Decision No. 8/85
COM 4/84

Before the Broadcasting Tribunal

IN the matter of the Broadcasting Act 1976, and in the matter of a complaint by:

Julia Margaret Stuart of Trentham, Journalist.

WARRANT HOLDER: Broadcasting Corporation of New Zealand (Radio New Zealand):

Chairman: B. H. Slane.

Members: Lionel R. Sceats and Ann E. Wilson.

Co-opted Members: Helen A. Cull and N. L. Macbeth.

Hearing: At Wellington—6 November 1984.

DECISION

Mrs Stuart's complaint relates to the broadcast in the programme As It Happens on 17 February 1984 on the National Programme of Radio New Zealand. The programme related to the United Nations Convention for the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women and consisted of a preliminary background followed by a discussion between Mrs Babette Francis who was campaigning against the Convention and Mrs Ann Hercus a Labour MP who supported ratification of the Convention.

Mrs Stuart was authorised by Mrs Francis to lodge the complaint. As she was dissatisfied with the Corporation's refusal to uphold the complaint Mrs Stuart referred it to the Tribunal.

At the hearing evidence was given by Mrs Stuart, by the interviewer on the programme and by Mr P. E. Downes, Programme Manager, National Programme.

Subsequently the Tribunal was supplied with some further material which had been referred to at the hearing. Mrs Stuart claimed that there were breaches of Rules 1.1 (e) and 4.2 (e) of the Radio Rules which read as follows:

"1.1 In the preparation and presentation of programmes, broadcasters are required—
(e) To deal justly and fairly with the person taking part of referred to in any programme."

It is also pertinent to note another sub-paragraph:

"(g) To show balance, impartiality and fairness in dealing with political matters, current affairs, and all questions of a controversial nature."

"4.2 A radio news and current affairs service should take account of the following points—

(e) Greater care must be taken in the editing of programme material to ensure that the extracts used are a true reflection and not a distortion of the original event or the overall views expressed."

The complaint can be summarised as follows:

1. That the interviewer in collusion with Mrs Hercus, did not reveal information that she had obtained from the office of the Premier of Tasmania about an incident relating to a school library in Tasmania.
2. That the failure to warn Mrs Francis about this information resulted in her being unfairly treated in the interview.
3. The editing of the discussion was not balanced, impartial and fair and did not reflect the views expressed.

It is not necessary for the purpose of this decision to go into the minute detail which the complainant and (necessarily) the Corporation did in the hearing of the complaint.

We deal with each allegation separately.

1. Collusion—As a result of reading a report in the Dominion, the Radio New Zealand interviewer contacted the press officer at the Tasmanian Premier's office concerning an incident which Mrs Francis had been mentioning in her speeches in New Zealand. She was campaigning during her visit against the ratification of the UN Convention which had earlier been signed by both Australia and New Zealand. (It had since been ratified by Australia but the question of whether it should be ratified by New Zealand was a matter of public controversy.)

The incident was a book culling in a school, the facts of which are disputed. Mrs Francis was using the incident to illustrate the effect of the signing of the convention and/or the possibility that ratification could create a climate which resulted in libraries eliminating such books as Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs and Born Free.

Although she claims that she did not associate it directly with the UN Convention, and although the interviewer approached the Premier's office on the basis of enquiring whether it had anything to do with ratification of the convention, the incident was relevant because Mrs Francis raised it as part of her argument against the convention.

The interviewer obtained by telephone the information that as far as the Minister of Education and the Government of Tasmania were concerned, the book incident was not associated with the convention.

We place no great importance on the legalistic point of whether it was to do with the ratification of or with the signing of the convention. The way in which the question was put would have elicited an appropriate response from the Premier's office if it had been associated with the signing of the convention.

Because she was present at the studio for the interview early and because the call from the Tasmanian Premier's office came through while she was there, Mrs Hercus became aware of the telephone call and the information obtained by the interviewer.

Mrs Francis arrived late. The interview was started immediately because of the limited time available in the studio. She was not made aware of the information obtained a few minutes earlier.

The Tribunal considers that the interviewer should have acquainted Mrs Francis with the information she had obtained.

The Tribunal considers that it would not necessarily have been appropriate if the broadcast had been an interview. But as it was to be a discussion and one party already knew what the interviewer had learned, she should have made that knowledge available to the other party.

We do not find there was any collusion between the interviewer and Mrs Hercus. There was an error of judgment on the part of the interviewer.

2. Unfairness to Mrs Francis—We do not find that the interview as broadcast did prove to be unfair to Mrs Francis. Mrs Francis had been referring to this incident and would have been aware of the likelihood of information being obtained which threw a different light on the facts, or of a challenge to her about it.

Clippings made available to the Tribunal showed that there were different versions of the Australian incident published.

We expect that Mrs Francis as a campaigner would have been able to deal with anything raised about the matter. In fact she did so at the interview but with a letter that did not in fact advance the matter much further. That letter was not included in the edited version of the interview which was broadcast.

3. Editing—We have considered the allegations regarding the book incident and do not consider that including in the broadcast her reading out of the letter from the Chairman of the Government Education Committee of the Tasmania Assembly, would have advantaged Mrs Francis.

In the broadcast interview the following exchange occurred:

Hercus: I think it's very tragic that we have surrounding this convention an appalling amount of mis-information and sometimes mischievously put out. I mean, here we have a very good example where you have rung the Premier's office and been given an assurance that this has nothing to do with the UN Convention.

Francis: Yes, but who have you spoken to?

Hercus: I'm sorry, could you let me continue—you have had a fair go.

Interviewer: To the Chief Press Officer of the Premier's office.

Hercus: I'm sure he would be very accurate in what he said to the media, and I think it's terribly important that we do care for the truth and care for absolute accuracy.

Later in the interview Mrs Francis alleged that she had been called a liar and Mrs Hercus denied that.

That later portion, together with material both before and after it, was not included in the broadcast interview.

The Tribunal has listened to the unedited tape and read a transcript of the broadcast—which was not totally accurate.

However, the Tribunal finds that Mrs Hercus did not call Mrs Francis a liar. She did refer to one of the "myths she claimed were spread about the convention" information mentioned as a lie. We do not therefore consider it a lack of balance for the later comments of Mrs Francis to have been edited out of the interview.

The Tribunal has concluded that the interview was not edited in a biased way and that about as much material from Mrs Hercus as from Mrs Francis would have had to be included if the broadcast had been extended. On balance, the Tribunal finds that if a person had listened to the unedited interview, they would not have come to any other conclusions about the convention if they had listened to the shortened edited version which was broadcast.

Observation—The Tribunal has however to note that in the conduct of the interview the interviewer did put her taxing questions to Mrs Francis, but not to Mrs Hercus. To this extent we find that the interviewer showed some partiality which fell short of bias and which fell short of unfairness.

We say this because we believe that a campaigner must expect a robust response in current affairs interviews and from staff conducting such interviews.

However, when a Radio New Zealand staff member is conducting a discussion between two people for broadcast, she must either be prepared to put the difficult and taxing questions to both parties or to adopt a softer approach towards both. This was not a matter which was raised by the complainant but we considered it appropriate to make the observation.

We also make a further observation. Mrs Francis was in New Zealand again later and no effort was made by Radio New Zealand to try and remedy the grievance which Mrs Francis and Mrs Stuart felt in relation to the original matters, when it would have been easy to have taken the opportunity to have done so.

Conclusion—The complaint is upheld to the extent that we find that in the preparation for the programme the interviewer should have acquainted Mrs Francis with the information obtained from Tasmania and in that respect Mrs Francis was not treated fairly. In the event we consider it did not result in actual unfairness in the programme content.

We do not uphold the allegation of collusion, or the allegations of bias in relation to editing. We consider the programme as broadcast was not in breach of the rules in the respects raised by the complainant.

Co-opted Members—The Tribunal co-opted Helen Cull and Norman Macbeth as persons whose qualifications and experience might be of assistance to the Tribunal in the determination of the complaint. They took part in the hearing and the deliberations of the Tribunal but the decision is that of the permanent members.

Before the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publications:

Coming Out Right: A handbook for the Gay Male, published by Alyson Publications Inc.

Coming to Power, published by Alyson Publications Inc.

A Different Love, published by Alyson Publications Inc.

I Once Had a Master, published by Alyson Publications Inc.

Chairman: Judge R. R. Kearney.

Members: H. B. Dick, J. V. B. McLinden, R. Barrington, A. J. Graham.

Hearing: At Wellington on the 29th day of March 1985.

Appearances: No appearance by the importer, Benton Ross Publishers Ltd., K. Wild for Comptroller of Customs.

DECISION

THESE four books are published by Alyson Publications Inc., Boston, USA. The publications were part of the commercial shipment imported through the Port of Auckland in September 1984 and after seizure by Customs the importer disputed forfeiture. All four publications have been referred to the Tribunal for classification.

Coming Out Right, as described in its introduction, is a handbook to serve the needs of the man who is in the process of accepting himself as homosexual. The book is well written and is clearly a serious publication in respect of the matters which it covers. In addition to the physical lovemaking aspects of homosexual relations the publication also covers the emotional and legal considerations of homosexual relationships. The book is written for American readers but would in our view still be of relevance in New Zealand conditions. There are two features of the book which in our view makes a finding that it is indecent inevitable. Firstly, the book tends to glamorise homosexuality and secondly the chapter of homosexual drug use are both aspects which independently would warrant an indecent classification.

Coming to Power is a collection of short stories, essays and interviews most of which deal with the subject of lesbian sadomasochism. The book is edited by members of an organisation SAMOIS and is said by the editors to be the writings and graphics on lesbian sadomasochism. Some of the stories are well written but many are crude and lacking in any redeeming features. The book is in the finding of the Tribunal clearly indecent.

A Different Love and I Once Had A Master are both paperbacks which dwell on and glamorise the sexual side of homosexual relationships in respect of the male homosexual. I Once Had A Master is a series of short stories many of which concentrate on sadomasochism. Both publications are in the finding of the Tribunal indecent.

Decision No. 5/85

IND 14/85

Before the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publications:

Curious Wine and Yantras of Womanlove: Both published by the Naiad Press Inc.

Chairman: Judge R. R. Kearney.

Members: H. B. Dick, J. V. B. McLinden, R. Barrington, A. J. Graham.

Hearing: At Wellington on the 11th day of July 1985.

Appearances: No appearance of importer, Benton Ross Publishers Ltd. K. Wild for Comptroller of Customs.

DECISION

THE Comptroller advised us that these two publications form part of a commercial shipment imported through the Port of Auckland in March 1985. They were not seized but were forwarded for the Tribunal's decision by the Comptroller at the request of the importer, pursuant to section 14 (1) of the Indecent Publications Act.

Curious Wine is a 160 page novel written by Katherine V. Forrest. It appears to have been first published in May 1983 and there have been two subsequent printings (June 1983 and March 1984). The publisher was Naiad Press Incorporated which appears to be based in Florida, U.S.A.

The Comptroller submitted that although the publication was a well written novel, the frequency of sexual activity was enough to warrant an age restriction. The department conceded that the scenes referred to were presented in a fairly restrained manner.

We feel that the department's concern may arise not so much with the content of the publication (which is relatively innocuous having regard to the standard of many of the novels that are referred to us). It may also be concerned by the fact that the story concerns a lesbian relationship between two women, and the book has been published by what appears to be a group associated with women's interests.

If so, we do not share the department's misgivings. Although the characters in the book may be shallow, and some aspects of the text may be crudely put, those faults may be ascribed to the author's amateur approach rather than to any lack of honesty of purpose.

We think the book is a genuine attempt to tell of the development of a relationship between two women and is comparatively well written despite criticism that might be made of Ms Forrest's style. The fact that the book is published by a special interest organisation is not important in this case—although on occasion it may be that the publisher's identity is a factor to be considered in assessing the book's honesty of purpose.

We therefore classify this publication as not indecent.

Yantras of Womanlove is an illustrated book co-authored by Tee Corrine and Jacqueline Lapidus and published by Naiad Press in 1982. In the foreword Ms Corrine advises that the word Yantras is taken from terminology used in yoga and means a diagrammatic representation of fields of energy.

The book contains introductory text of some 6 pages. The rest of the publication is taken up with a collection of black and white photographs with short accompanying text that depict in a fantastic or surreal way (hence the significance of the work Yantras) what the author calls:

"... the spirituality of sexuality, the transcendence that can take place when making love to ourselves and others..."

Although some of the photographs are very frank it does not appear to us that they are designed to cater to any prurient interest. The impact of the photographs has been considerably lessened by the manner in which the subject has been presented.

On at least two previous occasions the Tribunal has held that an impressionistic or fantastic presentation of nudity could lessen the effect of a sexual display which in other modes of presentation could be indecent. For example, in decision No. 1053 dated 16 March 1983 (concerning the twelve issues of Penthouse for the year 1982), the Tribunal stated:

"The November portfolio referred to is an article entitled Realm of the Senses and runs from page 76 to page 85 of the magazine. These pictures depict scenes between a number of models, but the photographs have been taken through frosted glass. It appears to us that the photographs have been taken in an artistic way, and not in a method calculated to arouse prurient interest. We think it is relevant to refer here to what was said by the Tribunal in decision No. 881 which concerned the February and July 1976 issues of Penthouse. The Tribunal said of a scene which depicted, albeit fantastically, a sadistic and lesbian episode:

"The presentation of nudity is not indecent if it is not prurient or salacious. Fantasy or fantastic presentation can lessen the indecency in sadism or other sexual matters which, in other ways of presentation, are obscene and pornographic."

We think that this portfolio of photographs falls clearly within that statement."

The only difficulty we had with the present publication was whether or not an age restriction should be placed on it. The Comptroller urged us to do so on the ground that although there was an abstract presentation the subject matter of women indulging in lesbian acts was still obvious. The Comptroller did not refer to what we had previously said about the style of presentation and it may well have been that had he considered the publication in the light of those remarks, the department's attitude may have been different.

The difficulty in making a classification in respect of this publication has been caused by its unusual illustrations. If we had imposed an age restriction it would have been that the publication was indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 16. However, we felt that the impact of the publication was equivocal. Although it was frank we do not think that the book is likely to appeal to young readers because of the manner of presentation. Nor is it designed to appeal to prurient and lewd tastes, so the likelihood of corruption is small if no restriction was placed on it. Finally, the publication will retail at a price which will probably discourage its purchase by those who only have a casual interest in its subject matter. In those circumstances we think we should take the view which is more favourable to the freedom of expression. Accordingly, the book is classified not indecent.

Decision No. 6/85
IND 4/85

Before the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publications:

Elizabeth:

Nights of the Rajah:

Parisian Frolics:

Venus School Mistress:

The Victorian Imagination: A Sampler, all published by the Grove Press Inc. New York.

Chairman: Judge R. R. Kearney.

Members: H. B. Dick, J. V. B. McLinden, R. Barrington, A. J. Graham.

Hearing: Wellington, 29th day of March 1985.

Appearances: No appearance of importer, Milford House Ltd. K. Wild for Comptroller of Customs.

DECISION

THESE sample copies were imported from Dunedin in October 1984 and have been referred to the Tribunal at the request of the importer for a decision as to their indecency. There was no appearance by the importing company before the Tribunal and no representation made in writing by it or on its behalf.

The first four books all purport to be recent reprintings of eighteenth or nineteenth century publications, which would originally have been part of the underground press of England and France.

Elizabeth is described by the publisher as an erotic reverie of a Victorian gentleman, but in reality is the story of a young girl's sexual awakening in Victorian England. It appears to have little honest purpose; the sexual descriptions are both unending and explicit.

Nights of the Rajah is a sequel to The Amorous Memoirs of Captain Charles de Vane (declared indecent by the Tribunal in decision 28/84), with the same hero continuing his adventures. It is basically a novel of de Vane's sexual exploits written from the point of view of a military adventurer in the latter half of the nineteenth century, but written with such a very thinly disguised plot that it provides no literary redeeming features.

Parisian Frolics reproduces four stories originally written in French between 1889-1894 translated into English in the early part of this century. It was certainly part of the erotica of La Belle Epoque, and is possibly as claimed in the Introduction in the British Museum Private Case Collection. However the stories had no literary features, and were little more than a camouflage for a series of explicit sexual episodes.

Venus School Mistress is a reprint of an eighteenth century collection of fiction, drama and verse set in the original type face. Its main theme is flagellation and flogging in a boarding school. At best it is a social document but we feel it lacks any real historical, social, or literary merit to declare it other than indecent. We are reinforced in this point of view by the impression that if this book was written now rather than over a century ago, the Tribunal would have little hesitation in finding it indecent.

The Tribunal certifies each of these four books as indecent.

The Victorian Imagination, a Sampler. The remaining publication is a book which in our opinion falls into a difficult category. Some investigations which we have carried out suggest to us that the material reproduced might be genuine Victorian literature. The authenticity of the material is very much a matter which could determine the classification given to this publication. The Tribunal has the powers of a Commission of Inquiry which enables it to obtain further evidence in relation to a particular matter. In this case the Tribunal believes that it is important that expert evidence be obtained as to whether or not the material in this publication is genuine Victorian literature. Upon receipt and consideration of that expert opinion the Tribunal will reach a final determination as to this publication. The application in respect of it has been adjourned.
