NOTICE.

TO MASTERS OF VESSELS BOUND TO INVERCARGILL.

MASTERS OF VESSELS are hereby cautioned not to run over the Bar without a pilot, as the channel inside has now become too narrow to round a vessel too in, to come to anchor, and about a mile above the Pilot Station it is almost impassable even at high water.

When practicable, a vessel should be kept so near to Steep Head that any signals (Marryat's), shown on the Flagstaff there, could be seen on board; and the master is requested to observe particularly any such signals, and be guided by them.

The new channel, made mention of lately in the Invercargill newspapers, has been buoyed, and would at present admit vessels drawing eighteen feet to pass through it with safety, but only in charge of a pilot, and no directions can here be given for sailing through this channel, as it can only be of temporary duration, but it is hoped that it will continue available until the proper channel opens out, the changes towards which are daily observable.
