Summary of Bills Introduced

District Courts Amendment Bill (No. 4)

This bill, which is to come into force on 1 July 1992, increases both the equitable jurisdiction of District Courts and the powers of those Courts to grant injunctions.

In particular, the bill provides that—

- (a) District Courts shall have the same equitable jurisdiction as the High Court to hear and determine any proceeding (other than a proceeding beyond the monetary limit of $200,000).
- (b) A District Court Judge—
 - (i) May grant an interlocutory injunction restraining a party to a proceeding from removing from New Zealand, or otherwise dealing with assets in New Zealand, whether or not the party is domiciled, resident, or present in New Zealand; but
 - (ii) May not grant any other interlocutory injunction in the nature of a Mareva injunction; and
 - (iii) May not make an Anton Pillar order (which is an order made without notice to the defendant and requiring the defendant to allow the defendant's premises to be searched for articles and documents relating to the alleged wrongdoing).

Meat Amendment Bill (No. 2)

This bill seeks to amend the Meat Act 1981, including the following changes:

- (a) To define "animal premises" and to specify that micro-organisms are "organisms" for the purposes of the principal Act.
- (b) To allow meat inspectors, for the purpose of deciding whether an animal product is defective, to have regard to the standards approved by the Director-General of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries and to use random sampling systems.
- (c) To empower inspectors to enter animal premises and test stock or farmed deer for harmful or undesirable substances or organisms. If such substances or organisms are found, to impose controls on the movement of those animals or other stock or farmed deer that may have been exposed to such substances or organisms.
- (d) To allow the making of regulations prescribing substances and organisms that should not be present in stock or farmed animals.
- (e) To increase penalties for offences against the principal Act.

New Zealand Horticulture Export Authority Amendment Bill

This bill seeks to amend the New Zealand Horticulture Export Authority Amendment Act 1987, as follows:

- (a) To alter the size and membership of the New Zealand Horticulture Export Authority and the qualifications required for appointment. The bill also seeks to require five yearly reviews of the efficiency and effectiveness of the Authority.
- (b) To require every new product group to be a body corporate and to empower the Authority to require such product groups to review their export marketing strategies if the Authority is satisfied that the strategy contains a limitation that makes it impossible for the Authority to grant a licence. If the criteria have been met the Authority will now be required to approve the export strategy.

- (c) To require the Authority to be satisfied, after consultation with the product group concerned, that an applicant for an export licence is likely to be competent in handling the export and marketing of the product concerned, and that the applicant is familiar with current export marketing strategy and will act in a way so as not to prejudice that strategy. The bill also seeks to limit export licences, which will be renewable, to five years.

Patents Amendment Bill

This bill, which amends the Patents Act 1953—

- (a) Enables New Zealand to fulfil obligations under the Patent Co-operation Treaty, that was signed in Washington on 19 June 1970.
- (b) Repeals, on the day after the date on which the bill receives the Royal Assent, section 15, the section that requires the Commissioner of Patents, in certain circumstances, to grant compulsory licences in respect of patented food or medicine and related processes and inventions.
- (c) Requires the Commissioner of Patents to furnish an annual report to the Minister in July of each year.

Transport Amendment Bill

This bill effects the transfer of traffic officers and certain other persons employed by the Ministry of Transport to the New Zealand Police. They will be deemed to be appointed as non-sworn members of the Police at the date of transfer and will continue to exercise their powers as traffic officers until such time as they complete the required training to become sworn members of the Police.

The bill also seeks to require regional councils to consider contracting out their functions under the Transport Services Licensing Act 1989 where such functions can be carried out more efficiently and effectively by another body. Regional councils and unitary authorities are required to prepare regional land transport strategies by 1 July 1993.

Amendments to the Local Government Act 1974 will enable regional councils in Auckland, Waikato, Christchurch and Otago to levy a regional petrol tax of not more than two cents a litre.

State Sector Superannuation Bill

This bill amends the Government Superannuation Fund Act 1956, and various other Acts relating to superannuation.

It provides that the superannuation schemes under the Government Superannuation Fund Act 1956 relating to the Armed Forces, the judiciary, members of Parliament, members of the Police, and members of the Prisons Service will close as from 30 June 1992.

The Commissioner of Police and the Chief of Defence Force are given the power to establish superannuation schemes for their members given that they are within the framework and criteria set down for state servants generally.

The criteria for new schemes are set out in an amendment to the State Sector Act and to the Area Health Boards Act.

The Higher Salaries Commission is given the power to recommend on all matters relating to superannuation for members of Parliament and the judiciary, and not just on matters set out in the Government Superannuation Fund Act 1956.

Redundancy Payments (Taxation and Benefits) Bill

This bill proposes to amend the Income Tax Act 1976 and the Social Security Act 1964 to—

- (a) Make the full amount of lump sum redundancy payments made on or after the date on which the bill comes into force taxable as assessable income of the employee; and
- (b) Remove the redundancy stand-down period for unemployment benefits where redundancy is paid on or after the date on which the bill comes into force; and
- (c) Count net redundancy payments for the purposes of calculating the high income stand-down period, except to the extent that any such payment is made more than a year after the redundancy.

Housing Restructuring Bill

This bill provides for the transfer to a company owned by the Crown of State housing land and assets and liabilities of the Housing Corporation, redefines the functions of the Housing Corporation, and transfers the functions of the Housing Corporation under the Residential Tenancies Act 1986 to the Ministry of Housing.

New Zealand Fire Service

Fire Service Act 1975

The Code of Practice for Fire Fighting Water Supplies Notice

Sections 17N (1) (b) and 30 (3) of the Fire Service Act 1975, require the New Zealand Fire Service National Commander to publish a Code of Practice for Fire Fighting Water Supplies. This code, which specifies the standards for Fire Fighting Water Supplies, both volume and pressure, is promulgated in the following notice.

Notice

This notice should be cited as the Code of Practice for Fire Fighting Water Supplies and comes into effect on the 2nd day of June 1992.

Copies of the Code of Practice for Fire Fighting Water Supplies are available from the National Headquarters of the New Zealand Fire Service, Wellington.

The Code of Practice for Fire Fighting Water Supplies

1. Interpretations—

(1) Area Commander means a New Zealand Fire Service Officer as defined by section 25A of the Fire Service Act 1975.

(2) Auxiliary Water means fire fighting water other than that provided in the Local Water Authorities principal mains.

(3) Code means this Code of Practice for Fire Fighting Water Supplies.

(4) Domestic Water means water used for any purpose other than fire fighting.

(5) Fire Area means a Fire Area constituted under section 25 of the Fire Service Act 1975.

(6) Fire District means a Fire District constituted under section 26 of the Fire Service Act 1975.

(7) Fire Protection Systems mean automatic fire sprinkler systems, drencher systems, fixed monitors and any other fixed system for applying fire fighting water.

(8) Fire Service means the New Zealand Fire Service established under section 3 of the Fire Service Act 1975.

(9) Hydrant means a fire hydrant provided in accordance with NZS/BS 750 : 1984.

(10) Principal Main means a water main fitted with fire hydrant.

(11) Reticulated means water mains with hydrants provided in accordance with the code.

(12) Risk means any building as defined by the Building Act 1991, and includes contents, industrial processes or storage areas that may present a danger of fire, or support the spread of fire.

(13) Running Pressure means the residual pressure in the water main when a hydrant is fully open.

(14) Static Pressure means the water pressure in the water mains when no hydrants are open, partially or fully.

(15) Water for Fire Fighting means water for fire fighting, hazardous substance emergencies, fire brigade drills and for the effective operation of fire protection systems (fire fighting water supplies has a similar meaning).

(16) Water for Fire Protection Systems means water supplied to automatic fire sprinkler systems, drenchers, fixed monitors and to any other fixed system for applying fire fighting water.

2. Purpose—

The purpose of this code is to describe the aims and standards adopted by the New Zealand Fire Service in relation to reticulated and auxiliary water for fire fighting.

3. Aims—

The aims of this code are to:

- (1) Provide a standard for volume and pressure in reticulated water supplies for fire fighting in any Fire District or within any area that the Fire Service is under an obligation to protect under sections 38 or 39 of the Fire Service Act 1975, or by agreement under any other Act.
- (2) Provide a measurement against which to assess the adequacy of existing reticulated and auxiliary water supplies for fire fighting in any Fire District or within any area concerning any property that the Fire Service is under an obligation to protect under sections 38 or 39 of the Fire Service Act 1975, or by agreement under any other Act.
- (3) Make territorial authorities aware of the sufficiency or otherwise of the water supplies available for fire fighting and the effective operation of fire protection systems.
- (4) Provide standards for the installation and positioning of fire hydrants.
- (5) Provide for minimum reserve storage capacities or alternative supply in the event of a breakdown in the reticulated supply.
- (6) Provide the standard from which the New Zealand Fire Service shall give advice to territorial authorities, other authorities, Government agencies, companies, organisations and private individuals on matters regarding water supplies for fire fighting.

4. Application—

This Code shall apply to reticulated and auxiliary Fire Fighting Water Supplies within any Fire District or within any area concerning any property that the Fire Service is under an obligation to protect under sections 38 or 39 of the Fire Service Act 1975, or by agreement under any other Act.

5. Quantities of Water—

(1) The quantity of water required for fire fighting as shown in Table 1 and in paragraph 7 of the Code refers to the minimum total flow available from the required number of hydrants within a radius of 270 metres. These hydrants shall be readily accessible to fire appliances by unobstructed roadway.

(2) The rates of flow required for fire fighting shall not be additional to any water required for domestic purposes.

6. Risk Classification—

Areas of fire risk shall be categorised into one of the following 5 classes for the purpose of determining the appropriate water supply classification:

(1) Class A—The central urban areas of the cities of Auckland and Wellington which because of their size, construction, contents or processes present a serious risk of fire.

(2) Class B—Congested industrial and commercial areas in the larger cities containing multi-storied buildings, large department stores, extensive shopping malls, factories, commercial and office property, theatres and cinemas. Bulk liquid fuel terminals.

(3) Class C—Concentrated built up areas of cities, secondary cities and larger towns not falling within classes A or B. Areas of multiple industrial risk. Large schools, large colleges, and large hospitals in the city suburbs.

(4) Class D—Business and commercial areas of towns of medium size and in city suburbs not falling within classes A, B or C.

(5) Class E—Any area within a Fire District that has a reticulated water supply and does not have risks that would place it into classes A, B, C or D including detached and semi-detached household units.

(6) Isolated Risks—An isolated risks within any area with a lower water supply classification should be classed at a level appropriate to the risk:

(a) An isolated risk within a reticulated area that has a significantly higher fire risk category than the surrounding area may use auxiliary water to make up the balance of the water supply required. When this is done the auxiliary supply shall provide the required flow for 1 hour and access to that water shall be available within 90 metres of the risk. Hydrants, connections and access to the auxiliary supply shall be provided to the standard required by the Area Commander.

(b) An isolated risk classified A, B, C, D or E, within an unreticulated, shall have sufficient auxiliary water provided to meet the required flow for 1 hour and access to this auxiliary water shall be available within 90 metres of the risk. Hydrants, connections and access to the auxiliary supply shall be provided to the standard required by the Area Commander.

(7) The Area Commander in consultation with the Local Water Supply Authority, shall establish the classes of the reticulated water supply.

7. Water Supply Classification Table—

Class	Flow in Litres per Second (Reticulated)	Maximum Number of Hydrants from Which the Required Flow Shall be Obtained Within a 270m Radius
A	200	8
B	200	8
C	100	4
D	50	3
E	25	2

(Also see Table 1).

8. Running Pressure—

When 1 hydrant is fully opened the minimum running pressure in the main should be 100 Kpa.

9. Design of Fire Hydrants—

All fire hydrants installed in mains shall be as required by NZS/BS 750 : 1984.

10. Fire Protection Systems—

(1) Where a risk is fitted with an automatic fire sprinkler system the water supplies for the sprinkler shall be as required by New Zealand Standard 4541 : 1987.

(2) Where a fire sprinkler system is fitted to a residential premises the water supplies shall be as required by New Zealand Standard 4515 : 1990.

(3) Where drenchers, fixed monitors or any other fixed system for applying fire fighting water is installed at a risk, sufficient water is to be available to operate that system efficiently.

(4) A risk within a reticulated area that is fitted with a fire protection system that requires more water than the principal main is able to supply shall have a auxiliary water supply, fitted with an automatically operated pump. The water supply shall make up the balance of the water required to efficiently operate the system for a period of 30 minutes, or as required by New Zealand Standard 4541 : 1987.

(5) A risk within an unreticulated area fitted with a fire protection system shall have an auxiliary water supply, fitted with an automatically operated pump. The water supply shall be able to provide the water required to efficiently operate the system for a period of 30 minutes, or as required by New Zealand Standard 4541 : 1987.

11. Spacing of Hydrants—

(1) Table 1 (affixed) shows the maximum spacing between fire hydrants for each class of water supply.

(2) Hydrants shall be spaced at intervals not exceeding the following:

- (a) classes A, B and C 90 metres;
- (b) classes D and E 135 metres.

(3) In cul-de-sac or other terminal streets the last hydrant shall not be more than 65 metres from the end of the street.

(4) Where household units are situated on private ways, there shall be a hydrant within 135 metres of any house or unit.

(5) Where a household unit private way is more than 65 metres long a hydrant shall be sited at the street end of the private way or on the other side of the street immediately opposite to the entrance. If necessary a principal main shall be constructed and a hydrant placed within the private way to ensure every building is within 135 metres of a hydrant.

(6) If a risk in classes A, B or C, in a reticulated area, is more than 90 metres from a hydrant then a hydrant shall be installed within 90 metres of that risk. If necessary a principal main shall be constructed within the complex to ensure every risk is within 90 metres of a hydrant.

(7) Hydrants shall be readily accessible for fire appliances and should generally be positioned near street intersections, and not less than 6 metres from any building.

(8) In Classes A and B hydrants may be installed in pairs to give better access to higher water flows.

12. Installation of Hydrants—

Hydrants shall be installed in accordance with NZS/BS 750 : 1984.

13. Marking of Hydrants—

Hydrants shall be marked in accordance with New Zealand Standard 4501 : 1972 or British Standard 3251 : 1976.

14. Consultation on Water Supply Schemes—

Territorial Authorities shall consult with the Area Commander on the positioning of hydrants when new water supply schemes are being planned or existing schemes are being upgraded. Territorial Authorities should consult with the Area Commander when auxiliary water supplies for fire fighting are being planned or existing auxiliary supplies are being altered.

15. Reserve Storage Capacity in Water Supply Schemes—

New water supply schemes should contain reserve capacity or an alternative supply to cater for a breakdown in the main pumping supply as follows: (Refer to Table 1 affixed)

(1) Class A - 6 hours reserve supply at 200 litres per second - 4,320,000 litres;

(2) Class B - 4 hours reserve supply at 200 litres per second - 2,880,000 litres;

(3) Class C - 3 hours reserve supply at 100 litres per second - 1,080,000 litres;

(4) Class D - 2 hours reserve supply at 50 litres per second - 360,000 litres;

(5) Class E - 1 hours reserve supply at 25 litres per second - 90,000 litres.

16. Dead Ends—

Dead end mains should be avoided and the main linked with some nearby part of the reticulation.

17. Code Recommendations—

All recommendations made by the Area Commander for fire fighting water supplies shall be based on this code.

18. Testing the Adequacy of Water Supplies—

(1) Hydrants and auxiliary water supplies for fire fighting may be inspected and tested by the New Zealand Fire Service under section 30 (2) of the Fire Service Act 1975.

(2) All testing, inspection and recording of reticulated water supplies and hydrants by the New Zealand Fire Service shall be in accordance with instructions promulgated by the National Commander. The tests as to the adequacy of water supplies shall include tests of water volume and pressure.

(3) On completion of testing, the Territorial Authority shall be advised by the New Zealand Fire Service of the sufficiency or otherwise of the water supplies available for fire fighting, hazardous substance emergencies, fire brigade drills and the effective operation of fire protection systems.

(4) All auxiliary water supplies for fire fighting, within a Fire District, along with the connections and access shall be monitored and recorded by the New Zealand Fire Service.

19. Maintenance—

Maintenance and repair of reticulated public water supplies, and hydrants shall be the responsibility of the Territorial Authority. Territorial Authority Officers should advise the New Zealand Fire Service if there is any change to fire fighting water supplies.

Code of Practice for Fire Fighting Water Supplies—Table 1:

Class	Reticulated Flow in Litre per Second	Maximum Number of Hydrants From Which the Flow is to be Obtained in a 270m Radius	Maximum Spacing of Fire Hydrants	Reserve Storage Capacity or Alternative Supply in Water Supply Scheme
Class A	200 litres per second	8	90 metres	6 hours at 200 litres per second 4,320,000 litres
Class B	200 litres per second	8	90 metres	4 hours at 200 litres per second 2,880,000 litres
Class C	100 litres per second	4	90 metres	3 hours at 100 litres per second 1,080,000 litres
Class D	50 litres per second	3	135 metres	2 hours at 50 litres per second 360,000 litres
Class E	25 litres per second	2	135 metres	1 hour at 25 litres per second 90,000 litres.

The Code of Practice for Fire Fighting Water Supplies is promulgated, pursuant to sections 17N (1) (b) and 30 (3) of the Fire Service Act 1975.

General

Nursing Council of New Zealand

Nurses Act 1977

Order of the Council in Disciplinary Session

Order in Respect of Registered Psychiatric Nurses Murray James McKenzie and Ronald Kemp Tuhaka

In exercise of its powers under section 42 (1) (b); 42 (2) (a); 42 (3); 42 (9); 23 (2) and 48A of the Nurses Act 1977, the Nursing Council of New Zealand after due inquiry on 24-28 February and 18 March found Registered Psychiatric Nurses Murray James McKenzie and Ronald Kemp Tuhaka to have been guilty of professional misconduct and ordered that their names be removed from the Register of Nurses. Council declined to fix a time after which they may apply to have their names restored to the Register. Council also ordered that they return all certificates and badges issued to them by the Nursing Council; that in the event that Mr McKenzie and Mr Tuhaka were not legally aided the order for costs would have been $40,000 or half of the actual costs (whichever is the lesser) each, toward the costs and expenses of and incidental to the inquiry by the Council and investigation made by the Preliminary Proceedings Committee; that a notice stating the effect of these orders be published in the Gazette, and the New Zealand Nursing Journal.

M. E. BURGESS, Registrar.
