Summary of Bills Introduced

Commodity Levies Amendment

Amends section 5 of the Commodity Levies Act 1990 by altering the basis on which support for a levy is to be ascertained before the Minister may recommend the making of an Order in Council imposing a levy.

The principal Act requires the Minister to be satisfied that considerably more than half the persons who will have to pay the levy support it. The amendment will require a referendum to be held (subject to certain requirements) and for support of the proposed levy by a simple majority of those participating in the referendum to be sufficient for the Minister to recommend the making of the order.

External Relations Amendment

Amends the External Relations Act 1988 to change the name of the Ministry of External Relations and Trade to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade.

Building Amendment (No. 2)

Amends the Building Act 1991. The definition of the term "building" is clarified. A new Part IIIA is inserted in the principal Act to provide for a levy on building consents to meet the approved net expenditure requirements of the Building Industry Authority. Amends the Third Schedule of the principal Act, which specifies buildings and building work in respect of which a building consent is not required.

Conservation Amendment (No. 2)

Amends the Conservation Act 1987, Wildlife Act 1953, Reserves Act 1977, Marine Mammals Protection Act 1978 and National Parks Act 1980, Foreshore and Seabed Endowment Revesting Act 1991, Wild Animal Control Act 1977 and New Zealand Walkways Act 1990. Two major types of amendments are proposed. A number of amendments are technical in nature to resolve legal issues which have arisen or to correct technical drafting errors. The other amendments make policy changes.

Two major policy changes are proposed. The first involves creating a uniform regime for concessions granted by the Department of Conservation for the use of land administered by that department. The second involves amendments to the Wild Animal Control Act 1977 to focus the Department of Conservation's resources towards preventing farmed deer, through escape, from establishing feral populations in areas of high conservation value.

Other amendments include the introduction of a new category of fishing and game bird licence, widening the ability to reduce the width of marginal strips. It also provides for the Minister of Conservation to authorise the release of biological control organisms where such a release would not pose a threat to the environment, and allows for the Minister to permit the reintroduction of indigenous animals into wilderness areas in national parks.

Commerce

Commerce Act 1986

Statement to the Commerce Commission on the Economic Policy of the Government

1. Pursuant to section 26 of the Commerce Act, I hereby transmit to the Commerce Commission a statement of the economic policy of the Government in relation to its reforms of the health sector and the Health and Disability Services Act 1993, which has recently been converted to an Act of Parliament.

2. The objectives of the reforms are to secure for the people of New Zealand:

- (a) the best health
- (b) the best care or support for those in need of health and disability services
- (c) the greatest independence for people with disabilities

that is reasonably achievable within the amount of funding provided.

3. One of the significant reforms put in place is the separation of the "purchase" and "provision" function of current area health boards.

4. The purchase function will now be the responsibility of the four newly-established regional health authorities (RHAs) and the Public Health Commission (PHC). The RHAs' goal is to purchase the best possible range and quality of personal health and disability services for their respective regions within the funds allocated to them.

5. Ultimately, the Government expects the RHAs to purchase services from the widest range of providers in order to achieve this goal. However, it also wants there to be a smooth transition up until this point in order to avoid any disruption to the delivery of services.

6. The Government has, therefore, advised RHAs to engage in "contestable" purchasing strategies for services where possible, but ensure that such strategies do not disrupt service continuity. There will be, therefore, a "roll over" of many existing arrangements with providers in the initial period. The detail of the Government's policy in this regard is discussed in the section "Purchasing and Contracting Strategies" in the document Policy Guidelines to the RHAs (November 1992).

7. The Government has decided that the Commerce Act will apply to the purchase and supply of health and disability services. The sole exception will be any arrangements entered into by RHAs, or the PHC, in relation to pharmaceuticals and associated medical devices, and to certain arrangements, approved by the Governor-General, in relation to blood.

8. During the transitional period ending 1 July 1994 the Government has decided that only the Commerce Commission will be able to commence proceedings against RHAs under Part II of the Commerce Act. Third parties may, however, address their concerns to the Commerce Commission.

9. The Commerce Act has not been applied to all health markets previously. Some purchasers and providers may not be completely familiar with the application of the Act to their activities. The transitional period will enable them to develop a better understanding of the Act and its implications. The Government notes the Commerce Commission's recent press statement on the role it intends to adopt during the transitional period. It endorses the emphasis on an educational role.

Dated at Wellington this 9th day of June 1993.

PHILIP BURDON, Minister of Commerce.

Transport

Transit New Zealand Act 1989

Directive to Transit New Zealand: Maintenance Management Information System; Geographic Information System

In accordance with section 7 of the Transit New Zealand Act 1989, I direct Transit New Zealand to:

(i) Require all local authorities to have in place a maintenance management information system no later than 30 June 1994;

(ii) Prepare proposals by August 1993, for approval by myself and the Minister of Finance, for a Geographic Information System (GIS) to cover the whole roading network.

I: Maintenance Management Information System

The Government is concerned that all expenditure on roading maintenance that comes from or is associated with funding coming from the Land Transport Fund be properly justified to ensure that it is fully cost effective.

The Government has therefore decided that all local authorities be required to justify their ongoing maintenance funding by having in place a computerised maintenance management system based on Transit New Zealand's existing Road Assessment and Maintenance Management System (RAMMS).

Advice from Transit New Zealand indicates that only six local authorities do not presently meet this requirement, and that the costs for these authorities of joining the RAMMS system can be minimised.

The Authority is directed to implement this policy no later than 30 June 1994.

II: Geographic Information System

The Government regards the requirement for all territorial local authorities to belong to the RAMMS system as a first step towards the application of Geographic Information Systems applying to the whole public roading system in New Zealand. For effective management of the whole roading network, it is essential that all necessary management information is held in fully compatible Geographic Information Systems.

The Authority is therefore directed to prepare proposals for specifications for Geographic Information System (GIS) requirements to apply to all roads in New Zealand. As a minimum, the proposal should initially cover a system that:

(i) Records details of all roads and road reserve ownership, including land records;

(ii) Contains provision for the inclusion of all the maintenance and construction history on each section of road, including but not limited to the data currently recorded on RAMMS;

(iii) Provides for asset valuation and depreciation records;

(iv) Provides for records of volumes and characteristics of traffic on each road;

(v) Provides such other information as may be necessary for the proper management of the total roading system;

(vi) Is capable of being added to and developed in a flexible and open manner;

(vii) Can be linked to the computer databases of the forthcoming Land Transport Authority (currently the Land Transport Division of the Ministry of Transport) so as to provide safety records and related information on each road.

The Authority is directed to forward an initial proposal to this effect, including costs and implementation timescale, to the Minister of Transport and the Minister of Finance no later than August 1993, with a view to implementation beginning in the 1994-1995 financial year.

Dated at Wellington this 8th day of June 1993.

W. ROB STOREY, Minister of Transport.
