Direction Not to Disclose Information

PURSUANT to section 32 (4) of the Official Information Act 1982, the Minister of Energy hereby gives notice that he has given the direction set out in the Schedule hereto.

SCHEDULE

Transport Licensing Authority Sitting

THE SECRETARY OF ENERGY

I have decided that certain information sought by Balcairn Mining Investments Ltd. and solicitors Graham & Company from the Ministry of Energy, namely, all relevant reports or information relating to the investigation of the Rotokawa Geothermal Field, including the report compiled by M. A. Mongillo in 1985 and RK.4 Well Testing and Completion Reports (Ministry of Works and Development, 1985), should not be made available to Balcairn Mining Investments Ltd. and Graham & Company notwithstanding the Chief Ombudsman's recommendation to that effect under section 30 (1) of the Official Information Act 1982 (the "Act"), and accordingly, pursuant to section 32 (1) (a) of the Act, I hereby direct you not to release such information.

2. The grounds for the direction are:

- (a) That the release of the information could reasonably be expected to prejudice significantly the competitive commercial activities of the Gas and Geothermal Trading Group of the Ministry of Energy.
- (b) That the release of the information could reasonably be expected to interfere significantly with negotiations related to the competitive commercial activities of the Gas and Geothermal Trading Group.
- (c) That the withholding of the information is necessary to enable the Gas and Geothermal Trading Group to carry out, without prejudice or disadvantage, its commercial activities and the withholding of the information is not outweighed by other considerations which render it desirable, in the public interest, to make that information available.

3. The advice on which this direction is based has been received from the Secretary of Energy. The purport of the advice is as set out above.

Dated at Wellington this 13th day of March 1987.

R. J. TIZARD, Minister of Energy.

Decision No. 3/87

BRO 30/86

Before the Broadcasting Tribunal

IN the matter of the Broadcasting Act 1976, and in the matter of OTAGO RADIO ASSOCIATION INC. for an amendment to Warrant AM-1/4XD to extend the hours of broadcasting:

Chairman: B. H. Slane.

Members: Ann E. Wilson and Robert Boyd-Bell.

Dated the 12th day of March 1987.

DECISION

The present hours of 4XD are Monday to Saturday 1800 hours to 2300 hours, Sunday 0900 hours to 2300 hours.

The association has applied to extend the hours by 1 hour on weekdays to close at midnight, and to broadcast from 0800 to 2400 hours on Saturdays and Sundays. This constitutes an extension on Saturdays of 10 hours and on Sundays of 2 hours.

An application is also made to continue until 1 hour after midnight on Christmas Day and New Year's Day.

The station's hours were substantially increased in 1981 (Decision 17/81) which followed a suggestion from the Tribunal that it would like to see the station work towards an extension of hours.

That resulted in the station broadcasting daily.

In 1984 the daily hours were extended to provide continuous broadcasting from 0900 hours to 2300 on Sundays (Decision 12/84).

The present application therefore slightly extends the hours Sunday to Friday and substantially increases the hours on Saturdays.

In support of the application the association indicated that it intended to use the additional hours to provide a programme to its listeners similar to that broadcast during the present hours. The content of the programme was described as light and bright musical with an emphasis on popular music of the past, recent middle of the road releases and country music. It was described as "easy listening".

The association submitted that the programme would fill a gap between the contemporary music broadcast by 4XO, the sporting and general popular music programme broadcast by 4ZB, the national programme broadcast by 4YA and the concert programme broadcast by 4YC, and the heavy music broadcast by the Student FM station.

It was suggested that the programme content did not encroach on or duplicate programmes offered by other radio stations in Dunedin.

There was no opposition to the application.

The tribunal considers the increased hours to be desirable in the public interest; that the extension will have no significant effect on any other station; and that the extension provides a better utilisation of the frequency.

The warrant will be amended as applied for.

Signed for the tribunal:

B. H. SLANE, Chairman.

Electrical Wiring Regulation 1976

PURSUANT to the provisions of regulation 18 (3) of the Electrical Wiring Regulations 1976, the following specifications are declared suitable for the purpose of those regulations:

BRITISH STANDARDS

BS 162: 1961 Electric power switchgear and associated apparatus (including Amendments No. 1 to No. 5). Declared suitable subject to compliance with regulation 20 (1) of the Electrical Wiring Regulations 1976.

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

BS 562: 1958 Reversible connectors (including Amendments No. 1 to No. 3).

Declared suitable subject to compliance with regulation 20 (1) (b) of the Electrical Wiring Regulations 1976. If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

BS 764: 1954 Automatic change-over contactors for emergency lighting systems (including Amendments No. 1 to No. 5).

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

BS 841: 1966 Lamp-caps and lampholders for architectural lamps. Declared suitable subject to compliance with regulation 20 (1) (a) of the Electrical Wiring Regulations 1976.

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

BS 3456: --- Specification for safety of household and similar electrical appliances—

Part 1: 1969 General Requirements (including Amendments No. 1 to No. 5).

Declared suitable subject to the following conditions:

(i) Clause 2.17 being deleted and replaced with "Extra-low voltage" means any voltage normally not exceeding 32 volts alternating current or 50 volts direct current.

(ii) Any radio-interference suppression device complying with regulation 126 (4) of the Electrical Wiring Regulations 1976.

Part 2: Particular requirements—

Section 2.5: 1970 Shavers, hair clippers and similar appliances (including Amendments No. 1 and No. 2).

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

Section 2.12: 1970 Spin extractors (including Amendments No. 1 to No. 3).

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

Section 2.13: 1970 Tumbler dryers.

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

Section 2.32: 1974 Mains-operated electric lawnmowers (including Amendments No. 1 and No. 2).

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

Part 3: --- Complete particular specifications—

Section 3.1: 1979 Irons, ironers, and pressing machines (including Amendment No. 1). Declared suitable subject to the following conditions:

(i) Deleting "42 V" subclause 2.21 and substituting "32 V a.c. or 50 V d.c."

(ii) Deleting subclause 2.22 and substituting the following:
"2.22 Safety extra-low voltage supply denotes a supply obtained from a source which is independent of the supply mains, or from the supply mains through a safety isolating transformer or converter with separate windings, this supply being such that the no-load voltage does not exceed 32 V a.c. or 50 V d.c. between conductors."

(iii) Clause 8.4 complying with regulation 107 of the Electrical Wiring Regulations 1976.

(iv) Deleting "34" in clause 8.9 and substituting "32 V a.c. or 50 V d.c."

(v) Any associated accessory being of a type not prohibited from use in New Zealand.

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

Section 3.3: 1979 Vacuum cleaners and water suction cleaning appliances (including Amendment No. 1).

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

Section 3.12: 1979 Kitchen machines (including Amendment No. 1). Declared suitable subject to the following complying with the Electrical Wiring Regulations 1976:

(i) Extra-low voltage or safety extra-low voltage requirements;

(ii) Marking requirements;

(iii) Capacitors connected within the appliance.

Any flexible cables and cords, plugs and sockets must comply with an appropriate recognised Standard.

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

Section 3.19: 1980 Appliances for heating liquids (including Amendment No. 1). Declared suitable subject to the following condition: Compliance with regulation 107 of the Electrical Wiring Regulations 1976.

If this specification is superseded the declaration of this specification is rescinded.

BS 3953: 1976 Synthetic resin bonded woven glass fabric laminated sheet (including Amendment No. 1).

BS 5311: --- Specification for a.c. circuit-breakers of rated voltage above 1 kV—

Part 1: 1976 General and definitions.

BS 5345: --- Code of Practice for the selection, installation and maintenance of electrical apparatus for use in potentially explosive atmospheres (other than mining applications or explosive processing and manufacture)—

Part 1: 1976 Basic requirements for all parts of the code (including Amendment No. 1).

Part 2: 1983 Classification of hazardous areas.

Part 3: 1979 Installation and maintenance requirements for electrical apparatus with type of protection 'd'. Flameproof enclosure.

Part 4: 1977 Installation and maintenance requirements for electrical apparatus with type of protection 'i'. Intrinsically safe electrical apparatus and systems.

Part 5: 1983 Installation and maintenance requirements for electrical apparatus protected by pressurisation 'p' and by continuous dilution, and for pressurised rooms.

Part 6: 1978 Installation and maintenance requirements for electrical apparatus with type of protection 'e'. Increased safety.

Part 7: 1979 Installation and maintenance requirements for electrical apparatus with type of protection N (including Amendment No. 1).

Part 8: 1980 Installation and maintenance requirements for electrical apparatus with type of protection 's'. Special protection.

BS 5415: --- Safety of electrical motor-operated industrial cleaning appliances—

Part 1: 1976 General requirements (including Amendments No. 1 to No. 4). Declared suitable subject to the following conditions:

(i) Any radio-interference suppression devices comply with regulation 126 (4) of the Electrical Wiring Regulations 1976.

(ii) The current ratings and cross-sectional areas of flexible cords referred to in clause 25.6 complies with table 22M in the handbook to the Electrical Wiring Regulations 1976.

(iii) Subclauses 2.15 and 2.16 comply with the definition of "Extra-low voltage" referred to in regulation 2 of the Electrical Wiring Regulations 1976.

Part 2: --- Particular requirements—

Section 2.2: 1976 Vacuum cleaners wet and/or dry (including Amendments No. 1 to No. 4).

BS 5501: --- Electrical apparatus for potentially explosive atmospheres—

COM 2/86

Before the Broadcasting Tribunal

IN the matter of the Broadcasting Act 1976, and in the matter of a complaint by GEORGE IAN ANDREWS:

WARRANT HOLDER—BROADCASTING CORPORATION OF NEW ZEALAND (TELEVISION NEW ZEALAND):

Chairman: B. H. Slane.

Member: Ann E. Wilson.

Co-opted Members: S. H. Gardiner and Wayne K. Sellwood.

DECISION

On 30 April 1986 Mr George Andrews filed a two-part complaint with the tribunal. It related first to an advertisement for a Jeremy Coney cricket coaching video which was played on Television One at 6.15 p.m. on 18 January 1986. The second part of the complaint was about a Mazda commercial promoting a programme to be shown of a women's softball tournament, played on Television One at 9 p.m. on 17 January 1986. The complaint is that both commercials were in breach of the Broadcasting Rules Committee's advertisement rule 1.1 which reads:

"Advertisements shall be clearly distinguishable from other programme material."

This two-part complaint was first made to the Broadcasting Corporation of New Zealand ("BCNZ") whose board considered it at their meeting on 26 March 1986. The BCNZ Board did not uphold the complaint in either respect. Mr Andrews then referred it to the tribunal.

Jeremy Coney Advertisement

This advertisement occupied the whole of a short commercial break during Saturday coverage of the World Series cricket from Perth in January. The advertisement included in its opening sequence shots from other cricket matches which, Mr Andrews wrote in his letter to the BCNZ, were "not dissimilar from the programme shown immediately before. Only after some 10 or 15 seconds does the real purpose of the advertisement become clear . . ."

This part of Mr Andrews' complaint to the tribunal specifically was: "That the Jeremy Coney advertisement began with a cricketing sequence which sufficiently resembled the programme material on either side of it to make it not 'clearly distinguishable' as advertising rule 1.1 requires."

In his supporting statement, Mr Andrews wrote that there was no break of any kind between the live coverage and the cricketing scenes at the beginning of the commercial and that, although these scenes may have been of a different character than the live coverage, they were still scenes of international cricket and therefore not clearly distinguishable. Mr Andrews stated that for nearly 10 seconds, the distinction was merely between types of the one sport, not between one type of television material and another.

He also asserted that: "When 30-second commercials are placed singly between overs there is an even stronger obligation on the broadcaster to ensure such distinctions are plain." He felt that "... no effort of any kind was made to ensure the rule was being observed."

The BCNZ Board's initial response to Mr Andrews was that "... the three opening segments depicting cricket incidents contrasted so sharply with the preceding live coverage it was considered it would become abundantly clear almost immediately that something quite different was being screened."

The BCNZ considered that because there were three quick action cuts of highlights, the commentary was sharper and the cricketers in the advertisement were of different races wearing brilliant whites and different coloured 1-day clothing, "... the question of distinguishability should not have been a problem for anyone."

The BCNZ pointed out that there had been a 100 percent increase in cricket coverage since 1984 and that therefore there was a considerably increased viewer awareness of the game. The BCNZ stated that the commercial had been played dozens of times previously in other programmes and that 30-second commercials were now played singly between overs and not in blocks to minimise disruption of coverage.

This was the substance of the BCNZ's response to Mr Andrews' letter to them.

In commenting further, on Mr Andrews' complaint to the tribunal, the BCNZ observed that viewer interpretations are an important consideration and maintained its view that there could be no viewer confusion. The BCNZ reiterated that the scheduling of the Coney commercial began in December and continued into January. There were 64 placements with only 9 being scheduled during the World Series cricket.

The tribunal has seen a tape of a mock-up of the context in which the Jeremy Coney advertisement was screened. Such a mock-up was needed either because the exact segment of play at the time mentioned by the complainant could not be identified or because a tape of that part of the play did not exist. Television New Zealand reconstructed a likely cricket sequence to butt on to the commercial, and shots of Jeremy Coney himself playing were found for the purpose.

The tribunal considers that the first 9-second segment of the advertisement was of such a nature that the distinction between the end of the live programme and the beginning of the advertisement was unclear and could well have caused confusion in viewers' minds. For this reason this part of the complaint is upheld.

One important element is the audio effect. The commercial started with an "open microphone" effect and the first shot was accompanied by a crowd roar. This was so similar to what preceded it that the crowd sounds were likely to recall the viewer's attention by a suggestion of the sound of further play in the same match in the absence of any clear end to the coverage of the match. At that stage a scene with similarly garbed players would be seen.

An earlier decision of this tribunal, No. 7/84, to which both Mr Andrews and the BCNZ referred, was about a similar complaint, also brought by Mr Andrews, which was upheld in part. In that case a commercial was also placed at the beginning of a commercial break upon the switch-over from a live cricket commentary.

In this present case, action shots from different cricket matches at the beginning of the advertisement were shown immediately after the satellite broadcast of the live coverage. In the first and third sequences the players were wearing whites. In the second of the three clips the players were wearing coloured clothing similar to that being worn by players in the match being telecast.

In its earlier decision the tribunal stated: "Guidelines and practices are often established by precedents such as this. We consider it important that no further interpretations of the rules by the corporation under commercial or other pressure should lead to similar types of commercial presentation." The tribunal considers that the precedent established in that decision has not been followed in this case in the way that it should have been.

The commercial does not appear to have been produced specifically with the intention of butting it on to such a live programme—its showing at other times clearly indicates this—though some advertisers might welcome such a link and may even seek it. Also, the tribunal acknowledges that the rule does not preclude a sport-related advertisement from being shown at the time of live coverage of that sport. Nor need the real purpose or message of the advertisement be at the beginning of it. Further, the 30-second commercial which does not interrupt the flow of play may well be welcomed by the viewer.

But the rule states that advertisements must be clearly distinguishable and it is for this reason the complaint is upheld. Therefore, when another quite different commercial cannot be shown first, possible solutions may be to require distinctive lead-ins to such advertisements, quite different from the play, if they are to be used in live coverage; at the least a very short programme identification break could be screened first, although this may not necessarily eliminate confusion.

The tribunal hopes this problem can be resolved without further complaint. While we accept much of the BCNZ's argument, we do not believe that the essence of the tribunal's previous decision was complied with. As the BCNZ itself pointed out, it is a question of the viewer's interpretation and in this respect, the tribunal notes that the Broadcasting Rules Committee in the preamble to the advertisement rules states that "The detailed rules lay down the minimum standards to be observed, and broadcasters are expected to follow the spirit as well as the letter of these rules".

Mazda Advertisement

The second complaint was about a Mazda promotion/commercial which began with an announcement promoting a programme covering a forthcoming international women's softball tournament, also sponsored by Mazda. The specific complainant was: "That the Mazda Commercial 'passed itself off' as a programme promotion and was also but for different reasons in breach of the rule." [Rule 1.1]

In this instance, Mr Andrews' objection was that rule 1.1 was breached not because of the placement of the advertisement, but because of the material within the commercial itself. Mr Andrews stated that normal programme promotions come within the definition of "other programme material". Mr Andrews complained that: "The rules prevent an advertiser and a broadcaster from passing off what is in effect an advertisement as being programme material."

He claimed that it was an encouragement to watch the softball programme in exactly the same way that both channels promote programmes which are not sponsored. The gist of Mr Andrews' complaint was that as promotion of the programme and of Mazda's cars were combined in one 30 second package, it was not clear the promotion was part of a car advertisement, until the pictures of cars came at the end of the advertisement.

The BCNZ's response was that viewers were not misled into assuming that they were seeing a promotion for an unsponsored event and that it was clearly a commercial for the car company and its association with the softball tournament. The BCNZ stated that: "The public is well aware that normal promotional trailers for programmes do not include visual and verbal selling of the advertiser's product." (The promotion part, even before the cars were shown, mentioned and then showed the Mazda name clearly 8-10 seconds into the commercial.)

The tribunal is of the view that this part of the complaint should not be upheld.

The basic purpose of the rule is to try to prevent the viewer being misled into believing that an advertisement or commercial is part of the programme or programmes she or he has switched on to view. It is considered necessary for the protection of those programmes and of those watching them, to have such a rule preventing the viewer from being misled.

A programme promotion is, in the ordinary sense, a commercial for a forthcoming programme. It attempts to capture the viewer's attention and persuade the viewer to watch the programme. It is for the possible benefit of the viewer but it benefits the TV channel too if the viewer watches.

Therefore programme promotions and advertisements are of broadly the same character of promotional material between which it is not necessary to distinguish for the purpose of the rule. They both set out to "sell" something and are quite different from the scheduled programmes and filler material.

On the question of possible confusion in the viewer's mind, we consider she or he needs to be able to distinguish between attempts to sell or promote something on the one hand, and the programme material being watched for information, education or entertainment on the other. No difficulty in making this fundamental distinction would have arisen in this case and it is for this reason that this part of the complaint is not upheld.

As the part of the promotion/commercial advertising the car was of broadly the same character as the programme promotional material which preceded it, it seems to the tribunal that a clear distinction between the two within the promotion/commercial did not have to be made.

Co-opted Members

The tribunal co-opted Mr S. H. Gardiner and Mr Wayne K. Sellwood as persons whose qualifications or experience were likely to be of assistance in dealing with the complaint. They took part in the deliberations of the tribunal but the decision is that of the permanent members.

Dated this 5th day of March 1987.

Signed for the Tribunal:

B. H. SLANE, Chairman.
