Before the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for decisions in respect of the following publication: The Girls of Penthouse, November/December 1986, No. 21, published by Penthouse International Ltd.:

Chairman: Judge R. R. Kearney.

Members: H. B. Dick, R. Barrington, A. J. Graham, and K. Hulme.

Hearing at Wellington on the 6th day of April 1987.

Appearances: P. J. Eggleton for Comptroller of Customs. G. F. Ellis for Importer, Gordon and Gotch.

DECISION

THIS publication was part of a commercial shipment imported by airmail through the Port of Auckland in October 1986. The publication was seized by the Collector of Customs in Auckland and the importer has disputed forfeiture. The publication was referred to the Tribunal for classification prior to the commencement of condemnation proceedings pursuant to the Customs Act 1966.

The publication is in magazine form and consists almost entirely of photographic portfolios of seven nude or partly clad females. Typical of many such magazines featuring the female nude many of the photographs show the models in contrived positions which have considerable emphasis on the genitalia. Mr Ellis in his submission on behalf of the importer anticipated that aspect of the publication which caused the Tribunal concern, namely, the multiple model scenes. In a submission Mr Ellis invited the Tribunal to accept that the portrayal of nude females in multiple model scenes was no longer sufficient to justify an unconditionally indecent classification. In that regard Mr Ellis relied principally on the test to be applied in respect of indecency as set out in the majority decision in the Court of Appeal in Howley v. Lawrence Publishing Co. 6 NZAR (1986) p. 193. The test to be applied was stated by Woodhouse P at p. 197 where he said:

"When all these provisions are taken together, including of course the important qualifying words of the definition in s. 2, I am left in no doubt that whatever might be the influence of any one or more of them in some particular case, or the possible difficulty which might arise when attempting to weigh some of them in a sufficiently objective way against others, there is a clear statutory intention to withhold the censorship weapon from material which falls short of being actually injurious. As McCarthy P put it in the News Media case (at p. 615), material is not to be banned unless there is 'discernible injury'."

It was Mr Ellis' submission that the criteria which the Tribunal had previously applied in assessing indecency and which had become known as the tripartite test was no longer relevant or applicable in view of the Howley decision.

In a decision of the full court of the High Court The Comptroller of Customs v. Gordon & Gotch (NZ) Limited M648/86 High Court Registry, Wellington delivered on 2 July 1987 Their Honours indicated that the tripartite test was (subject to the exercise of caution in its application) still available to the Tribunal as a valid assessment of indecency in respect of any particular publication. In that regard His Honour Jeffries J had this to say on pages 28 and 29 of his decision:

"The Tripartite Test"

In deciding whether a publication is indecent or not the Tribunal before making a finding it is indecent must discern injury to the public good. Section 11 directs in generalised terms what the Tribunal is bound to take into account in the task of classification. On a scale ranging from concrete to abstract the statutory directions are very much closer to abstract. The decision-making of such a Tribunal is a continuum always engaged basically in the same task; indecent or not. Understandably the Tribunal has sought to ensure there is observable consistency in its decisions because that is a desirable end in itself, a valuable guide to those engaged in publishing and importing of materials, as well as being important to the public. To overcome development incrementally of inconsistency, and as a practical tool in its habitual work the Tribunal under different personnel has sought to concretise the statutory directions by establishment of categories which spell out in easily understandable language what is acceptable or not (i.e. indecent). The Waverley decisions (No. 93-103, New Zealand Gazette, 1968, Vol. 2, p. 1251) were early examples. I made comments on the subject in Waverley Publishing Co. Ltd v. Comptroller of Customs [1980] 1 NZLR 631 at 641-642 from which I do not resile. In 1981 the so-called tripartite test was developed which has not been rigid as evidenced by altered language in the decisions themselves. In Decision 1054 the Tribunal referred to the test as setting 'broad guidelines' which I think is a proper approach.

One can only express a view but I do not believe such a test is wrongful per se and I think the Tribunal, by its decisions, has obviously been aware of the possible dangers mentioned in Waverley (supra). I would think no harm results from its continued use so long as it does not itself deteriorate to pigeon holing into sealed compartments unrefreshed by the statutory directions which must never be departed from."

In considering whether adherence to that test was wrong in principle His Honour Quilliam J stated the position at page 5 of his judgment in this way:

"For myself I see no objection to the establishment by the Tribunal of criteria which are designed to assist it to a conclusion as to whether a document is injurious to the public good. I do not accept that there can properly be any slavish adherence to a formula in such matters. The danger of using a formula is that it tends to become 'in itself the test without reference to the principle which alone can be the proper basis of a decision. I therefore consider that the use by the Tribunal of the tripartite test is not in itself wrong in principle, but that the use made of that test could become wrong if it is not appropriately adapted to the particular case or to changing standards and attitudes within the community."

The tripartite test which Their Honours were considering has been expressed in various decisions of the Tribunal in a number of ways and His Honour Quilliam J set out in his judgment the test enunciated by the Tribunal in Decision No. 1054 of 17 March 1983 which was:

"In summary, the Tribunal indicated that issues were likely to be classified as indecent if, in addition to their normal content, they contained pictorial scenes including the following:

1. Scenarios involving more than two models, and in which sex and violence and intimacy and/or deviant aspects of sex are depicted among the models;
2. Multiple model scenes which depict lesbian acts;
3. Heterosexual scenarios in which there are a high degree of intimacy (e.g., fellatio or cunnilingus or intercourse) depicted in the couples actions."

The Tribunal finds that two of the portfolios contain depictions of matters which come within the matter of concern as expressed in the tripartite test.

From pages 42-57 inclusive a sequence of photographs depict two female models in scenes of intimacy and some scenes of lesbian acts. In another sequence between pages 88-101 a male and a female model are portrayed in scenes of intimate touching and fondling in a way which concerns the Tribunal when considering whether such portrayals are indecent.

In applying the statutory directions contained in the Indecent Publications Act and measuring those very carefully against the decision in The Comptroller of Customs v. Gordon & Gotch (NZ) Limited the members of the Tribunal are unanimous that this publication is injurious to the public good. The publication is classified as unconditionally indecent.

DECISION

THESE magazines were privately imported as unaccompanied baggage through Christchurch Airport. The magazines were seized by the Comptroller of Customs and the importer has disputed forfeiture. The magazines were referred to the Tribunal by the Comptroller prior to the commencement of condemnation proceedings pursuant to the Customs Act 1966. The Comptroller of Customs invited the Tribunal to consider classifying each of the publications as unconditionally indecent. In his submission Mr Eggleton, on behalf of the Comptroller, submitted that the photographic content in each of the publications was largely of models clearly posed so as to give maximum emphasis to the male genitalia. Mr Eggleton submitted that the magazines lacked any literary merit and that they were grossly indecent and injurious to the public good.

The Tribunal unanimously agrees with the Comptroller's view insofar as Macho Collection, Vol. 1, No. 1, House Master, Abducted, John Holmes Superdong, Vol. 1, No. 1, and Male Call, No. 5 are concerned. The Tribunal found that these particular publications:

1. Lacked any literary or artistic merit whatsoever.
2. Contained, in some instances, depictions of multiple homosexual activity.
3. In one instance (Macho Collection) had many photographic depictions of bondage, and;
4. In a general way were coarse and lewd to an extent that taken with the other aspects these publications would be injurious to the public good.

The four magazines are classified as unconditionally indecent.

The Tribunal found that the publication Wes did not require an unconditionally indecent classification and it is satisfied that a classification of the publication as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years is all that is required and it so classifies it.

DECISION

THESE publications were commercially imported by air freight through the port of Auckland on 25 August 1986 and were seized by the Comptroller of Customs. In a letter to the Manager of Lawrence Publishing Co. Ltd., the importer, dated 6 October 1986, the Collector of Customs at Auckland gave notice of seizure under the Customs Act 1966 in respect of these books on the basis that they were considered indecent within the meaning of the Indecent Publications Act 1963. The importer disputed seizure and the publications were referred to the Tribunal for classification and decision.

Mr Eggleton on behalf of the Comptroller of Customs submitted to the Tribunal that all the publications were of a tawdry nature and contained material such as to warrant either an age restriction or a classification as unconditionally indecent.

As part of the case for the importer Mr Ireland presented to the Tribunal a prepared statement by Mr B. M. Sheppard, a director and shareholder of Lawrence Publishing Co. (NZ) Ltd. who also for the last 9 years has been the editor of Out magazine which is published by Lawrence "as a service to the gay community".

In his submission on behalf of the importer Mr Ireland advised the Tribunal that the magazines were not randomly imported and that they were imported with the following in mind:

"(a) The Court of Appeal decision in Howley v. Lawrence Publishing Co. (NZ) Ltd.

(b) The passing of the Homosexual Law Reform Bill.

(c) The New Zealand Film Censor has been passing for some time video tapes depicting explicit male homosexual relations."

Mr Ireland submitted that the importer was justified in the light of those developments in considering that the publications would not be regarded as indecent under New Zealand law. Mr Ireland submitted that the bulk of the decisions banning the sale or distribution of homosexual publications had been based on the then criminal law which provided that homosexual acts were a criminal offence. Mr Ireland reminded the Tribunal of the submission made by Mr W. Lindberg for the New Zealand Aids Foundation in respect of the publication Advocate Men which was before the Tribunal for consideration that same day, and in particular the submission that the magazines benefit the community insofar as they support and encourage "safe sex" practices for homosexual men. Mr Ireland further submitted that the majority of the magazines were of a high quality production and that they displayed an honesty of purpose. Whilst acknowledging that some people would be offended by the magazines Mr Ireland submitted that that is not the test which is simply whether the publications are injurious to the public good.

The Tribunal appreciated that its decision in respect of these publications would be of importance to publishers and importers and it has given very careful consideration to the submissions made and has proceeded to examine the publications bearing in mind the directions given to the Tribunal by the High Court in two decisions recently delivered by the full Court, namely The Comptroller of Customs v. Gordon and Gotch (NZ) Limited M 648/86 and Lawrence Publishing Co. (NZ) Ltd. v. The Comptroller of Customs M 341/85. The Tribunal was very mindful of the comments of His Honour Quilliam J in delivering the judgment of the court in the Lawrence case when he said at page 5 of his decision:

"At the time the decision was given homosexual acts between males was still a criminal offence and this may have materially influenced the result. With the passing of the Homosexual Law Reform Act 1986 that situation has changed, but this fact alone is not to be regarded as determinative of the present appeal."

And the following further directions of His Honour at pages 5 and 6:

"The main consideration must be whether what was before the Tribunal demonstrated that the publication had 'the capacity for some actual harm'."

"From the point of view of young people we cannot escape the conclusion that the publication is capable of actual harm. We accordingly conclude that its availability should be limited to adults."

With all of those considerations and submissions in mind the Tribunal finds as follows:

The Leatherman's Handbook 2

The Tribunal finds that this paperback publication contains what can only be described as a manual for homosexual sado-masochism. In the publication are items dealing with bondage, male castration and descriptions of sexual deviancy. There are also items which appear to the Tribunal to advocate drug use and the whole publication has in the Tribunal's view the countenancing and encouragement of the more deviant aspects of homosexual activity. The Tribunal finds The Leatherman's Handbook unconditionally indecent and classifies it accordingly.

Hombre Scene, Vol. 1, No. 1, Hombre Scene, Vol. 1, No. 5

This publication is largely text interspersed with drawings and photographs. A great deal of the text relates to both the fantasies of homosexual men and in some cases the reporting of such fantasies being converted into realities. There are drawings and photographs involving multiple models of a kind which concern the Tribunal. It is because of the overall effect of the publications that the Tribunal classifies them as unconditionally indecent.

Di's Dilemma, Off-Shore Duty & Others

Both of these publications are printed in the United States and are relatively cheaply produced novels. Both novels contain a great deal of material relating to homosexual activity and although they have a plot which is clearly discernible they cannot pretend to be works of any literary merit. The Tribunal is satisfied that these books would have a limited market and that they do not require an unconditionally indecent classification. The Tribunal classifies both books as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

The Zeus Collection, Zeus Presents Robert La Tourneaux, Zeus in Bondage, Zeus Presents Joe Paducah, Zeus Cowboys, The Zeus Collection, The Cavelo Portfolio

These publications are distributed by Hudson Communications Inc. of New York and the Tribunal finds that they are predominantly concerned with the prurient and lewd aspects of homosexual sex and bondage. The bondage by itself would call for an unconditionally indecent classification but it is the whole tone of the production which satisfies the Tribunal beyond any question that these type of publications must be given an unconditionally indecent classification as in its finding they are clearly of a type which would be damaging to the public good. Each publication is classified as unconditionally indecent.

Mandate June 1980, October 1980, November 1980, December 1980, January 1985, February 1985, March 1985, April 1985, May 1985, July 1985, September 1985, November 1985, the Men of Mandate Vol. 1

These publications largely consist of photographs of males nude, partly clad and clad. They also contain articles, stories and letters to the editor which in the main are directed towards the male homosexual market. Some of them have aspects of bondage which in the Tribunal's view came very close to requiring an unconditionally indecent classification and we mention that so that the importers and distributors will be made aware of that concern. The Tribunal is satisfied that the appropriate decision to be made in respect of these particular magazines is for limited distribution and accordingly each is classified as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

Mandate October 1985

This particular issue caused concern for two reasons. The first being a series of photographs with limited text under the heading of "Window Display". The photographs depict a nude male model in various poses with plastic male mannequins. That feature of the publication which caused most concern to the Tribunal was however a short story commencing at page 69 of the magazine which dealt with bondage and flagellation in a way which the Tribunal found to be not only unwholesome but clearly damaging to the public good. This particular issue is classified by the Tribunal as unconditionally indecent.

The Physical Man No. 2, Torso January 1983, Torso April 1983, Torso June 1983, Exposures

Each of these publications which are largely pictorial displays of the male figure, and in the case of Torso containing a reasonable amount of text, are classified by the Tribunal as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 16 years. The Physical Man and

Exposures which are also entirely photographic depictions of the male nude are both quite sensitively and artistically produced with a lack of objectionable material. We however feel that an age limit of 16 is justified. The magazine Torso has a significant amount of text of a kind which would have of itself justified its restricted publication and as indicated all five magazines are classified indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 16 years.

Riders

This publication which consists almost entirely of photographs is classified as unconditionally indecent for two reasons. Firstly the multiplicity of models engaged in homosexual activity of a sexual nature and secondly the many portrayals of bondage. Either of these aspects on their own justified the classification.

All Muscle

This is another well produced publication but differs from the publications to which we have given an R16 classification in the more contrived poses with emphasis on the erect penis of the models. The Tribunal classifies this publication as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

Playguy, Vol. 5, No. 5, 7, 8, 9, 11, and 12, Vol. 6, No. 11, Vol. 7, No. 2, 4, 5 and 6, Vol. 8, No. 3 and 6

These magazines are a mixture of text and photographs of the male figure nude and partly dressed. There were some aspects of the text which caused the Tribunal concern in that their coarseness and explicit depictions of sexual activity is clearly designed to attract the prurient interest of homosexual males. There are also some elements of bondage which cause concern but not to the extent of justifying an unconditionally indecent classification. The majority of the photographs concentrate on the erect penis of the various models. The Tribunal finds that these particular publications are indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years and so classifies them with the additional condition and requirement and respect of their sale and distribution that they not be exposed for sale or distribution.

DECISION

THIS publication was privately imported through parcel post through the Port of Auckland on 7 October 1986. The Comptroller of Customs advised the importer that he was seizing the publication and that it should be forfeited to the Crown as indecent. The importer disputed forfeiture and the publication was referred to the Tribunal for classification.

The Tribunal at the hearing on 6 April 1987 had before it a substantial number of magazines directed at the male homosexual market and this was one of those. Although the magazine contains no serious articles much of its content is indeed as submitted by a Mr Eggleton, graphic and lurid. The Tribunal is unanimous in its decision that an age restriction is all that is required and accordingly we find it to be indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years and so classifies it.

DECISION

THESE two publications were privately imported through the port of Wanganui on 3 November 1986. The Comptroller of Customs seized the publications and the importer has subsequently disputed forfeiture. The publications have been referred to the Tribunal prior to the commencement of condemnation proceedings pursuant to the Customs Act 1966. The Comptroller of Customs through Mr Eggleton submitted that this particular edition of Oui was markedly different from those issues of the magazine which were subject to a classification of indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years by Decision 1002 of the Tribunal in 1981. The Comptroller submitted that Vol. 15, No. 11 had little literary merit and such merit as there was would not outweigh the indecent aspect of the publication. The Tribunal agreed with the Comptroller that the articles and material dealing with sex affect the overall tone of the magazine to the extent that its dominant effect is to debase and exploit sex. In particular the Tribunal is concerned with the depiction of sexual activity displayed in the magazine and is satisfied that the proper classification for this particular issue is that of unconditionally indecent and so classifies it.

Adam, Vol. 13, No. 11 also contains photographs of sexual activity of a kind which the Tribunal would classify as unconditionally indecent but in addition the magazine concentrates on the presentation of sex in a crude and prurient way. The Tribunal classifies this particular issue of Adam as unconditionally indecent.

The New Zealand distributor for the publisher of Oui wrote to the Tribunal advising that the publishers of this particular volume do not wish to put forward any argument in support of this particular magazine. The distributor advises the Tribunal however that the publisher has recently asked for details of the procedures to be followed in order to gain acceptance of the magazine.

DECISION

THE Comptroller of Customs seized this publication which was a sample copy imported through Auckland airport in October 1985. The Comptroller advised the importer that he considered the publication should be forfeited to the Crown as indecent. The importer disputed forfeiture and the publication was then referred to the Tribunal for a decision as to its classification prior to the commencement of condemnation proceedings pursuant to the Customs Act 1966.

The Comptroller of Customs in his submission to the Tribunal suggested that an age restriction should be imposed upon the Diary as it was clearly a publication more suitable to an adult reader.

The Tribunal finds that the publication is well produced in the sense that it is on good paper and has a professional presentation but find that there is indeed a considerable amount of its content which is offensive although to some extent less obvious in that it is produced in small innocuous drawings which are nevertheless sexually explicit.

The Tribunal agrees with the Comptroller of Customs that an age restriction is required for this publication and accordingly we find it to be indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years and so classified it.

DECISION

THESE four publications are very similar in their content. They can best be described as bawdy in the extreme with a not insignificant proportion of the written material containing objectionable racist, sexist and anti religious content. Insofar as the obligation of this Tribunal is concerned we are satisfied that it is sufficient to classify each of the publications as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years. The objectionable content to which we have referred is not a matter which calls for further comment from this Tribunal.

Hearing at Wellington on the 4th day of April 1987.

Appearances: R. Marchant for complainant, Women Against Pornography. No appearance by any other party.

DECISION

THIS publication was acquired by the organisation Women Against Pornography from a book shop, it being apparently one of eight copies imported by the particular distributors, the others were apparently destroyed by the importer. Women Against Pornography submitted the publication to the Tribunal for a decision as to whether it should be classified as indecent or not or for a decision as to any other classification.

Gordon Herschell Lewis was an American film producer who over a period of some 10 years in the 1960s and early 1970s produced a relatively large number of extremely violent films, many of which contained portrayals of sexual violence against women.

In a very careful and well presented submission Miss Marchant highlighted the reasons why her organisation sought an unconditionally indecent classification and these included:

1. The extreme gratuitous violence depicted.
2. The stereotyping of women in a misogynist and belittling manner.
3. The detailing of the methods of achieving violent cinematic images.
4. The endorsing of racist stereotyping for monetary gain.
5. The portrayal of lesbian sexuality in a completely unrealistic and voyeurist manner purely for the gratification of men.
6. The conscious attempt by Lewis as revealed in the publication to break down public morals and permit abusive social/sexual exploitation and violence.

We agree with the submission made by Miss Marchant. The book on the face of it pretends to be a professional work detailing the life and work of Gordon Herschell Lewis but in reality it is only a vehicle to display in print and in photographic form in particular the violent excesses from Mr Lewis' films. In the Tribunal's clear view the publication is not a serious publication which might otherwise be given a specialist classification such as indecent except in the hands of scholars or persons having a real interest in film production and accordingly the Tribunal classifies the publication as unconditionally indecent.

DECISION

THE publications in respect of this particular hearing were part of a commercial shipment imported through the port of Dunedin in August 1986. These publications were seized by the Collector of Customs and as the importer had disputed forfeiture the books were submitted to the Tribunal for classification and decision. Mr Eggleton made a brief but general submission in respect of all of the publications on behalf of the Comptroller of Customs suggesting to the Tribunal that the publications were of a tawdry nature and containing material which justified either an age restriction or a classification of unconditionally indecent.

Mr Ellis informed the Tribunal that he appeared for the New Zealand importer and distributor in respect of the various Penthouse publications which had a general interest in the hearing insofar as those publications were concerned. Mr Ellis submitted that although some of the Penthouse publications under consideration contained photographs which breached the tripartite test normally applied by the Tribunal, that that test was no longer relevant following the decision of the Court of Appeal in Howley v. Lawrence Publishing Company Ltd. 6 NZAR (1986) 193. Relying on the majority decision of the Court of Appeal Mr Ellis submitted that there was no evidence upon which the Tribunal could act which would satisfy the test that the material in question could cause actual harm to the public good or real potential to cause such harm.

We deal firstly with those publications in which Mr Ellis' client had an interest.

Penthouse Variations for Liberated Lovers, July 1982, October 1982, December 1982, September 1985, February 1986

Each of these magazines contains 147 pages of largely written material. The material is almost entirely, and in some cases is entirely, comprised of sexual subjects, a great deal of the material being presented in a crude and coarse fashion. It is doubtful if anyone could advance for the publications that they had any pretence of literary, artistic or social merit. The fact that the Tribunal found the publications crude, coarse and disgusting is not of itself sufficient to satisfy the statutory test of indecency but throughout each publication can be found photographs depicting heterosexual and lesbian sexual acts of a kind which the Tribunal finds indecent in terms of its previous categorisations under the tripartite test.

The dominant effect of the publications is to present to the reader a diet of sexual fantasy, letters from readers, stories and commentaries on sexual techniques which clearly is designed to cater for the prurient market. The Tribunal is satisfied that the potential for corruption of this type of literature is real and classifies each of these editions of Penthouse Variations as unconditionally indecent.

Girls of Penthouse, Collector's Edition, No. 3

This publication is almost exclusively a collection of glossy photographs of female nude or partly nude figures. A significant number of the photographs depict female models in contrived positions so as to highlight the genitalia. That which causes the Tribunal to reach a conclusion that an unconditionally indecent finding is required is the large number of photographs containing couples either female, or male and female engaged in sexual activity. The sexual activity includes oral sex and masturbation. Although the magazine is well produced in terms of the quality of the paper and clarity of photographs, the Tribunal finds that it has no literary, artistic or social merit of the kind which it has to consider under the legislation. As earlier mentioned the Tribunal classifies this publication as unconditionally indecent.

Penthouse Letters, No. 4

This publication is like many others which come before the Tribunal, a collection of alleged readers' letters written to the parent publication Penthouse over a period of time. A great number of adjectives could be used to describe the material such as coarse, crude and lewd but because of the limited market that this material would attract and because most of the material (or similar material) has been published in magazines freely available in New Zealand and principally because the Tribunal is unable to find that the material meets the criteria necessary for an unconditionally indecent classification the Tribunal classifies this particular publication as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

In respect of the remaining publications reviewed in this decision there was no representation of the importer or of any other interested party other than the Comptroller of Customs, nor were there any written representations on the file presented to the Tribunal. These publications can in most cases be conveniently dealt with in groups.

Australian Variations For Liberated Lovers; Australian Variations for Liberated Lovers, No. 2

These 2 publications are printed in Hong Kong, largely it seems for distribution in Australia. Each contains 129 pages of largely printed material and each is very similar in its presentation and content with Penthouse Variations. Penthouse Variations is printed in London and it is significant that the cover graphics for both magazines are identical. For exactly the same reasons as applied in respect of Penthouse Variations for Liberated Lovers, the Tribunal finds Australian Variations for Liberated Lovers and Australian Variations for Liberated Lovers No. 2 unconditionally indecent.

Couples, Volume 1, No. 2

This small publication of 97 pages is a monthly publication published in America. The publication is principally text dealing almost entirely with the prurient aspects of sex in a coarse and crude fashion. That which satisfies the Tribunal that the publication should be given an unconditionally indecent classification is that it contains a number of photographs showing both females, and males and females in sexually intimate poses. The Tribunal is satisfied that this publication has a real likelihood of corrupting persons and certainly has no literary, artistic or social merit nor honesty of purpose and as indicated is classified unconditionally indecent.

Genesis Letters Winter 1984

This is an identical publication to Penthouse Letters, No. 4 and for the same reasons is classified indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

New Direction, Volume 13, No. 2

A 67-page glossy magazine apparently printed and published in the United Kingdom is principally a presentation of photographs of nude females, the great majority of these photographs are of models posed in such a way as to prominently display the genitalia and some of those photographs indicate models who appear to be masturbating.

There are a large number of photographic advertisements offering sex for sale and the like and such written material as it does contain is of a coarse nature dealing with sexual activities of a variety of kinds. There are many photographs of models engaged in lesbian sexual activity. The Tribunal finds that there is absolutely nothing to commend this magazine in a literary, artistic or social sense and it classifies it as unconditionally indecent.

Velvet, Volume 9, No. 5; Velvet, Volume 9, No. 9

Each of these magazines which again are of the glossy girly type production contain about a hundred pages including scenes with multiple models engaged in lesbian and heterosexual sexual activities including oral sex and masturbation. The Tribunal classifies these 2 publications as unconditionally indecent.

The Bawdy Beautiful

This could best be described as a collection of coarse verse, some of it amusing, much of it crude and unwholesome. The great bulk of the collection is of verse with sexual connotations. There is a quite lengthy introduction by the compiler and at worst it can be said that it is an attempt to bring together much of the recorded and previously unrecorded coarse poetry of the English speaking world. The Tribunal is satisfied that the material is not harmful to the adult population but that it should receive a classification of indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years and find accordingly.

The Bedroom Saga of Ned and Elizabeth; Oral Love in Pictures

Each of these rather cheaply produced publications contain a balance of black and white photographs and text. In neither publication can the text be described as having any literary merit although by and large neither book is as coarse or as vulgar as many of the publications which the Tribunal has to consider. That which in each case satisfies the Tribunal that the publications should be classified as unconditionally indecent is the almost entirely multiple model photographic sequences portraying various sexual activities between a male and a female. The Tribunal classifies them accordingly.

Nicole in Flight; Back Street Sex; Diana's Debut; On the Road By Fiona; Denise; Gina; Suburban Souls; The Autobiography of a Flea; She Asked For It; The Gong Kiss; Lucinda; The Butcher Knife Killings; Media Madness; Dirk and Honey; Jennifer, Book No. 2, Book No. 5 and Book No. 6; Christina's Touch; and Diana's Desire

These publications are all paper-back novels of a kind which more and more frequently are being imported into New Zealand and in many cases are referred to the Tribunal because the importer disputes forfeiture. These particular publications have as their source a variety of publishers and countries of origin but they show marked similarities. Many of the books are obviously cheaply produced on poor-quality paper and are poorly bound and in some cases have been badly proof read. The dominant effect of the publications is the presentation of sexual activity with a monotonous regularity. A great variety of sexual activities are related in explicit and gross detail and most of the publications are in fact portrayals of such sexual activity and encounters barely connected by what might be called the flimsiest of plots. The literary ability of the various writers differs from book to book but largely they have no literary merit whatsoever and they certainly in the finding of the Tribunal have no artistic or social merit. The Tribunal believes that there is a dishonesty of purpose in the publications and that they have a real potential for corruption and in the case of each of these particular publications under this section of our decision the Tribunal has no alternative but to classify them as unconditionally indecent and does so accordingly.

Pent Up Frenzy; Bitter Wine; Games; The Fiesta Letters

As all members of the Tribunal had not read and considered these particular publications a decision in respect of each of them is further deferred.

Reference No. IND 2/87

Before the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publications: Glamour Girls, Issues 5 and 13, publisher unknown:

Chairman: Judge R. R. Kearney.

Members: H. B. Dick, K. A. R. Hulme, R. E. Barrington, and A. J. Graham.

Heard at Wellington on 6 April 1987.

Appearances: P. J. Eggleton for Comptroller of Customs. No appearance on behalf of Importer, Waverly International Ltd.

DECISION

THESE magazines were imported by Waverly International Ltd. as sea freight through the port of Auckland. The magazines were seized by the Comptroller of Customs and the importer has disputed forfeiture.

Whilst accepting that the magazines do not contain anything blatantly offensive and are lacking in the multiplicity of models and crudely pornographic aspects of other publications which have been forfeited the Comptroller of Customs through Mr Eggleton submitted the publications for classification by the Tribunal.

The Tribunal finds:—

1. That the magazines are largely of unclothed and partly unclothed young females and that they do not have the concentration on the genitalia area which is an aspect of some magazines which has given concern to the Tribunal.
2. That the models are not posed in a contrived and suggestive sexual way to the extent that many other magazines of their kind are.

The Tribunal classifies both magazines as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 16 years.

Dated at Wellington this 31st day of August 1987.

Decision No. 8/87

Reference No. IND 24/86

Before the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publication: Advocate Men, August 1986, Vol. 2, No. 11:

Chairman: Judge R. R. Kearney.

Members: H. B. Dick, K. A. R. Hulme, R. E. Barrington, and A. J. Graham.

Heard at Wellington on 3 December 1986.

Appearances: P. J. Eggleton for Comptroller of Customs. G. A. Ireland for private importer, W. Lindberg for New Zealand Aids Foundation.

DECISION

Advocate Men, Vol. 2, No. 11, was privately imported through the port of Auckland in 1986. The magazine was seized by the Comptroller of Customs and the private importer has disputed that seizure and forfeiture. Lawrence Publishing Co. NZ Ltd., the publisher of Out magazine as the official representative and distributor for Liberation Publications Inc., the publishers of Advocate Men made representations in writing to the Tribunal and were also represented by Mr Ireland, counsel for the importer. The Tribunal had also received and given consideration to a statement from Mr R. N. Tuffery, the original importer of Advocate Men, August 1986. In addition to the importers and publishers, evidence was called in support of the publication from Mr Warren Lindberg, the Director of the New Zealand Aids Foundation of Auckland. Finally, in respect of the interest of parties in relation to this magazine the Tribunal received written representations from Mr K. S. J. Matthews, whose copy of the August issue of Advocate Men was likewise seized by the Comptroller of Customs.

The Comptroller of Customs, through Mr Eggleton, advised the Tribunal that his main area of concern with this publication related to the photographs contained which he described as being of male models posed in such a way as to give maximum emphasis to the male genitalia. The Comptroller was also concerned but to a lesser extent with the advertisement content of this magazine.

Mr Ireland in his submission to the Tribunal drew attention to the decision of the Court of Appeal in Howley v. Lawrence Publishing Company Limited (6 NZAR) 193 and submitted that there was no evidence that these publications had a capacity "for some actual harm" to the public good.

In his lengthy well prepared and well presented brief of evidence Mr Lindberg expressed the New Zealand Aids Foundation's concern that the people most at risk and in need of prevention education are homosexual men with a poor self image. Mr Lindberg informed the Tribunal that in his view these magazines provided attractive erotic alternatives to unsafe sex and he held the view that magazines of this type should be encouraged rather than restricted.

The full-bench of the High Court in a judgment delivered on 2 July 1987 Lawrence Publishing Co. (NZ) Ltd. v. The Comptroller of Customs (M No. 341A/85) allowed an appeal against a decision of the Tribunal in respect of the publication Gay Scene, Decision No. 3/85. The Tribunal had classified that publication unconditionally indecent largely because "it is directed towards criminal activity". Such classifications were frequently made because the publications under consideration encouraged or seemed to encourage male homosexual acts which were, until recently, criminal offences in New Zealand.

The Tribunal, having given careful consideration to all of the submissions and evidence, is satisfied that this publication should be subject to an age restriction and accordingly finds it to be indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years and so classifies it. The Tribunal wishes to make known to the publishers and distributors of Advocate Men that it was concerned with the bondage aspects of a great deal of the photographic displays in the August issue and that that issue for that reason was very close to having an unconditionally indecent classification passed upon it.
