By order,

EXTRACT from the Minutes of the Otago Education Board, March 21, 1871.

Inter alia, the Secretary laid on the table the following Report on Schools in the Southland District:—

1. In consequence of the repeal of the Southland Education Ordinance, there are at present no legally constituted School Committees in the Southland portion of the united province. In order that the different localities may be properly represented, I recommend that the "owners and occupiers of land and householders" in the following-mentioned places be invited to meet for the purpose of electing School Committees, and for the other purposes specified in the "Education Ordinance 1864, viz.:—Invercargill, Campbelltown, Riverton, South Riverton, Wallacetown, Waianiwa, Flint's Bush, Gummie's Bush, Winton, Roslin, One Tree Point, Long Bush, Flemington, and Waikiwi.

2. The settlers of the different districts should understand that the circumstance of their several localities being recognised by the Board as Education Districts will not entitle them to "Main Schools," unless the usual conditions as to attendance of pupils, qualifications of teachers, &c., are complied with, and the Board has in each case specially sanctioned the raising of the school to that position.

3. The Inspector of Schools should be authorised to attend the meetings in the different localities, as provided by the Ordinance, for the purpose of explaining the steps necessary to be taken by the several meetings, and of furnishing information respecting the provisions of the Education Ordinance, and the usual practice of the Board. He should also prepare a report on the qualifications of the different teachers in respect of professional experience and skill, scholarship, and character.

4. Owing mainly, I believe, to the sparseness of the population, not one of the existing schools has a sufficient attendance to warrant its being recognised as a "Main District School," under the regulation of the Board, that from 45 to 50 pupils should be in ordinary attendance. It was represented that many educable children could not attend school owing to the high rates of fees, rendered necessary by the small amount of salary paid by the former Education Board to the teachers. There may be some truth in this, and it is probable that when the schools are placed on the same footing as the other schools in Otago, the fees may be considerably reduced, and the attendance of pupils increased.

5. No Government School has been in existence in Invercargill for some years. The School Committee of Invercargill, when appointed, will probably apply for the establishment of a Grammar School in that town, under the provisions of the "Grammar School Ordinance 1869," and the Board will no doubt feel warranted in complying with the request. It is possible that in addition to the Grammar School in the town, one or two elementary schools may be found necessary in the suburbs of Invercargill; but at the outset, I would not advise more than the institution of a fully equipped Government School in the town. After a sufficient trial, the Board will be able to judge what further provisions would be necessary for the educational wants of the suburban districts.

6. A school has been in operation at Morton Mains for some years, but in consequence of the removal of many of the servants of the Land Company, the number of children is so much reduced as to render the continuance of a school there out of the question. The workmen employed by the Meat Preserving Company at Woodlands, and the settlers in the vicinity, are very urgent for the establishment of a school in that locality. In order to meet the requirements of the Woodlands settlers, I recommend the removal of the present Morton Mains School and teacher to Flemington, a station of the Land Company near Woodlands, and also within reach of the Morton Mains children. The agent of the Land Company has signified his willingness to permit the removal of the Morton Mains School-building to Flemington, so that the expense of a new building will be saved.

7. Schools are already in operation in all the other places I have specified except at Invercargill and Waikiwi. The latter is a somewhat populous locality between Invercargill and Wallacetown, and I believe a school is much needed there. I have omitted from the list of proposed school districts the Goldfield township of Orepuki, some miles west of Riverton. A school, sanctioned by the late Education Board of Southland, is in course of erection at Orepuki; but as its permanence as a settled locality does not yet seem to be established, it may be sufficient for the present to aid the school under the provisions of Clause 34 of the Education Ordinance.

8. I am disposed to believe that, in the event of Jacob's River being bridged at Riverton, one good school in the township would be more efficiently conducted than the two small schools at present in operation on opposite sides of the river, at no great distance from each other.

9. As my visit took place during the Christmas holidays, most of the schools were closed, and I am, therefore, unable to report fully as to the efficiency of the schools, or the qualifications of the teachers. As far as I could judge, however, several of the schoolmasters are of superior attainments, and quite entitled to rank as Main School teachers under the Education Ordinance.

The report, as submitted by Mr Hislop, was approved of, and the several recommendations contained in it were ordered to be carried into effect.

A true copy,

JOHN HISLOP, Secretary,

HOW TO PREVENT THE SPREAD OF SCARLET FEVER.

THE attention of the Government of Otago having been called to the spread of the disease known as SCARLATINA in this Province, desires to direct the public attention to the following extract from the Otago Daily Times of the 4th instant, which contains most valuable suggestions as to the mode of procedure to prevent its propagation, and the particular necessity of destroying the infected garments and bedding of those who unhappily are affected by it.

Provincial Government Offices,
Dunedin, 17th March, 1871.

As many are inquiring the best way to prevent the spread of Scarlet Fever, I offer the following suggestions as embodying the measures relied upon at the present time:—The contagious matter in Scarlet Fever is probably evolved from the air passages, the excretions, and the particles separated from the skin during the process of desquamation. It will be necessary, therefore, that the patient should be secluded as completely as possible from all who have not had the disease, or who have to mix with those who have not had it; and also that all excretions should be disinfected forthwith. A person who exhibits symptoms of Scarlet Fever should be at once placed in a well-ventilated room (the higher in the house the better), having a sheet hung across the door, which should be kept moist with a solution of Condry's disinfecting fluid. He should be attended by a nurse, who ought not to hold any intercourse with other members of the family. All carpets, curtains, and bedhangings should be removed from the room, the air of which should be warmed, if needed, by a fire, and kept changed by an open window—the patient being most carefully protected by the position of the bed from any draught. To all excretions carbolic acid is to be added at once. Food and dishes should be left outside the door, to be taken in and removed without any communication. A basin containing carbolate of lime powder should be placed near the patient for him to spit into. Small pieces of rag (to be burned as soon as used) should be substituted for pocket-handkerchiefs. These measures should be supplemented by others required to counteract the effects of what Dr Budd so emphatically terms "the death-giving brood"—to wit, the results of the desquamation or scurfing of the skin. About the fourth day of the eruption the white efflorescence becomes faintly marked. To prevent the diffusion of the particles of which it consists, Dr Budd has suggested the anointing of the body with olive oil from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot, twice a-day. The end in view will be more perfectly accomplished by adding carbolic acid to the oil in the proportion of one part of acid to one hundred of oil. This should be continued until the patient is well enough to have a warm bath, when he should be lathered with carbolic soap, dried, warmed before a good fire, and put back to bed. During the rest of the time occupied by desquamation, it will be advisable every day, or every other day, according to the amount of particles of skin being thrown off, to repeat this process—i. e., an anointing in the morning, followed by a warm bath, with carbolic soap washing in the evening. After recovery—that is, after desquamation has entirely ceased—the dresses of the nurse and the clothing worn by the patient during his illness and convalescence should be destroyed, or washed in a manner that will disinfect them. Destruction is, of course, the most certain agent in preventing further contagion, but when this is not practicable the clothing and bedding should be exposed to a very high temperature—not under 212°. Things which can be washed may be boiled in water in which a little carbolic acid has been added, and then washed with carbolic acid soap. Dr. Budd, of Clifton, who brought these suggestions prominently into notice two or three years ago, says that, having adopted them for twenty years, he has never known Scarlet Fever spread beyond the sick-room in a single instance, and but very rarely within it.

All articles of clothing and bedding which cannot be boiled can be disinfected by being exposed for two hours in an oven at a temperature of 250° Fahr.

The rooms which have been occupied by the sick should have burnt in them a couple of ounces or more of sulphur, all openings being closed, for a few hours.

The clothes of the sick should be frequently changed, and disinfected by boiling or baking.
