Duty Concessions—Qualifications with End-Use Requirements

1. The Customs Department is reviewing the use of particular purpose declarations and end-use requirements which sometimes apply when duty concessions are granted. Conditions requiring that imported goods must be used in a specified end-use are placed for 2 principal reasons:

First, the goods may have possible uses outside an approved activity.

Secondly, the nature of the goods may be such that it is not possible to define them fully and accurately in general terms, and qualification in terms of a particular use assists in definition and control.

LEGAL POSITION

2. The legislation which provides for this policy is contained in section 252 of the Customs Act which is as follows:

"252. Failure to comply with conditions of entry—

(1) When under any provision of this Act or of the Tariff any goods are, if entered for a particular purpose or under any condition prescribed by the Minister, exempt from duty or liable to a lower rate of duty than if entered otherwise than for that purpose or under that condition, and any goods have been entered under that provision, every person commits an offence who knowingly—

(a) Uses those goods for any purpose other than that for which they have been so entered; or

(b) Fails to comply with any condition prescribed by the Minister in respect of the goods so entered.

(2) If any person commits an offence under this section he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding 3 times the amount of the duty or additional duty that would have been payable if the goods had been entered otherwise than under the provision under which they were entered, or [$400], whichever sum is the greater, and the goods shall be forfeited.

(3) The Comptroller may at any time, if he thinks fit, accept from the owner of any goods so entered for a particular purpose or under any condition prescribed by the Minister the amount of duty or additional duty that would have been payable on them if they had been entered otherwise than for that purpose or under that condition, and thereafter this section shall cease to apply in respect of those goods."

3. The thrust of this section is to make the non-observance of the conditions under which a concession is granted an offence. It is, of course, appropriate that it should be treated as such when there is a deliberate attempt to evade the revenue involved. However, relativity to an enforcement orientated section of the Act is questionable when importers apply to the department formally to remove or vary conditions and such applications are approved on the basis of the requisite duty being payable. The department is therefore contemplating whether or not a case exists to propose an amendment to the legislation to take such action rather than in the context in which section 252 places it.

DESCRIPTIONS

4. Over a considerable number of years, a range of different wordings has come to be used where specific end-uses are required for approvals. These have sometimes been unnecessarily limiting—for example, by relating the concession to the business of the importer rather than solely to the intending use. It is now proposed that these descriptions be standardised and the following wording adopted:

"... on condition that the goods are for use solely in the manufacture of ..."

This wording may need to be varied slightly in particular circumstances (e.g., where the approval is linked to use by hospitals and the like).

5. The present practice of allowing importation by third parties where the goods are intended for supply to a purchaser who will use the goods for the approved use will not be affected by this proposal.

CUSTOMS "PARTICULAR PURPOSE" DECLARATIONS

6. A common practice associated with conditional end-use is to require "particular purpose" declarations under the Customs Act relative to this intended usage. It is now proposed, consistent with the above standard description to dispense with the need for such declarations. Legal responsibility will not be effected thereby.

GENERAL

7. The objective of this review is to clarify the policy and procedures relating to concessions where end-use is a necessary element. While the department prefers to avoid end-use requirements in the granting of duty concessions, this is not always possible. However, where end-use requirements are a necessary element of an approval, it is our wish that such requirements be clear and administratively effective.

8. Any person wishing to make representations concerning the proposals set out in this paper should refer a written submission to—

The Comptroller of Customs,
Customs Department,
Private Bag,
Wellington.

Attention: Concessions.

by 23 December 1983.

9. Telephone and other requests for clarification should be addressed to Mr Hellyar of this division.

10. Submissions, either generally or in relation to particular goods, should be forwarded so to arrive no later than 23 December 1983. Subject to consideration of any objections, it is intended that the standardisation of descriptions will be effected early in the new year.

Dated at Wellington this 10th day of November 1983.

P. J. MCKONE, Comptroller of Customs.

Direction Not to Disclose Information

PURSUANT to section 32 (4) of the Official Information Act 1982, the copy direction to the Secretary of Labour made under section 32 (1) (a) of that Act and set out in the Schedule below, together with the grounds for the direction and the source and purport of the advice on which the direction was based (which are also set out in the Schedule below) are hereby published.

SCHEDULE

SECRETARY OF LABOUR

1. This is to advise you that I have decided that the information sought by Mr H. Schouten and recommended to be released by the Chief Ombudsman, pursuant to section 30 (1) of the Official Information Act 1982, concerning labour market forecasts, should not be made available to him and accordingly direct you pursuant to section 32 (1) (a) of the Official Information Act 1982 not to release it.

2. The grounds for the direction are that pursuant to section 9 of the Official Information Act, and notwithstanding the opinion of the Chief Ombudsman, the release of the information sought would undermine the constitutional conventions as to the neutrality of officials and the confidentiality of their advice. It would also undermine the free and frank expression of opinion between Ministers and officials and the protection of officials from improper pressure or harassment.

3. More specifically:

- (a) In the matter of forecasts, the opinions of departmental officials on the labour market outlook and, implicitly on the effectiveness of current policies for dealing with it, could well be at variance with those of the Government. This would be likely to draw officials into the public debate; whereas the distancing of officials from such debate is an important constitutional convention designed to maintain their political neutrality.
- (b) By virtue of the fact that existing policy forecasts imply a commentary on the effectiveness of those policies, release of the forecasts would necessarily breach the constitutional convention which protects the confidentiality of advice tendered to Ministers of the Crown by officials.
- (c) Occasions are envisaged when, under conditions of particular uncertainty officials may refrain from preparing forecasts if there exists a possibility that they would be misrepresented in the political arena or used for purely political purposes. This would clearly serve to constrain the "free and frank expression of opinions" by officials of the department to its Minister and would thereby undermine the effective conduct of public affairs.
- (d) Circumstances are envisaged under which departmental officials may be replaced under some pressure during the course of the public debate to modify their opinions as to the labour market outlook.

4. The question of whether there are other considerations which render it desirable, in the public interest, to make that information available has also been considered. No such considerations have become identifiable.

5. The advice on which this direction is based has been received from the Secretary of Labour in the form of a summary of the department's position in relation to its labour market forecasts and their use. The purport of the advice is as set out in paragraphs 2 and 3 above.

DAVID THOMSON, for Minister of Labour.

Direction Not to Disclose Information

PURSUANT to section 32 (4) of the Official Information Act 1982, the copy direction to the Secretary of Labour made under section 32 (1) (a) of that Act and set out in the Schedule below, together with the grounds for the direction and the source and purport of the advice on which the direction was based (which are also set out in the Schedule below) are hereby published.

SCHEDULE

SECRETARY OF LABOUR

1. This is to advise you that I have decided that the information sought by Dr M. Cullen, M.P. and recommended to be released by the Chief Ombudsman, pursuant to section 30 (1) of the Official Information Act 1982, on the number of people seeking work who are not registered as unemployed (i.e., the department's estimates of unregistered unemployment), should not be made available to him and accordingly direct you pursuant to section 32 (1) (a) of the Official Information Act 1982 not to release it.

2. The grounds for the direction are that pursuant to section 9 of the Official Information Act, and notwithstanding the opinion of the Chief Ombudsman, the release of the information sought would undermine the constitutional conventions as to the neutrality of officials and the confidentiality of their advice. It would also undermine the free and frank expression of opinion between Ministers and officials and the protection of officials from improper pressure or harassment.

3. More specifically:

(a) Opinions of departmental officials on unregistered unemployment could well be at variance with those of the Government. This would be likely to draw officials into public debate, whereas the distancing of officials from such debate is an important constitutional convention designed to maintain their political neutrality.

(b) By virtue of the fact that the opinion of officials on unregistered unemployment may imply a need for policy initiatives, release of the information would necessarily breach the constitutional convention which protects the confidentiality of advice tendered to Ministers of the Crown by officials.

(c) Occasions are envisaged when, under conditions of particular uncertainty officials may refrain from preparing information which includes estimates of unregistered unemployment if there exists a possibility that they would be misrepresented in the political arena or used for purely political purposes. This would clearly serve to constrain the "free and frank expression of opinions" by officials of the department to its Minister and would thereby undermine the effective conduct of public affairs.

(d) Circumstances are envisaged under which departmental officials may be placed under some pressure during the course of the public debate to modify their opinions as to the labour market outlook and estimates of unregistered unemployment.

4. The question of whether there are other considerations which render it desirable, in the public interest, to make that information available has also been considered. No such considerations have become identifiable.

5. The advice on which this direction is based has been received from the Secretary of Labour in the form of a summary of the department's position in relation to its labour market forecasts and their use. The purport of this advice is as set out in paragraphs 2 and 3 above.

DAVID THOMSON, for Minister of Labour.
