. Copyright 1977. The back cover described Bridget and Pauline as 2 horny sisters who go to a farm for a vacation. In fact the female characters in the book are forcibly abducted.

Army Fraulein/French Tricks, author Tina West. Copyright—This story finishes in mid-sentence at page 180. It is to be noted that in The French Way the book continues on for 182 pages (as opposed to 180 pages), and the story is completed.

The Family Gets Together, author Dirk Benton. Copyright—This book is described as Get Together on the inside cover.

Family Love, author Charlotte Barry. Copyright 1978. This book has constant misspelling of one of the principal character's names, i.e., Berney and Bernie.

Fun in the Family, author Steve Tudor. Copyright 1978. The spelling in the publication is atrocious. There is a lack of context between pages 91-92 and 93-94.

Hot Ride, author Alan James. Copyright 1977. This seems to be another example of the cover description of the book disagreeing with the content. The back cover refers to "... his lovely mistress and her 2 willing daughters" (my emphasis). In there is only 1 daughter called Malinda.

Hot Tongue, author Big Rose. Copyright 1977. While the main character described in the book is called Carol, the back cover refers to "Vicki's favourite sport was sex ...".

In Heat, author Gina Clayton. Copyright 1977. The back cover refers to "Patty was a horny young lady who was easy to please". There is no character called Patty in the book and the main character is a girl called Alice Stuart.

Innocent But Eager, author Susan Tolan. Copyright 1978. The main female characters are called Linda and Carole. In the first few pages of the book their characters appear to become confused so that Linda is now described as Carole and vice versa.

Juicy, author Susan May. Copyright 1978. The main character is described as Ellie Harlowe. The spelling of her name changes alternately through the book, see e.g., page 145.

Loving Cousins, author Holly White. Copyright 1978. On the inside cover the author is described as Harry Somers.

Marriage Go Round, author Charity Minx. Copyright 1978. There is a break in the story of this book at page 30.

Married Woman, author Holly White. Copyright 1978. The back cover refers to "Margot was married ...". There is no such character in this book.

A Night to Surrender, author Holly Mimms. Copyright 1979. The main character Lucy Walters has her name changed to Lucy Watters, see e.g., page 26 and page 31.

Office Playmate, author Ariel Ryan. Copyright 1978. The back cover appears to have nothing to do with the content of the book. The cover reads "... Lisa was a lucky girl ... on her first day in New York she landed a job and a handsome stud ...", whereas the main character is called Miss Susan Watkins.

Plain Jane, author Bonnie Peters. Copyright 1978. The main character is called Marianne Foster. Yet the back cover describes the book as "... Jane wanted her pleasure to be the best ...". There is no character called Jane in the book.

Prisoner of Lust author Sandy Taylor. Copyright 1979. The book opens describing a family whose surname is Ellen; the Ellen name changes to Allen (see page 21 and page 23 et al).

Quick Lips author Fancy Love. Copyright 1978. This book is virtually the same as After Hours Secretary/Part Time Lover, the last few pages of text after page 185 change. In our view this indicates that there is a dishonesty of purpose in the publication.

Ripe and Juicy, author Mary Love. Copyright 1978. On the inside of the book the author is listed as Carol Russell.

Schoolgirl Fantasies, author Foeie. Copyright 1978. An insurance investigator called Jay Walker meets an airline hostess called Miss Cook, on a ship. The back cover does not correspond with the story referring to "... a young college co-ed decides to do her thesis on sex ...".

The Senator's Pet, author Smokey Mimms. Copyright 1978. This is a story about American congressmen. One of the main characters is initially described as Arthur Havstone. At page 33 et al Havstone changes to Haystone.

Sin Park, author Mary Love. Copyright 1978. The content of the book has nothing to do with the comment on the back cover "... the thing about a family living in a trailer was a complete lack of privacy". The story does not concern a family or any person that lives in a trailer.

Sister Tricks, author Mary Love. Copyright 1978. The back cover again is different from the content of the book. The comment starts off "... Dee didn't like to sleep alone. Besides it was much more fun to jump in the sack with daddy ...". There is no one called Dee in the book nor is there any father/daughter sex. The principal character is called Vicki.

Sue's Sweet Sister, Mary Jove Joseph. Copyright 1978. The back cover refers to "... Lisa and Sue are identical twins 18 years old as wild as the wind ...". There are no such characters in the book.

The Turned on Teacher, Steve Tudor. Copyright 1978. A principal character called Jack Dalton is married to a woman whose name seems to change from Jane to Marta (see pages 7-9).

Frenchie, author Mary Love. Copyright 1978. The back cover is again unrelated to the content of the book.

Lay Teacher/Young Stuff. Again the references on the back of the book bear no relation at all to its contents.

Decision No. 1066
Reference No. Ind 1/83.

Before the Indecent Publications Tribunal

In the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publications:

AC/DC House Guest and 341 Other Paperback Novels, published by Pleasure Books, New York, U.S.A.

Judge W. M. Willis (Chairman).

Mesdames H. B. Dick, L. P. Nikera.

Messrs J. V. B. McLinden, I. W. Malcolm.

Hearing: 15 June 1983.

Decision: 17 June 1983.

Appearances: Mr P. E. F. M. Leloir for Comptroller of Customs. Mr M. J. Brooks for importer, N. H. Nicholas.

INTERIM DECISION

WE were informed by Mr Leloir for the Comptroller of Customs that these books come before us as a reference from the District Court at Auckland. The reference comprises 341 individual novels seized by the Customs Department at Auckland on 30 April 1980 from one Norman Harvey Nicholas, of Auckland.

Mr Brooks appeared for the importer and informed us that he had been given agency instructions by Mr Travis of Auckland (the importer's solicitor), on Tuesday, 14 June 1983 (the day before the hearing) to seek an adjournment of these proceedings.

There were two main grounds advanced in support of the application. These were that the first notice Mr Travis had had of the present hearing date was on 7 June 1983 (approximately a week before the hearing) and secondly, that his client, Mr Nicholas, had been overseas for 2 weeks either at the time of Mr Travis receiving notice on 7 June, or by the time of this hearing (we are not sure which is the correct position) and that Mr Nicholas will be away overseas for another 6 weeks.

The Tribunal was concerned at the importer's application for an adjournment, because as may be seen from the facts already mentioned, the books seized in this shipment had been seized as long ago as April 1980. Indeed, when Mr Travis had recently intimated to the Secretary of the Tribunal that he might seek an adjournment of the proceedings, he was informed orally and in writing that the hearing would be proceeding.

After hearing Mr Brooks' submissions, the Tribunal adjourned so that Mr Brooks could obtain some further instructions from Mr Travis in support of the application for an adjournment. From the information received it appears Mr Travis first received instructions to act for the importer on or about 15 February 1982 (some 16 months before this hearing). Although he has apparently attended some District Court remands in relation to that aspect of this case Mr Travis apparently did not, at that stage, receive a full list of all books that had been seized and subsequently referred to the Tribunal. However, the only correspondence the Tribunal was referred to in relation to Mr Travis making such an enquiry was a request made by him to the Crown Prosecutor at Auckland on or about 28 May 1982. Mr Travis apparently asked the Crown Solicitor for 13 of the books to be sent to him. These were sent to him on 10 June 1982.

In circumstances where an importer has instructed his solicitor on a case 16 months prior to an aspect of the matter coming on for hearing, we would normally have expected the solicitor to have taken some initiative to have obtained information as to the titles that had been seized, and to obtain copies of the books so that their contents could be perused. Indeed, we understand that an adjournment of the criminal aspect of these proceedings was granted on 22 February 1982, Mr Travis on the importer's behalf, so that he could inspect the allegedly indecent publications.

In those circumstances the Tribunal thought it advisable to seek further information from Mr Leloir about the history of the seizure of the present publications, before making any decision on an adjournment. That information was provided when the hearing resumed.

Annexed hereto is a chronology of events in relation to these books. It is subject to the qualification that neither Mr Travis nor the importer has had the opportunity to comment on the accuracy of the dates or the events alleged to have happened. The annexed chronology was supplied by the Comptroller of Customs but there are other dates which are of importance.

On 19 January 1983, Meredith Connell & Co enquired of the Tribunal asking whether the books had been received and whether a date for the preparation of submissions had been fixed. At this stage the Tribunal had no knowledge of the matter but on 28 January there was received from the District Court the books in question. The Chairman, who was proceeding to Auckland on other duties, then arranged with the Customs Department to have sent additional copies for members of the Tribunal and for Mr Travis.

In due course the books were received at Tribunals Division and distributed amongst members of the Tribunal for perusal. We were under the impression on the date of hearing that Mr Travis had not received more than 13 of the titles involved but since the hearing the Department has notified the Secretary that on 23 February 1983, 307 additional titles could be uplifted by Mr Travis who, on 24 February 1983, signed a receipt for 307 books as per a list attached. It is also relevant to record that on 21 October 1981 a complaint was made in writing by Mr Nicholas addressed to the Health Department.

In due course this found its way to the Customs Department which replied to Mr Nicholas on 5 November 1981. On 21 April 1983, Mr Stapleton, who appeared on the Court record as the solicitor for Mr Nicholas, was warned that a tentative date for hearing would be 16 June. Whether that was transmitted to Mr Travis, the Tribunal does not know. On 19 May 1983 a notice of sitting was despatched to Mr Stapleton but it was not until 7 June that actual notice was given to Mr Travis.

On 14 June, Mr Travis asked if he could be directed to a solicitor whom he might be able to instruct to appear ostensibly to seek an adjournment. He was told that an adjournment was unlikely. He was notified in writing on 7 June that an adjournment was unlikely. It should be recorded also that on 19 May notice of the hearing was sent to Mr Nicholas. This was returned marked "Gone, no address". Apparently he has shifted. He had changed his address but the Tribunal had not notice of his new address.

In the meantime suitable adjournments apparently have been made in the District Court.

Having set out that lengthy chronology, it is convenient now to consider some general principles in relation to adjournments. The administrative law section of Halsbury (4th edition) states (para 76):

"Where there is an express or implied obligation to conduct an oral hearing, it is contrary to natural justice to fail to give a party any opportunity of getting heard at all on a relevant issue, or to prevent him from calling evidence, or to preclude him or his advocate from addressing the Tribunal or making submissions. It may also be contrary to natural justice to refuse an adjournment requested by a party who needs further time to prepare his case or to produce evidence."

We wish to refer to two of the many authorities concerning the granting of adjournments. In Rose v Humbles [1970] 2 All ER 519, Buckley J. said at p. 523:

"I have been referred to authorities . . . which I think indicate that, although the adjournment of a hearing by any Tribunal is a matter prima facie for the discretion of the Tribunal and an exercise of that discretion will not be interfered with by an appellate court in normal circumstances, if the discretion has been exercised in such a way as to cause what can properly be regarded as an injustice to any of the parties affected, then the proper course for an appellate court to take is to ensure that the matter is further heard."

Another case was M (J) v M (K) [1968] 3 All ER 878 wherein in an appeal to the Chancery Division from a decision of the Manchester Magistrate's Court, Pennycuik J. in delivering the judgment of the Court held:

"We were referred by counsel for the mother to certain authorities as to the principles on which the courts acts where the tribunal from which an appeal is brought has refused an adjournment. The leading case is Maxwell v Keun [1927] All ER Rep 335; [1928] 1 KB 645, and I will read two short passages from the judgments. Atkin LJ said [at pp 338, 339; 653]:

"The other point made by the defendants was that this was a discretionary order and that the Court of Appeal ought not to interfere with the discretion of the learned judge. I quite agree that the Court of Appeal ought to be very slow, indeed, to interfere with the discretion of the learned judge on such a question as an adjournment of a trial, and it very seldom does so; but, on the other hand, if it appears that the result of the order made below is to defeat the rights of the parties altogether and to do that which the Court of Appeal is satisfied would be an injustice to one or other of the parties, then the court has power to review such an order, and it is, to my mind, its duty to do so."

Lawrence LJ said [at p. 341; 659]:

"Further, it is plain that if he is not present at the trial his case must fail, in other words, he will not have had an opportunity of having his case properly tried and thus of obtaining justice. I will assume for this purpose that his advisers committed an error of judgment in applying [for the postponement of the trial] at the time when they did; that they ought to have applied some weeks earlier. I cannot myself think that the penalty for that error of judgment is that the plaintiff should not have his case heard."

The principle laid down in that case has been followed by the Divisional Court of the Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division in two subsequent cases to which we were referred, namely Scutt v Scutt [1950] WN 286 and Walker v Walker [1967] 1 Appl ER 412. It is, I think, clear that the principle must apply with full force where the order made is of a penal character as it was here. It seems to me that in this case the learned magistrate ought to have given the mother an opportunity of being heard, and for that purpose, on 29 November 1967, notwithstanding the short notice and the flimsy excuse which she gave, he ought to have granted an adjournment."

Bearing those principles in mind we think that the following factors lend some support to the importer's application for an adjournment.

1. Essentially the importer faces criminal proceedings in the District Court. Once the Tribunal makes a finding as to the appropriate classification of the books, the matter will then revert to the jurisdiction of the District Court for final determination. It appears that if convicted the importer could face a maximum fine of approximately $51,339. Mr Leloir advised us that the penalty under section 48 of the Customs Act (which is the section under which the importer is charged) is a $1,000 fine or a fine 3 times the value of the goods seized, whichever is the greater. We were further informed that under section 261 of the Customs Act the Department has calculated that the 3215 paperbacks seized are worth $17,113.

Three times this figure gives the large sum already mentioned, as the potential maximum penalty for the offence. In circumstances where an importer faces a penalty of this magnitude, in a criminal proceeding, we would feel obliged to give the importer every opportunity to make representations relating to one of the essential elements of the offence, namely the issue of whether the publications are indecent.

2. Under section 16 of the Indecent Publications Act the Tribunal is given the power to make such order as to costs as it thinks fit. If the Tribunal were to find the majority of these publications manifestly indecent (although of course the Tribunal expresses no view on the matter at this stage) the Tribunal might well, having regard to the number of publications, impose an order for costs on the importer.

It should be borne in mind that the cost to the taxpayer of the Tribunal's adjudication on this particular reference is approximately $22,000. But, in the absence of hearing any submissions from the importer on the question of the indecency of the publications, or on the question of costs, the Tribunal would be reluctant to make any such imposition of costs.

In expressing this view we bear in mind the Court of Appeal's recent action in quashing the order made by the Royal Commission for $150,000 costs against Air New Zealand in Re Erebus (No. 2) [1981] 1 NZLR 618, 666. Although the factual situations between the 2 cases are far removed, we nevertheless think there is some connection in principle: namely that where a party affected may have been denied an adequate opportunity to be heard, or where there may be a possibility that a breach of natural justice may have occurred, costs or a financial penalty imposed on the "injured" party may subsequently be quashed, as being inappropriate in the circumstances.

3. Although Mr Travis has been seized of the proceedings since February 1982, we heard through Mr Brooks that he was prepared to swear an affidavit that he had only heard of the date of the present hearing on 7 June 1983. We accept what Mr Travis says without the need for an affidavit. It is also true that the notice of hearing was sent to Mr Stapleton, in error, and that the notice of hearing sent to the importer himself was never received by him because he had shifted addresses since 1981.

Consequently the importer's legal advisor may have had short notice at a substantial hearing further complicated by the fact that his client was overseas at the time of notification.

4. It appears in this case that there have already been significant delays, which cannot be attributed to the fault of the importer. The chronology of events shows that for almost a year the Customs Department did nothing about the publications, and in the end Mr Nicholas was moved to complain at ministerial level about the delay. It further appears that after March 1982 the conduct of the proceedings in the Auckland District Court fell into some sort of limbo, and that matters were not put into train again until February 1983.

In those circumstances we feel that another 2 months' delay will not unduly distort the due process of justice, especially considering that more than 3 years has elapsed since the official seizure of these publications.

5. The final matter is that although the Customs Department were ready to proceed before the Tribunal on 15 June 1983, Mr Leloir made no objection to the application by the importer for the adjournment.

In conclusion therefore we reluctantly agree to adjourn the present hearing until Tuesday, 16 August 1983 when the hearing of this reference will definitely proceed. It is obvious that the importer's solicitor must avail himself of the earliest opportunity to peruse the balance of the books seized in this importation. We have directed the Comptroller to make the balance of the books available as soon as possible.

We also note that we will be unimpressed with any argument (save for the most cogent evidence) that Mr Travis was unable to get adequate instructions from Mr Nicholas because he is presently overseas. The sums of money involved in the importation of the present publications, and the sums involved in any penalty upon conviction, or in the form of any costs that might be imposed, are likely to be substantial. Those costs would seem to us to merit attempts to obtain instructions that perhaps would not otherwise be justified, were the stakes not as high as in the present proceedings.

Therefore, unless the most exceptional circumstances prevail to the contrary, the hearing of this reference will definitely proceed on Tuesday, 16 August 1983.

Our purpose in setting out at this length our reasons for granting the application for adjournment is to ensure that the importer and his solicitor are properly placed on guard as to the possible consequences at their failure to be in a position to proceed on the next hearing of this reference from the Auckland District Court.

District Court Judge W. M. WILLIS, Chairman.
